Completion of a water treatment plant and well is expected by January.

Pool Again Rejected

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Voters for the second time in recent months rejected Tuesday, a $60,000 bond issue which would have provided the city's share of a proposed $500,000 community center and public swimming pool in the county seat.

Horse Racing Turned Down

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Legalized parimutuel betting on horse races went down the drain in Missouri's special election Tuesday because of a heavy outstate uprising against it.

But a $150 million water pollution bond issue won a smashing victory by almost 275,000 votes and three other constitutional amendments also passed easily.

One will enlarge home rule powers of cities over 5,000 that adopt charters, one lets second class counties keep their prevailing maximum tax rates until they reach full first class status and the other lets all veterans, instead of just Missourians, enjoy veterans' preference grades on merit system examinations.

The controversial parimutuel betting plan drew the most votes, a total of about 550,000— far less than the 700,000 total vote predicted bys Sec. of State James C. Kirkpatrick.

With 99 per cent of the precincts tabulated, the count was 254,239 for the proposal and 295,963 against it.

Outstate, two out of every three voters cast their ballots against it and the 60-40 vote for it in the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas was not enough to counter the negative outstate balloting.

Dr. Martin Greenberg was not dismayed. He is St. Louis County Democratic chairman and one of the leading campaigners for the proposal.

HOW COME RUSSIA IS A STRONG-WEAK NATION?

It is one of the great mysteries of the world that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has a much greater fleet of submarines than the United States. But the situation is much worse. Representative John G. Schmitz of the Whittier, Calif. area, the President's Congressman, says:

"There is now little doubt in the mind of any informed person that the United States is inferior to the Soviet Union in practically every aspect of military power. What is worse, his disparity in strategic forces is growing worse due to a combination of executive restraint in hopes of progress at the SALT talks, Congressional criticism, and growing pressure from numerous disarmament lobbies chanting about 're-ordering priorities.'"

The question arises, why is it that the Russians cannot build a mass production automobile or truck plant, while they can build warships, freighters, atomic bombs, missiles, tanks, artillery and the ammunition to fire big guns? While they are helping the North Vietnamese, the Egyptians and the Cubans and others to make war, and are sending them large quantities of food and war material, the Russians themselves often find that they have not produced enough bread grains for their own country.

Obviously the Russians are engaging in a crash production of armaments while neglecting other areas of needful output. They are depending upon foreign nations, their prospective victims, to build their auto and truck plants and sell them grain when they fall behind. In the meantime they do what they can to spread disorders within the helpful capitalist countries in order to keep us off balance and to prevent us from thinking straight. What dupes we be!

DID HE LOSE ANYTHING?

The following editorial, published sometime ago in The Press is repeated after receiving many requests that it appear again:

The student newspaper of a Texas college offered food for thought about the case of a younth arrested for and convicted of the possession of marijuana. The article asks: "Did he lose anything?" And then answers itself.

"All he lost was the right to vote, the right to own a gun and the right to run for public office."

"He lost the opportunity of ever being a licensed doctor, dentist, CPA, engineer, lawyer, architect, realtor, osteopath, physical therapist, private detective, paharmacist, school teacher, barber, funeral director, masseur, or stock broker."

"He can never get a job where he has to be bonded or licensed. He can't work for the city, county or federal government."

If any or all of this happened to you ... would you think you had lost anything?

CLOTHING FIRE DANGER HIGH FOR YOUNG, OLD

As clothing buyers and consumers, people almost totally ignore the fact that nearly all clothing will burn.

This is the ominous observation of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), whose studies show that an estimated 200,000 deaths and injuries occur in the United States each year as the result of clothing fires. Chief victims are the very young and the elderly.

First defense is to choose sturdy, tightly-woven fabrics and close-fitted garments. Such clothing will ignite and burn less readily than light fabrics and garments with long, drooping sleeves or billowing skirts.

Equally important is to watch out for flames, sparks, open fires and the intense heat of electric coils — al clothing fire-starters.

Train children to keep a safe distance from fire-starters, NFPA urges. Choose clothes for the youngsters and the elderly persons in your family with care, always remembering that clothing burns.

E. M. FORESTER'S LAST NOVEL

Maurice, E. M. Forster's posthumous novel, will be published in the United States by W. W. Norton on Thursday, Oct. 7. Forster wrote Maurice in 1913, but, because the main character was a homosexual, he withheld the book from publication during his lifetime. Seven American publishers submitted sealed bids for the U.S. rights in what New York magazine described (Aug. 30, 1971) as an example of the trend toward "literary auctions." Norton got the book for $135,000 plus generous royalty terms, and the money will go into a literary fund to help writers.

The sections of Maurice published recently in London's Sunday Times seem awkward and embarrassingly furtive in the age of permissiveness. Forster was determined that the novel should end happily because he thought most people could not imagine a happy homosexual affair. When the novel was written, between 1913 and 1915, the theme was daring. But during the 91 years of his life Forster gradually saw public opinion shift from the indignation which characterized the trial of Oscar Wilde in 1895 to the tolerance shown by the repeal of the laws against homosexual relations between consenting adults.

Forster wrote only five other novels. The huge success of Howards End (1910) filled him with fear of becoming sterile as a writer. After A Passage to India (1924) no further novels appeared, and the decades of silence created an aura of mystery in literary circles. When he died in Cambridge in June 1970, the manuscript of Maurice was found among his papers with the memo written on it: "Publishable, but is it worth it?" Even the executors of his will were divided on this question. Ultimately, the fact that it was a novel by Forster and that its royalties would serve a good purpose overcame their reluctance to release such a dated, Edwardian revelation.

A BONE CONTENDS

(from the San Gabriel (Calif.) Tribune.

AZUSA, CAL. — "Several months ago a young boy came to me, wanting to enlist in the Army. He wasn't an everday typical lad, but a high school drop-out with long hair, beard and barefoot. He didn't impress me at all. His slumped shoulders and negative attitude didn't reflect any ambition or purpose in life," writes Army re uiter Sgt. Jim Hegyi.

"Later his parents told me that after he had dropped out of school he sat around the house for a couple of months and got into all sorts of trouble, drinking, uncaring, defiant. When his father took him to task for his unsocial behavior, the lad said, "Give me a little while to straighten myself out, Dad.' On his own initiative, and just after his 17th birthday, he came to us here to enlist."

Today Private Glen A. Bone is one of the best soldiers in the U.S. Army. Presently he is at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, attending the heavy equipment operators course. Then he will go to the non-commissioned officers academy. During basic training he was a platoon guide, where he demonstrated superior leadership qualities and was promoted to the next higher grade ahead of his contemporaries.

The proud parents of this young man are Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bone, 5820 Rockvale Ave., Azusa.

The change in this young man is reflected in his letter he wrote to his parents recently. Mr. and Mrs. Bone would like their community to know what the Army can do for a young boy who can't find his place in this world.

Dear Mom & Dad —

Today I'm sitting in Fort Leonard Wood hospital, Missouri, thousands of miles away from home, waiting for x-rays.

I'm reading a newspaper about people protesting a war in which they haven't fought, of people who protest work they haven't done, and people who condemn society of which they never or probably will never contribute anything to.

As I'm sitting here, I see young men just returned from Vietnam, missing arms, legs, and minds. Then I think of the students on our country's college campuses protesting for peace while we are out keeping the country free, so they can have the right to protest.

The greatest future leaders of the country sit and say stop the war ... and yet they don't get up and fight to stop it because they will have to get a haircut. They smoke pot, carry signs, condemn my country, that's right. My country, not theirs, but mine, like millions of people fighting to keep it ours and our children's for generations to come. That's the way it's been for a long time. The men who founded this great nation had to work, fight and pray to make it what it is today. That's why I say, "America, love it or leave it."

A lot of men have left it, to fight for it, to fight for freedom and have never come back to enjoy it. It wasn't their war, it wasn't mine, but it is my country's.

One of my gladdest thoughts is, that I'm part of this generation. Not the protesting part, but the fighting part. The freedom loving part of the generation, that got a haircut and decided to keep this nation a free one for everybody, yes even for the people who demonstrate and protest.

God help us if some day they'll run this great country of ours. It's not really theirs, it's ours, we are the ones who made this country what it is — FREE.

Love ya,
Glen

He was a first lieutenant and had undergone Ranger and paratroop training but had never been in combat. This seems a rather dubious distinction, not because he is an objector to military duty on conscientious grounds, but because he went to a military academy for four years and accepted college education at taxpayers' expense.

NEW ERA IN MARITIME HISTORY

While prognosticators try to estimate the pros and cons of the next decade, there is one area that can now be added to the plus side of the ledger with little hesitancy. During the next ten years, the nation can look forward with confidence to a rebirth of U. S. maritime strength in merchant ships. The Administration's maritime program, announced some time ago by the President, is designed to "...restore this country to a proud position in the shipping lanes of the world." The head of the American Institute of Merchant Shipping, an organization that represents much of the active U. S. fleet tonnage, notes that the Administration's shipbuilding program is in line with carrying out the President's announced policy of stimulating private enterprise to revitalize the merchant marine. The shipping industry official says: "It calls for 30 ships annually over a 10-year-period--tripling the present construction rate--and will require private capital investment of nearly $4 billion."

The consequences of a new day for the U. S. Merchant Marine can hardly be exaggerated. In terms of the balance of payments deficit alone, a step-up in the carrying of commerce in U. S. ships will be of tremendous benefit. Secretary of COmmerce Maurice Stans declares of the new shipbuilding program: "We estimate that over the next 10 years this program would bring in approximately a $2 billion improvement in our international balance of payment...(and that)...by reason of increased employment and more profitable operations for the shipowners, tax revenues of the government will increase somewhere between a half a billion and three quarters of a billion dollars."

The target of new ship construction is aimed at the carriage of at least 30 per cent and possibly 50 per cent of U. S. ocean-borne commercial cargo in American flag ships--ships that will reflect a revolution in merchant shipbuilding technology. As President Nixon has indicated, the 1970's will introduce"...a new era in the maritime history of America."

PAWNS OF POLITICS

Politics can set in motion a chain of events that politicians can neither foresee nor control. The U. S. prescription drug industry is a case in point. As one industry spokesman puts it,"...the political searchlight and the political headlines over the past decade have focused on the drug industry to an extent that has not only been unreasonable, but worse, has served to direct attention away from the true dimensions of the problem."

The problem of which this spokesman speaks is the growing use of the consumer voter by politicians as a stepping stone to political office and power. Political currying of consumer favor is changing the basic relationship between the consumer and industry or buyer and seller. The injection of politics into the marketing process may have long-range consequences, of which no present-day officeholder would wish to be a part. In the free market economy of the United States, the drug industry has made almost incredible contributions to medical care. The prices of prescription drugs have been trending downward consistently since 1960, while all other prices have been rising. Yet, political attacks continue, and the obstacles to future drug industry progress in the development of beneficial new drugs that can improve the health and well-being of everyone threaten to become insurmountable.

The political crusade against the drug industry in the name of the consumer is but an incident in a larger trend that U. S. citizens should view with a wary eye. Again in the words of the drug industry spokesman: "To what extent are political processes applicable to the solution of industrial problems involving production, distribution, innovation and marketing? At what point does this approach become destructive to the interests of the consumer as well as of the supplier? " This is an all-important question at a time when the consumer electorate may unconsciously become a pawn of political ambition.

SHARK TALE

A man fell overboard from a Caribbean liner and screamed for help as he saw a school of maneating sharks heading his way. A famous criminal lawyer called from the steamer, "I'll help you," and dived into the ocean.

Immediately the sharks formed a two lane escort and convoyed the two men back to the ship.

It's a miracle," gasped the rescued man.

BUSINESS GROUPS ADVISES MATURE JOB SEEKERS

In the employment of mature workers there is no more important person than the individual himself, according to a pamphlet published by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Instead of accenting his ability and skills when he applies for a job, the older job applicant sometimes magnifies the matter of his age, the NAM says in its publication called "Do's and Don'ts for Mature Job Seekers."

What To Do——It is suggested that an older job seeker should stress his qualifications for the particular job which is open, recount his experience which would fit him for the job, and talk and think about the future, not the past.

He should emphasize his stability and good attendance record and remember that older employees are generally capable, dependable, trainable, careful, and steady.

He should learn about the company and its products in advance and assume an air of optimism and confidence.

The pamphlet says he should try to overcome nervousness or shortness of breath. (It helps to take a deep breath). Also: Do assume an air of confidence; Do maintain poise and self-control; Do hold yourself erect; and Do make plenty of applications.

Other suggestions are to apply for a specific job or jobs, have available a list of former employers, and apply for the job in person. Also, as many people as possible should know that the person is seeking a job.

What Not to Do——Several "Don'ts are also listed: Don't depend upon the telephone for your job; Don't isolate yourself from contacts who might help you find a job; and Don't feel that the world owes you a living.

The NAM pamphlet advice is not to stress the need for a job and not to discuss past experience which has no application to the job situation.

The applicant should not apologize for his age and should not be one of those who can do anything.

The job-seeker is told not to hesitate to fill out an application form, to give references, or to take a physical examination or tests, and not to make claims which cannot be delivered on the job.

Also, the pamphlet says, don't hang around, prolonging the interview when it should be over.

AID LAWMEN VIA L—AID

Freedom cannot exist without Law and Order. Our good lawmen urgently need citizen support if they are to turn the tide against crime and thus preserve our Republic. Individuals and others, acting in small groups, could act, if they wished, for the purpose of extending their support to lawmen in this great cause which is so vital to everyone.

L-Aid could be the title for this support by citizens for lawmen and for law and order. Any citizen who recognizes the need to support the lawmen can activate himself to this end. By enlisting a friend in the cause, he can double his effectiveness at once. Soon an effective and active group will be joyfully on the job, if each L-Aider enlists another just once a month.

The increase in crime has been reduced in many places across the country since seasoned campaigners took a hand in the battle for Law and Order three years ago. But crime continues to increase, though gains are being made. Our Republic cannot continue if this tide cannot be turned. Crime undermines everything good. An ordered society is essential for anything good.

Good citizens, who are in the vast majority, try to do right. But there are bad people who try to do wrong. When there gets to be too many bad ones, as has been the case in recent years, the good citizens must come to the aid of the lawmen or we will all be overwhelmed by the bad people. L-Aid may be the turning point.

"What do women really want? They own the world already. Why do they want to run it?"

"Free them? That makes me laugh. Free them from what?

"The hand that rocks the cradle now wants to upset the apple cart."

"Women do deserve special consideration because they have the problem of bearing children. But men have a problem, too. They have to bear with women."

"Agatha, how can you hope to be equal to a man if you go around acting like a woman?"

"Look, they gave the women the right to vote because it was thought they would clean up politics. That was 50 years or so ago. So what about politics today? Has it ever been in a bigger mess?"

"What good does it do to give a woman what she wants anyway? As soon as she gets it, she decides she wants something else."

"Hey, Agatha, I just thought up a slogan for your women's liberation movement. How about 'Today the world, tomorrow the universe'?'

"All I can say is we'll never have a female president as long as I'm alive and resident."

"Imagine having a Supreme Court made up of four old men and five old ladies. It just doesn't make sense."

"This whole female freedom movement sounds to me like a rumor in a bloomer."

"Why should women get paid as much as men? If they did, would they spend their money on men the way men spend their money on women now? In a pig's eye they would!"

"I wouldn't mind womankind being liberated if someone would agree to liberate mankind, too."

"No matter how equal you make a woman she'll always expect a man to do the pushing when they go through a revolving door."

"Agatha, if I agree to right all your wrongs, will you get out of the pulpit and back into the kitchen? I'm hungry, honey."

Washington—The FBI and State Department have been squabbling behind the scenes over how to deal with Soviet espionage in this country.

The British have tipped us off that the massive espionage they have uncovered is typical of what's going on in the U.S. as well.

Their informant is a Soviet KGB agent, who rode up to the British Foreign Office in a Soviet Embassy limousine and asked for asylum. He walked in with a stachel full of secret documents, outlining the entire Soviet espionage operation in Britain.

The documents included no details about Soviet espionage in the U.S., but the defector asserted the pattern was the same.

This wasn't news to the FBI, which has been keeping close tabs on the 525 Soviet diplomats, trade officials and journalists in the U.S.

Many have been linked to direct acts of espionage. Others have encouraged racial, industrial and campus unrest through undercover contact with American activists. Soviet agents, for example, have helped to stir up the nationwide campaign in behalf of Angela Davis, the Red Joan of Arc, now in federal custody.

The British, once confronted with the documented evidence of Soviet spying, expelled 90 Russians from the country and revoked the visas of 15 others. The U.S. during the 1960s expelled 11 Soviet Embassy officials, another 11 Soviet UN employees.

FBI SURVEILLANCE

The FBI has accumulated enough evidence to justify the expulsion of several more Soviets. But the State Department has opposed their ouster, particularly in recent years, for the sake of Soviet-American relations.

In order to promote the spirit of detente, the State Department has preferred to overlook what it considers to be purely routine espionage.

For instance, the FBI made a case against Oleg D. Kalugin, a handsome Soviet newsman-diplomat-agent, who tried to recruit a Greek immigrant for undercover work in the U.S. Under the assumed name of "Victor Kraknikovich," Kalugin held secret trysts with the immigrant, John Makris, in hotel lobbies, restaurants, a Greenwich Village bookstore and at various spots in the Bronx.

They discussed a number of plans. First, Makris was to infiltrate the anti-Castro movement in New York. Later he was to move to Washington and set up a business front, then travel around the country as a bagman, distributing money to Soviet agents. At one point, Kalugin instructed Makris to cultivate a secretary in the FBI's Manhattan office.

But all the while, Makris was reporting to the FBI. The evidence justified Kalugin's expulsion, but the State Department didn't want to rock the diplomatic boat.

The FBI made a similar case against Galina "Galya" Utekhina, formerly the Soviet cultural attache in Washington. FBI agents soon discovered she was promoting culture at softly lit restaurants where she dated prominent figures from Capitol Hill, government agencies, Western embassies and the United Nations.

Again, the State Department refused to take action. The battle between diplomacy and security, meanwhile, is still going on.

Nixon's Movies --President Nixon takes a puritanical view of the nation's morals in public and in private, practices what he preaches. The peace-preaching Senator explained quietly that he was gathering "ammunition" to fight back.

Slow Mail --The Navy's interoffice mail system makes even the bogged down U.S. Postal Service look efficient. Naval inspectors, after a secret study, reported: "A recent series of tests was conducted to record times required to process mail from receipt to arrival at action desks." They found it sometimes took six days to deliver interoffice mail one block, sometimes three days to route it from one floor to another in the same building. "Several pieces (of mail) were lost" during the tests. Concludes the inspectors' classified report: The Navy "falls short of the standard . . . (of) two working hours from receipt in the mailroom to delivery to the action desk."

Medical Squeeze --The American Medical Association maintains such tight control over medical training in this country that half of the qualified applicants are turned away. The reason for this is to restrict the number of doctors so they can continue to charge high fees. Thousands of high school graduates, who want to become doctors, are forced to take up other professions. The more persistent go to foreign schools for their medical training. More than 1,000 Americans, for exmaple, attend a medical school across the border in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Great Cripplers Part II

Muscular Dystrophy Makes Special Target Of Boys

Editor's Note: Muscular Dystrophy makes a special target of boys. The following article, detailing efforts to alleviate the disease, is the second of a five-part series on "The Great Cripplers.

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A scientific henhouse in Manhattan may hold the key to the riddle of muscular dystrophy, the muscle-wasting scourge of the Little League age group.

Among mankind's great cripplers, muscular dystrophy makes a special target of boys and afflicts males five to six times more frequently than females.

Muscular dystrophy, actually a group of 30 diseases, is marked by progressive weakening and wasting of voluntary muscles, the skeletal muscles near the body's surface.

At least 250,000 Americans suffer from MD, and there is no proven cure nor preventive or even controlling treatment for the mostly hereditary affliction. About 50,000 are disabled completely confined for life to wheel chair and bed. The national medical bill is $125 million annually.

But at New York's Institute for Muscle Research, there's cautious hope that experiments with 1,000 caged chickens may reduce this human and economic toll.

About half are a special New Hampshire breed afflicted by a hereditary disease that closely resembles muscular dystrophy.

Dr. Ade Milhorat, director of the institute sponsored by the Muscular Dystronphy Association of America, stresses there's no guarantee that treatment applicable to MD victims will come from the experiments and cautions against undue optimism among MD sufferers and their families.

Researchers have found that chemicals derived from vegetable oils, including oil from the yellow safflower plant, have been able to reverse with some degree of consistency the processes in chickens that parallels MD. This constitutes the first such demonstration in any living creature.

Testing in humans must await further tests with the chickens, Dr. Milhorat says.

At the 11-story, $5-million research institute, doctors work with a small number of research patients, some of whom suffer from Duchenne muscular dystrophy, the most prevalent and severe form of the disease.

Named for the French doctor who first discovered its symptoms, Duchenne MD strikes boys between the ages of 2 to 6. By 11 years victims mostly are confined to wheel chairs.

Most die before adulthood because weakening of their muscles makes it difficult for them to cought—sometimes resulting in suffocation—or the heart muscle becomes lethally weak.

Another form of MD, "facioscapulo-humeral type," slowly affects the face shoulders and arms. Face muscles are hit first and a victim often is eventually powerless to smile or sip through a straw.

Like Duchenne MD, it is an hereditary form of muscular dystrophy, but the facial type strikes teen-agers and adults of both sexes.

A third major form of MD is the limb-girdle type, also hereditary and affecting both sexes. It first strikes in childhood or adolescene and first affects use of arms and legs. The disease develops slowly and victims may reach middle age.

Other, less common mixed forms of MD also exist. Not inherited, they can strike anyone between the ages of 30 to 50, according to the National Health Education Committee.

"The course of the disease is rapid, often causing death in from five to 10 years," the voluntary health agency says.

To aid the study of the metabolism of MD victims, patients at the research institute eat a specially measured, meat-free diet.

"The reason we keep meat out of the diet is that most meat consists of muscle, and we'd rather not have it in the bodily waste products of these research patients, since we're trying to assess the condition of their own muscles," a researcher explains.

No medicines of proven value are available yet to alter the course of MD, but the research patients undertake gentle exercises designed to keep muscles stretched to full length and delay the onset of a condition called shortened joints.

Elsewhere in the nation, a few doctors have reported promising results with a few patients in tendon-cutting and other surgical techniques aimed at delaying disability from MD. But such methods still are controversial.

Some researchers see genetic counseling as a means of preventing Duchenne MD, an inherited disease related to a defective chromosome carried by some women.

A woman who has one son afflicted with Duchenne MD has a one-in-two chance of having another, says Dr. Carl Pearson of the Muscle Disorder Clinic of the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center.

But Dr. Pearson says recent advances in using a certain enzyme and other tests make it possible to detect up to 90 per cent of female carriers who themselves rarely show any symptoms of MD.

This new ability to detect most carriers "provides a great opportunity for genetic counseling and for encouraging such women not to have children because of the risk," Dr. Pearson says.

Four alternative possibilities are being explored as a basic cause of MD, he says. They are based on theories that the disease may stem from a defect in the muscle cell membrane, the energy supply system to muscles, the protein that normally makes muscles contract or in a some primary defect in the central nervous system or branching nerves.

Until recently, Dr. Pearson says, MD was considered to be purely a muscle disease with no neurological basis, but now there's growing evidence to the contrary. (NEXT:) Cerebral Stroke

House Approves Tax Cut Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed today by voice vote a controversial package of business and individual tax cuts, $15.4 billion over three years, keyed to President Nixon's new economic program.

Despite a last-minute stepup in opposition by labor union officials, the House acted without even demanding a roll call. About 50 members were on the floor.

Although the Ways and Means Committee reshuffled the Nixon tax program, reducing benefits to business by about $5 billion and increasing individual tax cuts by about $3.5 billion, opponents contend it is still a bonanza to big business. Using this argument, the AFL-CIO sent a letter to all House members Tuesday urging them to reject the bill.

Benefits for individuals are concentrated largely in the lower-income brackets. All individual taxpayers would get at least a little relief—possibly as early as November—through a speedup in bigger personal exemptions.

For example, a single person with $3,000 income would save $18 on this year's tax, $55 next year, $47 in 1973.

For one earning $15,000, the savings would be $8 the first year, $14 the second, none the third.

A married couple with two dependents and $4,000 income would save $17 this year and $28—the entire tax liability— next year.

The similar couple with $15,000 income would save $22 this year, $44 next year.

For business, the big change would be revival of the investment credit. Seven per cent of the cost of new equipment could be charged off against income tax. But the committee offset this advantage to some extent by tightening fast-depreciation rules the Treasury put into effect this year.

The bill would repeal the excise tax on automobiles and light trucks, and provide a special tax break for exporters.

The combination of all these changes, the committee calculated, would be an overall $350million increase in business taxes for 1971, a $2.75-billion decrease in business taxes for 1972, and a $3.27-billion reduction for 1973.

Missouri Meat Inspection Program Gains Approval

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's meat inspection program has been approved by the Agriculture Department.

This word came today from Republican Congressman Durward Hall of the 7th district.

Hall said the USDA has certified Missouri's meat inspection program as being equal to the federal program.

In Jefferson City, a spokesman for the Missouri Department of Agriculture said a USDA official in Washington confirmed Hall's announcement by telephone. Gene Davis of the Missouri department's information office quoted the federal official as saying a letter of notification was on its way to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's parliament building, the Knesset, received a daily average of 10,000 visitors during the 1971 summer months. Among the tourists have been Arabs who received visas to visit relatives in Israeli-occupied territories.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Only one of every four newly eligible voters between 18 and 21 has registered to vote in Baltimore, according to the Board of Election Supervisors.

Of those who registered, 88 per cent said they were Democrats.

Senators Opposed To Pay Hike Delay Face Long Odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators trying to nullify President Nixon's postponement of a federal pay raise are maneuvering against admittedly heavy odds to win acceptance of a compromise.

In the Senate and in the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, moves were under way to permit government employes to get whatever pay raises are allowed in the private sector under the President's economic policies.

As part of his economic-stabilization program announced Aug. 15, Nixon ordered a sixmonth postponment of a 6 per cent pay raise, scheduled Jan. 1, for government employes and military personnel.

However, either the Senate or the House can veto the President's order. By a 207-174 vote on Monday, the House refused to do so. The Senate has until midnight Thursday to act.

Before the House vote, the White House said that if Congress caved in under pressures to override Nixon's order, "the inflationary consequences would be rapid, extensive and severe."

In the Senate, a resolution to veto the President's order has been introduced by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah. But Moss told newsmen its chances of adoption are very doubtful unless a compromise can be worked out.

A compromise he has proposed would keep pay raises for federal employes within whatever guidelines are established for private employes in Phase 2 of the President's economic program, expected to be announced within a few days.

Moss' bill is before the Post Office and Civil Service committee, along with another by Chairman Gale McGee, DWyo., that is similar in intent but would give the President more discretion in adjusting federal civilian and military pay.

The committee was unable to muster a quorum Tuesday to act on either bill, with the result that under Senate rules any legislation it approves cannot be brought up in the Senate on Thursday without unanimous consent.

This could upset what McGee and Moss said they hoped to do: get the Senate to veto Nixon's order with the understanding this would be followed by legislation limiting a government pay hike to the guidelines set for the private sector.

A separate move to achieve the same end was being undertaken by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., through an amendment to the military procurement bill now before the Senate.

Montgomerys Buy Control Of Enterprises

Joel Montgomery, who yesterday announced he and his wife have purchased "better than 50 per cent" of the stock of Himmelberger-Harrison Lumber Company said there will be "no major changes" in the company's operations.

Montgomery said the lumber company is a holding company that controls H & H Manufacturing of Morehouse, the State Bank of Morehouse and between 2,500 and 3.000 acres of farmland in Stoddard County.

The manufacturing company operates the Himmelberger-Harrison lumber mill in Morehouse. Dimension lumber for furniture manufacturing companies throught the United States is cut at the mill.

The company pioneered the use of gum wood for interior finish and furniture. It purchases a variety of lumber, cuts and kiln dries it to customers' specifications. Lumber processed by the company is issued almost entirely for furniture and cabinets.

Montgomery said he hopes to create and develope new businesses and to make the company "even more substantial than it is now."

Montgomery recently sold the former Idan-Ha Hotel of Cape Girardeau. The property, which is being rebuilt by Burton J. Gerhardt, the buyer, into an apartment complex, is across the street from the H and H Building.

The Himmelberger name has been associated with the development of agricultural lands and the rise of the hardwood industry in Southeast Missouri since 1879 when Isaac Himmelberger and his son, John H., began operating a sawmill at the village of Buffington, near Morehouse. The business known as the I. Himmelberger Co., continued for 10 years.

In 1890 John H. Himmelberger moved to Morehouse where he purchased a sawmill. The mill was merged with the Luce interests in 1895 and the company became known as the Himmelberger- Luce Land and Lumber co.

The old Morehouse mill was destroyed by fire in 1890 and was replaced by a larger facility. Another mill was erected in 1904 but was closed many years ago when the supply of virgin timber decreased.

Under an arrangement with the Luce heirs, the company acquired about 100,000 acres for lumber production. Logging was difficult in those days because dikes of the Little River Drainage District and other districts had not been built to protect the lowlands from Mississippi River floodwaters.

When the company's lumber activity was at its peak, after the late W. H. Harrison became associated with it in 1902, the business manufactured 40 million feet of lumber in one year.

The firm's name was changed to Himmelberger-Harrison Lumber Co. in 1902.

Following his father's death in 1900, John H. Himmelberger became president of the company. Later active management was left to his son, Harry I Himmelberger, who was vice president and general manager. He eventually became president of the board and held the position for 24 years.

His son, J.E. ("Jack") Himmelberger, became president of the two corporations - the lumber and manufacturing companies in 1955, when the father was elected board chairman. J. E. Himmelberger later also became chairman and continues to hold these positions under the new transaction.

Two Elected To State Legislature

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrat Vernon King of Excelsior Springs and Republican Morris Westfall of Halfway are the newest members of the Missouri House of Representatives.

King, a housing developer, captured the seat from the 83rd district Tuesday by defeating Republican Don Epps of Richmond, 1,975 votes to 1,544, based on unofficial final returns.

Westball collected 3,393 votes to 1,948 for Democrat Perry Lane of Buffalo in unofficial final returns, to succeed his father, R.E. Westball, as representative from the 140th district.

The elder Westfall's recent death necessitated the 140th district election. The seat won by King was vacant because of Democrat Dick Dale's resignation Sept. 1 to become general counsel for the Missouri Vankers Association.

In one of several local elections in Missouri and Kansas Tuesday, Independence, Mo., voters overwhelmingly rejected a proposed penny-a-gallon local gasoline tax. Unofficial final returns showed 1,796 votes in favor of the proposal, 9,159 against it.

At Richmond, Mo., a general obligation bond issue to provide funds for a municipal swimming pool was defeated.

School bond issues were rejected at Winfield and Minneapolis, Kan. The vote at Minneapolis was 300 in favor, 531 against a $1.65 million bond issue for a junior-senior high school. At Winfield, 2,150 votes were recorded in favor, 2,747 against a proposed $3.1 million bond issue for construction of a four-year high school.

Hirohito Heckled

LONDON (AP) — A British prisoner of the Japanese during World War II shouted abuse at Emperor Hirohito today as the Japanese monarch rolled through London in a horsedrawn carriage.

Police guarding the procession route and patrolling the rooftops watched the demonstrator warily but made no move to silence him. The emperor, solemn-faced, ignored the shouts.

The yelling incident, in a mixture of English and Japanese, flared as the emperor's gold-trimmed carriage approached the entrance to St. James Palace, where Hirohito went to meet foreign diplomats.

The demonstrator, who refused to give his name, told newsmen: "I was shouting out the orders that they used to shout at me when I was a prisoner of war in a Japanese camp. I was tortured for three months.

"I think it's disgracefui that our establishment should be showing hospitality to these people."

Cemetery Strike Ends

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cemetery workers have voted to end a four-month strike and burials resume today at 11 cemeteries just south of San Francsico.

The protracted walkout had drawn anguished protests from relatives of some of the 1,500 deceased who were left unburied.

Spokesmen for the cemetery union estimated it would take six weeks to complete the backlog of burials.

Mayor Joseph Alioto said union and management representatives forged a three-year contract agreement during a 15hour emergency session which ended Tuesday, but details were not released. Workers ratified the agreemunt Tuesday night in a 141-9 vote.

The cemetery workers had been on strike since June 3 against 10 cemeteries in suburban Colma and one in Palo Alto.

Ann Landers

Neighbors Won't Leave Her Alone

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been happily married for 16 years. A few weeks ago my husband blurted out something that has made me so miserable I can barely stand it. Out of a clear blue sky he said he had a confession to make. It seems that in 1959 when we lived in a dorm for married college students, he met another gal who also lived in our dorms--in, of all places, the supermarket. She had a large bag of groceries and he offered to drive her back to the dorm since she had no car. On an impulse they drove to the woods and had a 15-minute affair. He said he became physically ill afterward, (guilt, of course) and told her they must never do such a thing again. They never did.

The girl and her husband live 2,000 miles away but we have kept in touch through letters, cards and school reunions. I am so crushed by the knowledge that my husband did such a rotten thing to me that I want to telephone her and let her know I am now in possession of the facts.

My husband would prefer that I not call. We have agreed to abide by your decision.---Yuba City

Dear Yu: If you place the call you will accomplish the following:

a. Make your husband look like a loose-lipped jerk.

c. Fix it so you will never again be comfortable in the girl's presence.

d. Add about $10 to your phone bill.

Is it worth it?

Dear Ann Landers: I have never had the need to write to you before but I need you now. This letter is about neighbors. Ann, I moved into this lovely apartment several months ago and I love it. I DON'T want to move, but I might have to if people don't leave me alone.

The woman across the hall knocked on my door seven times last week. Not only is she a borrower, but she is mad at her psychiatrist and using me as a substitute. I told her I am not qualified, but she says, "All you have to do is listen. That's all he did and HE charged me $35 an hour."

The couple next door drink and they fight every night. The woman usually winds up here with a towel over her mouth or a piece of meat on her eye. Her husband then joins her, and they continue the fight in my living room. I don't need this. Then there's a man who lost his wife last year and he shows up at my door with a needle and thread (he can't thread it), or a recipe he can't understand. He is nice but a terrible pest.

Please tell me what to do? I am a prisoner in my own home. -- Oakland

Dear Oak: Have a one-way peephole put in your door. You can see out, but no one can see in. This device will enable you to decide whether or not you want to open the door. Even if your radio or TV is on, and the party knows you are at home, you are under no obligation to answer the door if you don't feel like it.

Confidential to Was It Funny Or Not: To ME, it was not funny, but then not all people agree on humor. I do not find humor in anything that is hurtful or degrading to another person. The person who can laugh at himself, in my opinion, possesses a beautiful sense of humor.

Give in or lose him. . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking and Petting--What Are The Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Preparing A Garden For Winter Will Pay Off In The Spring

NEW YORK — The approach of fall marks the beginning of a busy time for gardeners. A number of chores have to be tackled to put things in shape as Mother Nature buttons up and prepares for the long winter sleep.

Shade trees, particularly those that grow densely at the top, are pruned both for esthetic and safety reasons.

Revealing the trunk and branches makes a tree more attractive. It also "opens up" the tree and reduces wind resistance so winds can pass through more easily and prevent a tree from toppling during a storm.

Pruning is also necessary to keep branches out of utility wires and to remove dead branches that could give way and damage the house or endanger passers-by.

The easiest way to spot a dead branch is by the absence of leaves. So these branches should be removed before the leaves begin to fall and while the branches can still be easily identified.

Fall is also the best time for dropping dead trees.

The pruning operation can provide a winter-long supply of fire-wood. For convenience's sake, cut and store the wood for use while the weather is still pleasant.

With the trees taken care of, it's time to consider a general clean-up of the garden.

Cut back or pull out the old, bloomed-out plants. Most perennials die down to the ground, so they should be cut, too. And prune summer and fall blooming shrubs after they bloom. If you wait until spring to do this, some of the flowering wood will be lost.

Low growing perennials and winter annuals need mulching with straw or hay. A word of caution hers. Don't use leaves for this task. The leaves often pack and cause plants to suffocate.

Rose bushes and other tender plants also need winter protection. Put them in cold storage by placing hay or straw around the stems so they are not exposed to repeated freezing and thawing temperatures. This, and not cold, is what usually causes winter kill.

When the work is done, your garden will be neat all winter and, equally important, be ready to grow rapidly with the first rays of a warming spring sun.

Nixon And Girl Have Entanglement

GREENVILLE, Del. (AP) —A cute five-year-old girl got her long, blonde tresses entangled in a button on the jacket of President Nixon's suit Tuesday night and, for a time, it seemed a tossup whether she would lose a hank of hair or he a button.

Nixon and petite Page Evans managed to disentangle themselves and the young lady assured the President she had not been hurt.

The incident occurred when Nixon made a flying visit here to meet with Republican fund-raisers. Miss Evans is the daughter of Thomas Evans Jr., cochairman of the Republican National Committee.

Nixon asked Mrs. Evans if the family's three children ever see their father.

"They will in this picture," she replied as her daughter snuggled up to the President.

Sponsored jointly by the Music Department at Murray State and the First District Kentucky Music Educators Association, the festival is the first of three which will be held on the campus during the current school year. Gearld Sledd, music director at Mayfield High School, is president of the FDKMEA.

"This is not a competitive festival," said Leonard D. Whitmer, the assistant chairman, "But a one-day group activity to encourage young string players."

Rehearsals for both orchestras are scheduled to begin at 8:45 a.m. The "A" orchestra will rehearse in the University Auditorium, while the "B" orchestra will practice in the Richard Farrell Recital Hall in the new Fine Arts Center.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Old Mower Now Is Laundry Cart

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—What can be done to keep carpet runners from turning up at the ends? I do hope someone can give me an answer.—BERNICE

DEAR POLLY—I have two Pet Peeves. When a company sends a sales agreement for a purchase they print the agreement, plus the guarantee and terms on the coupon which you fill out and mail for the special bargain. However, once this is mailed you have no way of proving what the sales contract said or guaranteed.

The stores where I shop all prepackage their vegetables, fruits, etc., in family-sized packages. They do not seem to realize there are hundreds of people who live alone and cannot possibly use these portions before at least half is spoiled. I feel sure their sales would increase if they also packaged small portions, medium-sized and family portions. Of course, one can ask for a smaller amount but if they prepackage items for convenience, why not for the customer's convenience.—MRS. K. N. R.

DEAR POLLY — Our old lawn mower was beyond repair so my husband removed the motor, blade, etc. I am pregnant and need exercise so instead of driving to the coin laundry I put my baskets of clothes on the mower base and push it the two blocks. The kids also like to get an occasional ride on it.—MRS. I. P. S.

DEAR POLLY—If customers pushed grocery carts left in parking lots back to the store when they go shopping, many a nicked car would be avoided and carts would always be available.—MARGE

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. L. V. B.—An easy way to remove the silver backing from an old and damaged mirror so the glass can be used as a tabletop is to apply salt moistened with vinegar. Let it stand awhile and the silver comes right off when rubbed with an old soft cloth.

Girls, don't forget to record the number of rolls of wallpaper needed for a room on the back of a picture hung in the newly papered room. Will be a time-saver when it needs redoing.—BESSIE

DEAR READERS—I found repeating the application of salt and vinegar helped in removing the silver and mine required the use of a small sharp knife for careful scraping off.—POLLY

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Welfare and SS--- One Bill or Two?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, wants badly to separate proposed important Social Security changes from controversial welfare reform in the bill called H.R. 1. He would delay welfare action while pushing Social Security through this fall.

Even if he should succeed in this, however, the word from the House side is that Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills will put welfare features right back in the bill when it comes to conference.

It is Mills' continuing conviction that final passage of welfare reform is dependent upon linking it to the Social Security "sweetener."

Long, on the other hand, is so exercised over what he considers the vast catalogue of welfare abuses that he wants lots of time to tinker with reform proposals.

After the senator's speech in mid-September to the National Governors' Conference at San Juan, Puerto Rico, he campaigned among the governors to try to build grass roots support for separating welfare and Social Security in the pending bill.

He promised some governors he would send them pertinent materials on the welfare issue, with the evident hope they would publicly urge slower handling of reform to make sure abuses could be dealt with. There is no clear indication how many governors may respond to Long's pleas.

President Nixon may have played into Long's hands when he urged in his Aug. 15 economic speech that the effective date of welfare reform be delayed a year. Though the President later said he did not want to delay action on the proposals in Congress, Long's purposes benefit from the wide impression that Nixon is in no immediate hurry.

If the net effect of the delaying maneuvers is to endanger the prospect of H.R. 1's passage this year, a strong possibility exists that some lawmakers may try to attach the Social Security amendments in the bill to some other sure-to-pass measure—so the changes can take effect in 1972. That tactic worked in March, when more limited but urgently desired Social Security changes whistled through as a rider on other legislation.

The new modifications would add around $3.685 billion in Social Security payments for the elderly, the disabled and the widowed in the first full year of operation. Some $2.1 billion of that would be an across-the-board boost in basic benefits, payable next June but retroactive to January. More than 27 million Americans would get the latter increase.

In addition, many changes in Medicare would be introduced, most with the aim of providing tighter cost controls on a program whose financial burden is rising alarmingly.

As an indication of what that burden is doing, the Social Security Administration is announcing that beginning in January the Medicare recipient will have to pay a larger sum before he can start having his hospital bills paid by the government.

This so-called "hospital deductible" figure is presently fixed at $60, deemed heretofore to be the equivalent of one day's charge for a hospital room. The boosting of this figure reflects the painful upward spiral in hospital costs.

It is interesting to note that daily hospital charges are still rising, even as the average length of stay in a hospital is declining for the Medicare patient. In the fiscal year ended June 30, that average figure dropped to 12.2 days per stay, as against 12.9 the previous year. There was also a decline in the 1970 fiscal year from fiscal 1969.

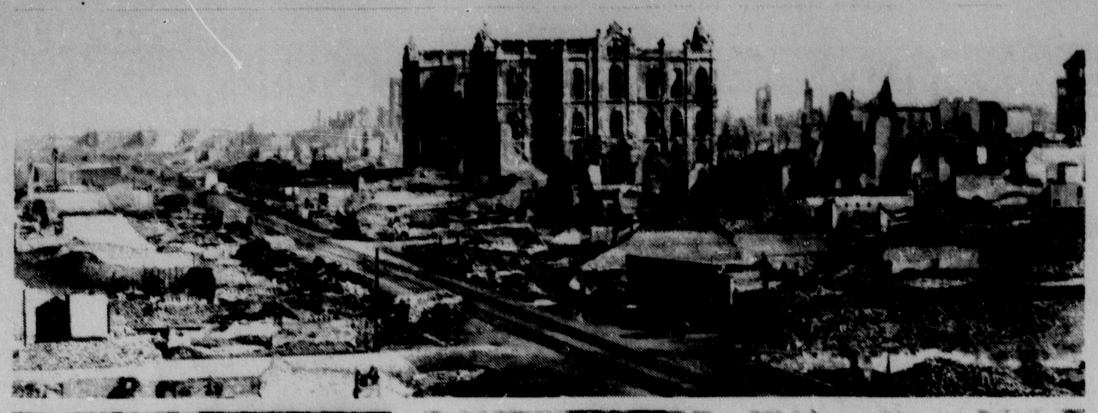
Ruling Opens Loophole In Drunk Driving Law

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — An opinion issued by Atty. Gen. John Danforth has opened some loopholes in Missouri's drunken driving statute, Dee Wampler, Greene County prosecuting attorney, said today.

Wampler said the attorney general maintained no law enforcement authorities in the state can authorize hospital employes to draw blood samples from injured drivers suspected of being intoxicated.

The county prosecutor said this decision would leave authorities with no accurate method for determining the alcoholic content in the blood of suspects hospitalized with injuries.

Wampler said he would seek support in the next session of the legislature for a law that would require an injured suspect to submit to blood sampling when hospitalized.



The Great Chicago Fire

It was 100 years ago, Oct. 8, 1971, that the first few flames began clawing at the inside of a small cowshed on a quiet Chicago street. They were the beginning of one of the most spectacular disasters in history, the Great Fire, which lasted three days, killing 300 people and destroying the heart of Chicago, then a city of more than 330,000 people. No photographs taken during the fire itself have ever been found but drawings, such as those immediately above and at left, show the terror that gripped the burning city. When the fire was over, little was left, as the photo at top shows, but the city rebuilt quickly, eventually evolving into the modern metropolitan giant shown below, dominated by the sky-piercing John Hancock Center. White House Says Press Too Sensitive To Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says the press is too sensitive to criticism by government officials like that recently made by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

"In well over two years, I don't think there was any instance that the administration showed anything but respect for the free press," presidential press secretary Ro8 Ziegler said Tuesday.

The issue came up when newsmen questioned Ziegler about American Civil Liberties Union complaints that Agnew's statements Monday in Anaheim, Calif., about coverage of the recent Attica, N.Y., prison riot constituted intimidation of the press. Zeigler said he would not comment on what Agnew said, but he backed the vice president's "right to express himself."

He said the government should be open to criticism and the press should also.

He declined to comment on whether the administration would favor legislation to protect reporters' sources. A Senate subcommittee has been holding freedom-of-the-press hearings and has been trying to get government officials to testify about press-government relations.

Nixon's director of communications, Herbert G. Klein, refused an invitation to testify on grounds he is a member of the immediate staff of the President.

Circus Fan Tells Of Hobby

Earl Allen, a circus enthusiast for almost a half century, spoke to the Optimist club today at the Holiday Inn. He told members how he became involved with the "greatest entertainment on earth."

"I was born at Cairo and after the turn of the century the city had as many as 50 passenger trains coming through, and naturally it included circus trains," he said.

"The tent shows begin in the 1880s and continued until the 1930s. I was never associated with a circus but became interested in the high type performers with them.

Today Allen lists more than 1,500 circus performers as well as professional men and women who joined the circus fan, and hardly a week passes but what people drop by the Allen home and look over his 60-year circus history that includes all of the large ones including films on Buffalo Bill's traveling group.

"I can also tell your club today, that the stage performance you are sponsoring Saturday afternoon and evening, will have some of teh best attractions in the nation," he said. I received a telephone call last week advising me to tell the Optimist club that we will arrive at noon Saturday from Springfield, with almost all new acts."

Two Breakins At Dexter

DEXTER - Two breakins occurred Saturday night or early Sunday morning, police reported.

Three stereo tapes and 17 gallons of gas were taken from Northside Shell station on highway 25. Entry was gained by knocking out a window to get a key to unlock the front door.

Chewing gum and cigarettes were taken in a breakin of Hester's Cafe. A back window was used to gain entry.

Before You Buy

By Margaret Dana

People everywhere these days seem to be talking about mobile homes -- how fast their production seems to be growing into a huge industry, how different they are from the old-time "trailer," and how well they fit into many urgent needs. All kinds of families are choosing them for all sorts of reasons. And I have had a number of inquiries asking for guidance in selecting the right mobile home, for information on financeing its purchase, and about the wisdom of investing in the ownership and management of a mobile home park.

There is not space available to include all the good and useful information that is on hand, so I shall provide only a few basic and urgent facts and give the sources of others.

To begin with, I think we may safely accept the fact that mobile homes are here to stay. There may not be a continuing stupendous growth for the industry as in recent years, but there can be no doubt that our national housing shortage must turn to pre-built housing for help. Last year mobile home sales reached $5 billion, and they are still rising. So it would seem that either a good mobile home or a good mobile home park is a practical and sensible investment.

Let's define "mobile home."

It is not a recreational vehicle or camper. It is a factory-built year-round home, transported to the home site by specially trained haulers, and then settled on a prepared foundation and connected with the necessary utilities. It is true that the mobile home can later be moved on its own wheels to a new location if desired, but it is not meant to be hauled behind the family car.

Mobile homes come in three primary sizes. They are:

The "Single-wide" — 12 feet by 65 feet, costing from $4,000 to $10,000, depending on equipment and interior.

The "Expandable" — same size as the "Single-Wide but with an addition that folds into the home when it is being transported, but is drawn out when the site is reached. This adds from 60 to 100 square feet to the space. Cost is from $8,000 to $12,000.

The "Double-Wide" —made up of two "Single-Wide" units, built and hauled separately, but joined at the site to make a large living unit. Cost is from $10,000.

Interiors come in various styles. There are differing arrangements of living room, dining room or dinette, kitchen with appliances, one or two bathrooms, one to three of even four bedrooms, storage closets, and an automatic heating system and water heater. Also, virtually all mobile homes today are completely furnished.

Financing a mobile home is becoming easier as the Federal Housing Administration, savings and loan associations, banks, etc., have liberalized their regulations. One asset is that attorney fees and title search are not needed for mobile home buying as they are for ordinary property buying.

But, to make sure your mobile home will not only perform satisfactorily but be suitable for mortgage loans, your first basic guide is to choose one that has been certified by the maker to meet or exceed American Standard A119.1 for Mobile Homes, developed by the American National Standards Institute, a nonprovit organization devoted to co-ordinating and developing sound product standards. If the manufacturer gets this certification, the sign will be a large silver seal so stating and placed near the door of the mobile home. Seventy per cent of the manufacturers subscribe to this standard.

For concise further information on mobile homes the Council of Better Business Bureaus in cooperation with the Mobile Home Manufacturers Association has prepared a leaflet, titled "Mobile Homes -- How th Choose, Where to Put, How to Finance." For a free copy send your request to me with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Fire Prevention Week is October 3-9
"KEEP SAFE AS WELL AS WARM"

As outside temperatures drop, indoor fire dangers rise:

This is the warning from Fire Chief Webb who reminds householders that cold weather always bring an increase in the number of destructive fires.

"When home heating systems are pushed hard in cold weather, any weakness in the equipment or installation may show up", the Chief explains. . .

"Avoid possible disaster by having your home heating equipment checked and repaired now, before the first cold snap of the season. And remember that a clean, tight chimney means fuel saving -- and thus money saving--As well as fire safety."

If you use portable room heaters, says the Chief, make sure they are in first- class operating condition and place them so they are not in the path of emergency exit routes, so they can not accidently be bumped or overturned, and so they are well away from walls, clothes racks, curtains, furniture, bedding and other household items which burn easily.

Children and elderly persons should be especially careful around room heaters, Chief Webb warns, and every family should have a fire escape plan, well worked out and rehearsed, for use in case of fire.

"It's good to be warm, but essential to be safe", is the Chief's watchword as thermometers drop.

Bloody Case Against Vera

THE CASE OF THE DOGGED PATIENT

Vera, involved in an automobile accident, had presence of mind, but absence of body would have been even better. For, while she was able to avoid certain death, her injureis were so severe that upon arrival at a hospital, it was determined that her survival depended upon blood transfusions.

Vera's religion, however, prohibited such medical procedures and she vehemently and doggedly objected to such transfusions.

"If you're not given one," she was warned, "your chances of surviving are about as remote as the planet Mars."

"Give me liberty or give me death," was Vera's answer, "but don't give me a transfusion. It's against my religion."

The argument quickly ended up in court where Vera insisted that her Constitutional freedom of religion should be respected.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you impose the blood transfusion over Vera's objection?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that an adult person can be required to submit to blood transfusions necessary to save that person's life, even though it would be contrary to religious principles, since there is no Constitutional right to choose to die. Religious beliefs is not wholly immune from governmental restraint. (Based upon a 1971 New Jersey Supreme Court Decision)

EARL BRASWELL

Contrary to fable, the water is not stored in the hump (which is pure fat) nor in any one part of the camel's body. The camel manages by strict economy -- for instance, it does not sweat until absolutely necessary. During cool nights, a camel's body temperature drops to about 93 degree F. During the heat of the day, this will rise to 105 degree F., before sweating begins. The hairy coat of the animal helps insulate against heat. The urine is also scanty.

The water refiner also has been designed to adapt to extra demands made on your household water. Although it's compact (taking only a space 18" x20") it fits anywhere in your home and will soften, filter and refine up to 7000 gallons of water per week, or on a schedule to meet your requirements. Wouldn't it be wise to trade tap water for refined water?

Deaths

RUSSELL COUEY

MALDEN - Russell T. Couey, 90, 106 West Park, died Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. at his home. He was formerly a resident of Sikeston and had lived in Malden 20 years.

He was born Dec. 25, 1880 in Colorado. He was a retired salesman.

On Oct. 8, 1952 he married Florena E. Wallace Morris, who survives. Other survivors include one brother, Eugene Couey of Sedalia, and one stepson, Paul Morris of St. Louis.

Services were today at 4 p.m. in the Landess Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. O. K. Posey officiating.

Burial was in the Park Cemetery.

JOHN HUGHES

John R. Hughes, 75, route four, died at 7:25 a.m. today in the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

He was born March 5, 1896.

GERALDINE CARSON

CHARLESTON -- Services for Mrs. Geraldine Howlett Carson, 78, who died Tuesday, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in McMikle Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. William H. Mathae, pastor of the United Methodist church, officiating.

Burial will be in I. O. O. F. cemetery.

WALTER CLARK

YAKIMA, Wash: Walter Clark, 58, a former Sikeston, Mo., area resident, died Friday night in a hospital in Yakima, where he had lived 20 years.

Among his survivors are two brothers, Elbert and Webster Clark, both of Sikeston.

The body will returned to Springsdale, Ark. for burial.

MAYME MARSHALL

Services for Miss Mayme Marshall, 86, who died Tuesday, will be Thursday at 2 p.m. in her home at 615 North Kingshighway with the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating.

The body will be at the home after 5 p.m. today.

Burial will be in City cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Jean Klein, Tommy Marshall, G. B. Greer, III, Dick Pongate, Charles G. Lindley and Benny Marshall.

BOSS HAD TO PAY

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP) — Keith Sisk, city water and sanitation commissioner, received a notice to pay an overdue water bill or have his water shut off.

Sisk, who said he was unaware of the overdue bill for his home, promptly paid the $49.

Fire Razes Farm House

MARSTON — Fire at 6 a.m. Tuesday destroyed an unoccupied frame dwelling on Highway 61 south owned by George Heavener.

Marshal James Ferguson said the house was engulfed with flames when firemen arrived.

Heavener, who lives in Sikeston, was reported preparing to move into the house. Some furniture was destroyed.

Nixon To Disclose Phase 2 Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will disclose his Phase 2 economic program in a live television-radio address to the nation at 7:30 p.m. EDT Thursday.

The White House made the announcement today.

Nixon was spending much of the day studying recommendations from his Cost of Living Council on policies to go into effect when the current wageprice freeze expires Nov. 13.

Senate Rejects War Ultimatum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected today 60 to 25 an amendment calling for total U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam by Feb. 3 unless new presidential elections are held.

It voted down the proposal of Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, DN.M., as it headed for passage of the $21-billion military procurement authorization bill.

Final action was scheduled in midafternoon.

Montoya's amendment also provides that all U.S. troops should be withdrawn in six months even if a new Vietnamese election is held.

The Senate also is due to vote for the third, and presumably last, time on a proposal by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., in effect banning import of strategically important chrome ore from Rhodesia.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., may seek a vote on his amendment to overturn President Nixon's six-month freeze on federal pay raises. Mathias would give government workers the same increases as the civilian sector under guidelines expected as part of the next phase of the President's economic program.

Final action was scheduled on the big arms bill, which once more has survived Senate floor consideration without any significant reductions of major weapons programs.

In major votes Tuesday, the Senate rejected 64 to 17 an amendment by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to halt U.S. air attacks over Indochina, and three proposals by Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., to provide extra funds for improving the major U.S. offensive-missile systems—the land-based Minuteman and the sea-based Poseidon.

No. 1 Cont. from Page 1

He said the defeat was not overwhelming and predicted the plan could carry the next time around if it is presented when more city voters turn out and if it carries built in safeguards against dishonesty or corruption.

Greenberg blamed religious influences, "scare tactics" and "strangely timed" disclosures of irregularities at St. Louis race tracks for Tuesday's defeat. Thousands of Missourians regularly bet on the ponies at two Illinois tracks across the Mississippi River from St. Louis.

The big victory for the water pollution bond issue was called the greatest thing that ever happened for the clean water campaign in Missouri.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had said that if it carried heavily— as it did in all parts of the state—it might affect his approach to his proposed $700 million s transportation bond issue.

He said the result showed that a bond issue can be passed in Missouri.

"I think it puts to rest," he told the Associated Press, "the feelings some members of the legislature had that a bond issue couldn't be passed in Missouri.

He declined to go further in his immediate post election comment because, he noted, the transportation bond issue carries controversial provision for state aid to mass transit systems and airports.

With 99 per cent of the votes in, including all of the metropolitan areas, the water pollution bonds were approved 406,476 for and 132,196 against.

It will be up to the 1972 legislature to decide how and when the 25-year bonds will be issued.

Jack K. Smith, executive secretary of the state water pollution board, said his staff would go to work today on the 25 pending sewage plant projects that can now be built at an estimated total cost of $40 million.

He said passage of the proposal means Missouri will be able to meet the federal government's 1975 deadline for secondary treatment plants in all cities along the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

It also means, he said, the 240 smaller communities in Missouri without any sewers or treatment plants will be able to get federal and state matching funds to clean up their local problems.

Under the current formula, estimated to produce about $600 million altogether over the next few years, the federal government provides 55 per cent on most projects, the state 25 per cent and local communities 20 per cent. No new state tax will be required to retire the bonds.

If the bonds had not been approved, the federal share would have been cut to one-third, with a corresponding increase in local costs financed from property taxes.

Another proposal that affects many Missouri cities was the extension of broad home rule powers to charter cities over 5,000.

The limit now is 10,000 and the cities have to run to the legislature for specific grants of authority if they want to solve all the local problems involved in fast growing areas.

Now they will be able to do anything they wish, so long as it is not barred by their charters, by legislative acts or by the state constitution.

With 99 per cent of the votes counted, the unofficial tabulation showed 350,629 for the proposal and 167,745 against it.

The one amendment that had the word "tax" in the ballot title carried by the smallest margin.

It will allow second class counties to continue to levy a maximum property tax of 50 cents for five years until they reach full first class status, when the maximum drops to 35 cents on the $100 assessed valuation.

Right now it affects only Clay and Greene Counties, but would cover other second class counties which reach the transitional stage later.

With 99 per cent of the votes tallied, the unofficial count showed 296,352 for the plan and 211,454 against it.

Under this proposal, all veterans will get a 5 per cent better grade on state merit system examinations and disabled veterans will get a 10 per cent break.

The old law was that a veteran had to be a Missourian when he entered the service to get this preferential treatment.

With 99 per cent of the precincts counted, the tally was 340,708 for it and 179,500 against it.

Trends were established early in the tabulating and held up throughout the night in one of the fastest counts ever, thanks to a 1969 law that requires election judges to get their votes in to county clerks and election boards within two hours after the polls close at 7 p.m.

The Junior Achievement Movement was founded by Horace A. Moses of Springfield, Mass., and incorporated in 1926, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Marinus, a pious stonecutter, is said to have founded San Marino, world's smallest republic, about A.D. 300 as a Christian refuge from Roman tyranny.

Dogs Host Improved Tribe

The Sikeston Bulldogs will try to stay in the thick of the northern division race Friday night. They take on the co-leading Kennett Indians at public school stadium. The tribe shares the league lead with Perryville.

The Bulldogs have a 1-1- conference record while the Indians sport a 2-0 record.

"Kennett is improved over last year and they are an entirely different team," Coach Bill Priday of the Bulldogs noted.

Their offense is led by senior quarterback David Tippen, who scored two touchdown last week against Paragould, Ark., on runs of 43 and six yards. Tippen is the kicker.

Kennett plays a basic 5-3 defense which has been effective this season.

If four games the Indians have allowed only 18 points for the opposition while shutting out two opponents.

The Indians already hold conference wins over Jackson and Poplar Bluff, allowing only six points against Jackson and shutting out the powerful Mules.

Coach Priday will counter on offense with Junior Bill Colwick who seems to be improving with every game at quarterback and running Back Chester Yarber, who has been breaking for long gainers in the last two ball games for the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs must cut down on costly fumbles that plagued them in the second half against Memphis Fairly Friday night. The India have displayed the ability to take advantage of the other teams mistakes.

Coach Priday indicated that the Bulldogs will use a multiple defense with four to six man lines.

The defense will be led by such stalwarts as Bo Ralph and Brian Montgomery.

Sikeston must win this game to have a chance at the conference crown while Kennett, should they lose, would still have a shot at the title. A win would certainly make the outlook bright.

The Bulldogs will go with the same lineup as in the last two ball games. No serious injuries occurred during the battle in Memphis.

Birds Sweep Series; Await N.L. Champs

OAKLAND (AP) — The champagne corks exploded in the Baltimore Orioles's dressing room. They were the last shots fired in the West against the Oakland A's.

Under a champagne shampoo, the Baltimore Orioles celebrated their 5-3 conquest of Oakland Tuesday that gave the Eastern champions the American League pennant.

"There's not a better team around, nor has there been for several years," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams after his Western champion A's lost their third in a row to the powerful Orioles.

He might be right. The Orioles' sweep gave the defending world champions their third straight pennant. And, each time, they've swept the Western titlist.

"They've got stars and superstars, youth and experience, great pitching tne great fielding," said Oakland's Reggie Jackson, who slugged two home runs Tuesday. ' They've got everything."

The Orioles, indeed, did have everything Tuesday. They had the Robinson boys, Brooks and Frank, in fine shape. And they had slim Jim Palmer pitching a gritty game.

"Palmer was the story today," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He didn't have his good stuff, but he sure gave a heart-and-gut performance. Wasn't he really something in the ninth when he struck out three in a row?"

Palmer scattered seven hits and pitched out of several jams before finishing strong at the end.

"Palmer was having trouble getting his breaking stuff over in the middle innings and he threw almost all fastballs," said Jackson.

"I was tired in the second inning," said the 25-year-old Palmer, but apparently not too tired to pitch a Baltimore pennant-clincher for the fourth time in his career.

Ellie Hendricks' long fly ball drove in the first run from third base in the first inning. But Jackson pulled the A's into a temporary 1-1 tie with a 400foot-plus home run into the left center field stands in the third.

A late inning shot by the A's power hitter didn't change the outcome.

Then Brooks Robinson delivered two runs in the fifth with a bases-loaded single. Lefthanded swinger Hendricks was intentionally walked by the right-handed Segui, who preferred to pitch to the righthanded Brooks Robinson in a bases-loaded situation.

Did it bother Robinson that Segui showed him less respect? "Heck, no," said the great Baltimore third baseman. "If I was him, I would have rather pitched to me."

"The only thing on my mind was: 'Boy, if I could only get a hit with everyone back home watching on television.' I said, 'boy, you've got to do it.'"

He did. And it gave the Orioles a 3-1 lead that Sal Bando cut to one run with a towering home run to left in the sixth.

But the one run was as close as the fallen A's were to come.

Frank Robinson slugged a run-scoring double in the seventh and later came home on a wild pitch to give Baltimore its final runs.

Despite the sweep which gave the Orioles a 9-0 record in playoff games, Weaver scoffed at dynasty talk.

"Heck, there's not much of a difference between the top ball clubs," said the dynamic, little skipper. "There's not that much difference between the Orioles and the A's."

Coaches' Comments

PERRYVILLE — The undefeated Pirates will have their hands full Saturday night as they take on Brentwood high school which is the number one rated small football team in the St. Louis area. Brentwood is undefeated having beaten John Burroughs, Country Day, and Maplewood.

Country Day was rated number one until Brentwood handed it a 27-0 whipping.

Coach Terry Smith said: "They have three good backs and have speed and quickness."

Mark Gotto will once again lead the Pirates' attack at quarterback.

EAST PRAIRIE — Coach Ed McWilliams' Eagles will face a much improved Dexter Bearcat team Friday night when the two teams tangle in a southern division football game at East Prairie.

"Offensively, they're no tougher than Portageville or other teams we've faced," the coach said. "Defensively, they're very strong," commented coach McWilliams. "We're going to have to get our offense together to be in the game."

DEXTER — "We're twice the team we were at the start of the season and there's no comparison in the two teams."

These were the words of coach Clyde Vaughn of the Bearcats, who have rolled over their last two opponents in the southern division and hold a 2-1 mark in conference football play.

Senior Quarterback David Mathis seems to have found the passing arm he displayed last year as he pitched for three touchdowns in last week rout of Hayti.

Dexter will have to prepare for the breakaway running of speedster Annise Davis of East Prairie Friday night. Davis is a threat to go all the way on any play. The EPHS speedster does most of the running for extra points.

Freshman Gridders Host Cape Tonight

Sikeston high school's freshman football team will kickoff its season tonight at Public School Stadium against the Cape Girardeau Central Frosh at 7 p.m. tonight.

The greenies were scheduled to open last week at Paducah, but a disturbance at the Sikeston school forced postponement of the game. It will be re-scheduled.

Volleyball Record Set

SPRINGFIELD , Mo. (AP) --One weekend sport score you may have missed:

Volleyball at Springfield East 7,003, West 6,827

Time of game: 144 hours

The participants - a mixture of some 700 Springfield residents and Southwest Missouri State College students - claim that last statistic as a world record for continuous volleyball play.

Dave Bennett, campus minister of the Baptist Student Union, which sponsored the match, said the six full days of play which ended at midnight Saturday broke the record of 125 hours shared by Southwest Missouri and two Seattle teams.

Bennett said the participants persevered through rain, a variety of minor injuries, one power failure in the middle of the night, and suggestions from sleepy neighbors that they keep the noise down.

Auto Tour Open At Mingo

PUXICO --A 25 mile tour route around the Mingo National Wildlife Refuge will be open Sunday afternoon during October and November according to Refuge Manager Jerry Clawson.

The self guided tour starts at refuge headquarters one and ½ miles north of Puxico on route 51.

It takes about two hours . Individuals may enter the route from noon on but must be off the trail by dark.

The tour offers an opportunity to see the fall colors and see wildlife. Fall colors usually are at their best about the third week in October. Ducks and geese begin arriving in early October and reach peak numbers in the third week in November.

Visitors often see deer and turkeys and occasionally catch a glimpse of a bobcat.

Clawson suggested visitors bring binoculars and a camera and noted that the best time to see wildlife is in the late afternoon.

Angeles Trade Alex For Vada

ANAHEIM (AP) — Ale Johnson, the suspended outfielder who led the American League in hitting in 1970, has been traded by the California Angels to Cleveland for the Indians' problem outfielder, Vada Pinson.

The Angels also sent along catcher Jerry Moses, fulfilling his request to be traded, and Tuesday's deal also cost Cleveland pitcher Alan Foster and infielder-outfielder Frank Baker.

Johnson, who hit .329 two seasons ago, was suspended without pay in June when Angel management said he wasn't hustling. Through the Major League Players' Association, he filed a grievance and won suspended pay (about $29,000) on grounds he was emotionally distrubed and should have been placed on the team's disabled list.

At 28, Johnson moves to his fifth major league club—after Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati and California—in seven years.

By telephone from his Detroit home, Johnson said:

"This is a great challenge and I like challenges. I can't wait for the season to start. I could say a lot of things about the Angels, but they wouldn't be good for me or good for baseball."

Pinson, 33, had productive years at Cincinnati and St. Louis before he was traded to the Indians in 1969. In his 13th year in the majors, he hit .264 with 11 home runs and 35 runs batted in.

Like Johnson, he asked to be traded. He claimed Cleveland failed to fulfill salary promises for 1971.

State Fame Board To Induct Jenkins

COLUMBIA — Darold Jenkins, all American center on Missouri's 1941 Sugar Bowl team, is the newest member of Missouri's Sports Hall of Fame, secretary- treasurer Don Faurot announced today.

Now an assistant counsel with the state highway commission in Kansas City, Jenkins was selected by a vote of the state's sportswriters and sportscasters. Along with two other 1971 choices yet to be named, the former football standout from Higginsville, Mo. will be officially honored at an awards dinner here on Nov. 6.

That dinner following the Mizzou- Oklahoma game will be held in the Tiger hotel starting at 6 p.m. Tickets for the social hour and dinner are $7.50 each. They may be obtained by contacting: Don Faurot, Alumni Office, Jesse Hall, Columbia, Mo.

Jenkins captained Faurot's '41 Tigers -- his first Split T team that lost 2-0 to Fordham in the Sugar bowl but was often acclaimed as the veteran coach's finest squad. The burley center- linebacker was named to 16 to 21 first-team all-America selections that year.

A wartime commitment as an Eighth Air Force pilot, involving also 15½ months as a prisoner of war, prevented Jenkins from playing professional football. He returned to Mizzou after the war, obtaining his law degree in 1951. He now makes his home in Independence, Mo.

It was also disclosed by Ron Jaynes of the Daily Standard, a member of the Hall of Fame's board of directors, that two Southeast Missouri coaches names will appear on the 1972 ballot, which will be sent to newspaper, radio and television sports directors next season.

Kenny Knox, famed Southeast Missouri State College coach at Cape Girardeau and undefeated high school coach at Sikeston high school, joins with Arnold Ryan, coach of many SEMO high schools and a coach of the famed early 40s Puxico high school teams, will be on next years ballot.

Mizzou Faces Best

COLUMBIA, Mo. — To a man, Missouri's scheming football Tigers have to be thinking big this week.

Nebraska's awesome Cornhuskers are in town Saturday for a football frolic in Memorial Stadium. They are the defending national champions, unbeaten in their last 23 outings. They occupy the No. 1 collegiate pedestal, having disposed of four 1971 victims with ridiculous ease -- Oregon, Minnesota, Texas A & M, and Utah State.

Hey, just a minute! No requiems, please. Don't tell the Tigers that it's a gross mismatch. They won't buy that line.

Listen to Scott Sodergren, the junior center from Jefferson City, who keynotes the squad's attitude:

"I already know I'm gonna be higher 'n a kite. I feel great. It's never entered my mind that we're gonna lose."

Missou rooters will toast that positive approach, but Onofrio's appraisal of Saturday's foe is more professional and dispassionate.

"This is the finest offensive and defensive Nebraska team since I've been here (14 years)," says the Missouri coach. "They are an ideal type of team -- well-balanced, and can do a lot of things."

Curiously, the Huskers current string dates from a 17-7 loss to Mizzou in Memorial Stadium two years ago. John Brown, a sophomore defensive end that day, butted quarterback Jerry Tagge, forcing a fumble that Brown covered on Nebraska's 16 just before halftime. Terry McMillan's eight-yard scoring pass to end Tom Shryock sent Missouri to the locker room with a 14-0 cushion.

Tagge, of course, is the skilful conductor of Devaney's attack. The 215-pound senior from Green Bay, Wis., leads the Big Eight's passers with a 66-per cent completion mark and six touchdown pegs. Yet, he shares top billing with Van Brwonson, a slender 185-pound senior, in Nebraska's uniquely-successful tandem quarterback scheme.

Naturally, backs like scampering Johnny Rodgers -- the league's top pass-catcher and punt-rebuttal man -- and Jeff Kinney at tailback don't hurt Devaney's image as the nation's winningest coach. And, rookie fullback Bill Olds - smashing along at an 8.4 -yard rushing clip -- has been a stout fellow.

On defense, Nebraska's spoilers are led by tackle Larry Jacobson and end Willie Harper. The Cornhuskers dominate the circuit in total defense and scoring defense.

Ol' Mizzou comes off a blundering loss to Army -- a game in which the Tigers moved the football for 380 total yards, but sputtered woefully within easy scoring range. Obviously, the Missouri offense can ill-afford such wasted effort Saturday.

Onofrio gets back two starters -- split end John Henley and slotback Mike Fink -- whose leg ailments kept them off the Army travel roster. Mike Farmer, out since the Stanford opener with a mashed hand, should be ready to resume punting.

Tailbacks Jack Bastable and Bruce Berry lamed ankes at West Point -- but Bastable's re-injury was apparently minor, and thy 190-pound junior will strart. Berry, a shifty rookie, looks doubtful.

A record 62,000 or 63,000 for this series in Columbia will watch the two rivals meet for the 65th time. The Cornhuskers hold a 33-28 edge --- with 3 games tied.

Can Any Team Dethrone Bucks?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willis Reed of New York and Jerry West of Los Angeles, a pair of crippled superstars, hold the keys to their teams chances of beating Milwaukee's defending champions for the National Basketball Association title this season.

Reed, the Knicks, captain and center, and West, the Lakers' prolific scoring guard both underwent knee operations following the 1970-71 season. How well they have recuperated will help determine how far their clubs can go this season which begins Oct. 12.

Reed, the league's Most Valuable Player when the Knicks won their first league championship in 1969-70, played with two bad knees and an aching shoulder in last season's playoffs. But he was not as effective as usual, and the Knicks were upset by the Baltimore Bullets in the semifinals.

West never even got into the playoffs—although the Lakers did. He was injured March 3 in a game against Buffalo and missed the rest of the season.

The Lakers will start this season with their three superstars—Wilt Chamberlain, West and Elgin Baylor—together again. Baylor was sidelined virtually all of last season with an injured Achilles tendon. Los Angeles also will have a new coach—Bill Sharman, who guided Utah to the American Basketball Association title — as the Lakers seek to repeat as Pacific Dvision championships.

The Knicks, aiming for their second consecutive Atlantic Division crown, have obtained veteran Jerry Lucas from the Golden State Warriors as insurance in case Reed's knee gives way.

New York's toughest opposition in the Atlantic Division should come from Philadelphia and Boston. Philadelphia is led by Billy Cunningham, a member of the All-NBA first team for three consecutive years; 21 point scorer Archie Clark and ageless Hal Greer, who joined the 20,000-point club last season.

Veteran John Havlicek, second in the league in scoring, fourth in assists, tops in minutes played and a first team All-Star, heads an otherwise young and improving Boston club.

Buffalo, the other Atlantic Division team, has added 7-1 rookie Elmore Smith and veterans Walt Hazzard and Jerry Chambers in a trade with Atlanta.

The renamed Golden State Warriors, still located in San Francisco but playing their home games in Oakland and San Diego, and the Seattle Supersonics should furnish Los Angeles' toughest competition in the Pacific Division.

The Warriors have obtained dynamic Cazzie Russell from New York and high-scoring Jim Barnett from Portland to supplement 20-point marksmenNate Thurmond and Jeff Mullins.

Seattle, with two standout backcourt men in player-coach Lenny Wilkens and Dick Snyder, will have ex-olympic and ABA star Spencer Haywood for his first full NBA season and center Bob Rule, sidelined most of the 70-71 campaign because of surgery on his Achilles tendon.

Houston, the NBA's first franchise in Texas, and Portland complete the Pacific Division, the only five-team division in the league. Houston, last season's San Diego club, has a new coach in Tex Winter from Kansas State and an established star in center Elvin Hayes, third in scoring and rebounding.

Portland depends on Geoff Petrie's co-rookie of the year and the seventh player in NBA history to score 2,000 points in his first year. Powerful forward Sidney Wicks, an All-American from UCLA's NCAA championship squad, and guard Charley Yelverton from Fordham, the Trail Blazers, top two draft picks, should be valuable additions.

Milwaukee, defending Midwest Division, Western Conference and NBA champion, returns with the same awesome starting five that carried it all the way.

Kareem Jabbar, formerly known as Lew Alcindor, the league's scoring leader and Most Valuable Player, leads the Bucks' brilliant cast. Oscar Robertson, the veteran backcourt star acquired from Cincinnati last season, again will direct the Bucks' unwavering attack.

Even though the Bucks played in the toughest division—all four teams finished with over .500 records—they wound up 15 games ahead of runner-up Chicago.

The Bulls, led by Coach of the Year Dick Motta and paced on the floor by forwards Bob Love and Chet Walker, should be stronger with 6-8½ Howard Porter the Most Valuable Player in last season's NCAA tourney.

Curtis Rowe, Detroit's top draft choice from UCLA, figures to add rebounding strength to the Pistons who already have 6-11 Bob Lanier and highscoring guards Dave Bing and Jimmy Walker.

Connie Hawkins and Dick Van Arsdale, a pair of 20-point scorers for Phoenix should get help from rookie Dennis Layton of Southern California.

Baltimore, defending Central Division champion and the beaten finalist in last season's playoffs, boasts a veteran starting unit in Wes Unseld, Gus Johnson, Earl Monroe, Kevin Loughery and Jack Marin. However, Johnson, Monroe and Loughery all have been plagued by injuries in the past.

Pete Maravich, the greatest major college scorer in history, comes off a nerve-wracking rookie season with Atlanta. But having adjusted to the pro game, Maravich could improve on his 23.2 scoring average. Lou Hudson and Don May, the latter acquired from Buffalo, give the Hawks a total of three 20-point scorers.

PRO CHARTS | ABA

3--Kentucky Colonels

ABA—Eastern Division

PROSPECTUS: Colonels have all but mortgaged whole state the last couple of years in signing Dan Issel, 1970-71's Co-Rookie of Year, and now Artis Gilmore, who stands 7-2 (more like 9-6 when his Afro haircut is included). Ex-Celtic handyman Frank Ramsey brought team to peak at playoff time last season and Colonels almost made it all the way, losing to Utah in seventh game of final series. Now Ramsey is gone and Joe Mullaney has come over from NBA Lakers to try his hand. He has Gilmore to shore up team's weakest point, defense, and if big man does half of what Kentucky expects, they will clinch title by December. This could be the pro team that makes Kentuckians forget about Adolph Rupp.

FORWARDS: Issel (29.9 ppg to lead league) played center last season but at 6-9, he has grace, finesse and shooting touch to become Bob Pettit-type forward. If he maintains anything like his 13.2 rebound average and Gilmore's defense liberates him mentally to concentrate on offense, he'll tear up league. Likely partner is 6-7 Cincy Powell (18.1), heady four-year veteran, unselfish and tough clutch player. Jim "Goose" Ligon (12.8), 6-7, starter last year, makes strong third forward. Returnees Les Hunter (9.3), Dan Hester (5.9) and Walt Simon (7.8), who can also play guard, will compete for what's left of playing time. Rating: A—.

CENTER: There are those—Bill Sharman is one—who say Gilmore could become basketball's next Bill Russell, which is ultimate praise. Gilmore led nation's college players in rebounding last two years with 23 average, blocked 10 shots per game and scared a lot of people out of taking others. Though it's not that easy in the pros, he should be defensive terror in league where good big men are scarce. Backup center will probably be Issel, with help from other forwards in pinch. Rating: A—.

GUARDS: Louie Dampier (18.5), at 6-0, and Darel Carrier (16.4), at 6-3, make a small backcourt team and it hurts them on defense. Dampier is hustler, though, and led team in assists. Returning reserves—Tom Hagan (5-2), Mike Pratt (5.6) and Howard Wright (4.6)—haven't shown much, so help will have to come from rookies, led by Poo Welch of Houston, Mike Gale of Elizabeth City, Clarence Sherrod of Wisconsin. Rating: B.

PREDICTION: Colonels should dominate Eastern Division, perhaps whole league. First place.

PRO CHARTS | NBA

NBA — Atlantic Division

PROSPECTUS: Team that finished five games behind Knicks in regular season, then lost to Bullets in classically rugged playoff series, has passed its peak. With retirements of Bailey Howell, Connie Dierking, there is room, need for building on proven talents of Billy Cunningham, Archie Clark. For openers, coach Jack Ramsay has No. 1 draft choice Dana Lewis of Tulsa as candidate to fill aching void at center, along with another promising rookie, guard Marvin Stewart of Nebraska. But 76ers may have to take one step backward now to take two forward later.

FORWARDS: Cunningham (23.0 ppg) made all-NBA first team for third straight season, adding nearly 12 rebounds, 5 assists per game to scoring punch. But brilliant as he is, 6-7 star has taken 76ers about as far as he can. Other veteran starter, spring-legged 6-7 Jim Washington, (13.4) has never been more than promising. Returning reserves, 6-5 Fred Foster (5.5) and 6-6 Bud Ogden (2.4) don't hold much hope, either. May turn to rookies 6-7 Barry Yates of Maryland, 6-6 Rich Hood of Phillips or 6-8 Dave Scholz of Illinois, who spent last season in Eastern League. If Stewart progresses fast enough, 76ers may trade guard for veteran forward (Chicago, with forward surplus, guard shortage, would be likely prospect). Rating: B+.

CENTER: 6-10 Dennis Awtrey (7.2) and injury-plagued, bulky 6-9 Luke Jackson (6.7) shared center spot with Dierking last season, with notable lack of success. That puts heavy burden on 6-10 rookie Lewis, who averaged 23.3 points, 13.5 rebounds as senior. Al Henry, 6-9 center from Wisconsin who was first choice in 1970 draft, back for another try after good year in Eastern League. Center is weak point for Ramsay. Rating: C.

GUARDS: Unrecognized Archie Clark (21.3) led team in time on court, ranked ninth in league in assists with 5.4 average. Longtime standout Hal Greer (18.6), one of seven NBA players to top 20,000 career points, is 35, needs 57 games to top Dolph Schayes' record for most appearances. His durability notwithstanding, he'll need more rest and will get more help this season from Wally "Wonder" Jones (10.1), out half of 1970-71 with injuries. Stewart will be breathing down everyone's neck and journeyman Fred Crawford (5.3) is good for occasional burst. Two other rookies, 6-2 Dave Wohl of Penn, 6-3 Jake Jones of Assumption, face uphill battle. Rating. B.

PREDICTION: Likely to be passed by Buffalo, which is on way up. Fourth in Atlantic.

Pirates Take Lead; Defeat Giant Ace

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Goats ... fools ... duds ... Aristotle.

Strange subjects for baseball dressing rooms.

But they were the words bandied about after the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants 2-1 Tuesday in the third game of the best-offive National league playoffs.

The Pirates lead the series 21 and were in position to clinch the pennant and meet American League champion Baltimore in the World Series with another victory over the Giants today.

Rich Hebner, the Pirates' third baseman who digs graves in the off season, listed himself as "a goat" and "a damn fool," although it was his home run with two out in the eighth inning that won the game.

Hebner labeled himself a goat because his sixth inning error allowed the unearned Giants' run which tied the score 1-1 after Bob Robertson's fourth home run of the series had given the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the second inning. He said he felt like a damn fool prior to his homer because of the way San Francisco pitcher Juan Marichal had been toying with him at bat.

The 23-year-old Hebner said he had the entire last half of the 1971 season on his mind when he came to bat in the eighth. He had spent two weeks in a hospital with a virus around the heart, averaged only .200 the final 2½ months, knocked in only 12 runs and hit just three home runs.

And Bob Johnson, the 220pound Pittsburgh right-hander who came to the ball park expecting to watch and wound up the winner with eight innings of five-hit pitching, said he was a "dud" all season.

"I'm a dud because I didn't win more games," said Johnson, a 9-10 performer for the Eastern champion Pirates. But he wasn't a dud Tuesday as he struck out seven and scattered five hits in eight innings.

"Briles can't make it," pitching coach Don Osborn told Manager Danny Murtaugh.

"Did you expect Johnson, a guy with a 3.45 ERA during the season to last until the ninth inning?" he was asked.

"What do you want me to be, an Aristotle?" snapped the Giants' skipper.

The Denver Broncos' pass attack against a zone defense has featured deep hook passes with the receivers going 15 to 18 yards deep before moving back three steps to take the ball, as the defenders sprint backwards. However, Oakland's linebackers have been backing up fast and deep and closing the hook area. What will you, the Bronco quarterback, call:

1. Deep sideline pass (receiver goes 15 yards downfield, breaks toward sideline)?
2. Delayed pass to tight end (end blocks, then goes down middle)?
3. Pass to fullback flaring out of backfield?
4. Deep hook pass, your strongest weapon?

Answer

No. 2. Delayed pass to tight end, who must delay two seconds before breaking down middle. Linebackers are in road of deep sideline and hook. Pass to back could go, but with linebackers deep, pass to tight end should be a completion.

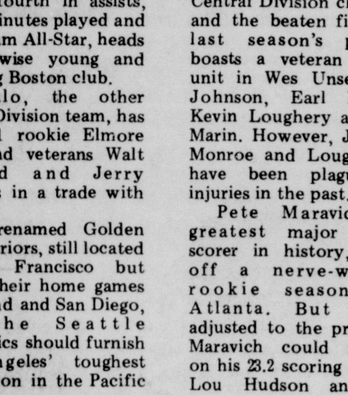
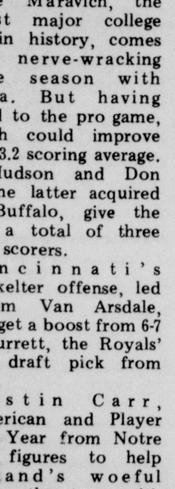
Jim Beam Sports Quiz



Q. Who holds the record for throwing the most touchdown passes in a single season?

A. The one-and-only Y. A. Tittle. As New York Giant player Number 14, he completed 36 of the big ones in 1963. And that's a record that ought to be around for quite a while.



Jim Beam

It's a record: For six generations the world's finest Bourbon since 1795.

86 PROOF KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY DISTILLED AND BOTTLED BY THE JAMES B. BEAM DISTILLING CO., CLERMONT, BEAM, KENTUCKY

Mich. State Favored In Upset

NEW YORK (AP) — All right, you guys, you ain't executing. Your percentage last week was only .677. And it brought your score for the season down to .712.

You guys ain't blocking and you ain't tackling. You're missing assignments and you're going on the wrong count. We got some good junior college boys coming in next year and you guys will really have to work to keep your jobs.

The assistant coaches ain't been so hot, either. Those scouting reports the last two weeks touting Florida over Alabama and Illinois over Washington were awful. Where'd you dig 'em up, off a tablecloth in some bar? The alumni are really on my back so this week you gotta get out there and fight, fight, fight! We got some big games coming up.

Oklahoma vs. Texas at Dallas—And next week it's Oklahoma-Colorado and Texas-Arkansas. Last year's 41-9 rout was the most points ever scored by the Longhorns in the series and the biggest margin since Texas' 40-7 triumph in 1941.

It also marked Oklahoma's switch to the Wishbone-T—T for Texas, that is. The Sooners picked it up so well that they rank second nationally in rushing with 425.3 yards per game while Texas is fourth at 349.3.

"They run it better than most people," said Southern California's John McKay after Oklahoma whipped his team 33-20 last Saturday. "They have an excellent quarterback in Jack Mildren and two great runners in Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt. Oklahoma is a tremendous offensive team."

Pitt's Carl DePasqua, a 55-29 loser the previous week, called Mildren "the finest I've ever seen ... with the system they have. His pitches are just fantastic." All those coaches can't be wrong ... or can they? TEXAS.

Stanford at Washington—The Indians have given up only 29 points in four games; the Huskies have scored 199. The winner could wind up in the Rose Bowl. Who wins the battle between the irresistible force and the immovable object? STANFORD.

Michigan at Michigan State— It isn't easy for Michigan's Bo Schembechler to remain a pessimist with a 4-0 record and three straight shutouts. But, he points out: "We haven't played any teams that have won a lot of games, so I really don't know how good a team we are. We're gonna find out real fast. Michigan State is much bigger than we are and I doubt seriously if we'll play a defensive team better than this one."

Surprisingly, it's Michigan which ranks second nationally in total defense. This time, the defense rests. Upset special of the week ... MICHIGAN STATE.

Colorado at Iowa State—The Buffaloes already have won at Louisiana State and Ohio State so they don't figure to have any trouble at Ames, Iowa. But if they're looking ahead to Oklahoma the unbeaten Cyclones could surprise. COLORADO.

Alabama at Vanderbilt—Commodores were looking ahead a week ago and were ambushed by Virginia. 'Bama undoubtedly will have an eye on Tennessee, next week's opponent. But this looks like a Bear Bryant powerhouse. ALABAMA.

Notre Dame at Miami, Fla.— Fran Curci has the Hurricanes back in business and there were cries of "Bring on Notre Dame!" after last week's rout of Baylor. They ought to know better. NOTRE DAME. Army at Penn State—Are the Cadets for real? Defeats of Georgia Tech and Missouri weren't flukes, but this is a Nittany Lion of a different color. PENN STATE.

Georgia vs. Mississippi at Jackson—Ole Miss wasn't supposed to win in Athens, Ga., last year, but did. Bulidogs have a score to settle for that one. GEORGIA.

Georgia Tech at Tennessee— Only team to beat Tennessee the past two years is Auburn. Tech's no Auburn. TENNESSEE.

Sports Briefs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Al Cueto has been cut by the Memphis Pros of the American Basketball Association.

Cueto, who averaged 4.6 points and 3.9 rebounds per game last season, is a two-year veteran from Tulsa.

CHICAGO (AP) — Two men on a horse is nothing new but a crowd of 10,493 gulped hard Tuesday when it happened at Sportsman's Park race track.

Jockey Tony Rini was aboard Foxy Princess when his rein snapped in the second race. He was tossed in the air and grabbed the rein and neck of Raazab, ridden by Kenny Jones.

With Rini hanging on, Jones pulled up his mount after an eighth of a mile. Rini was not hurt.

DALLAS (AP) — World Championship Tennis announced Tuesday plans for a multimillion dollar playing headquarters for WCT, including stadium, indoor and outdoor courts and a "tennis village" for Lakeway, a 5,800acre resort 18 miles north of Austin.

WCT said the first phase of the project will be a $12 million program with construction to begin Nov. 1. The tennis village of town houses and club was scheduled to be in operation by June, 1972.

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — An 8year-old barren mare, Never in Paris, topped offerings of thoroughbreds of all ages at the Ocala sales Tuesday on a bid of $35,000.

Cooks, Gourmets Deplore Menu Of Future Prediction

NEW YORK (AP) — Cooking experts and fancy food fans are predictably piqued at a nutritionist's suggestion that the menu of the future may be founded on such things as peanut butter and pizza.

"Deplorable," said one cooking teacher; "purgatory," said another. "A rash statement," commented a gourmet shop manager; "impossible," sneered a restaurant owner.

The suggestion came from Dr. George C. Graham of Johns Hopkins University. He predicted that modern technology would enable women to spend less time in the kitchen and to serve nutritional diets composed of "hand foods"—sandwiches, pizzas, rolls and pastry.

The forerunners of the future, Graham contended, are hamburgers and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

"What a deplorable, miserable situation to live in—peanut butter sandwiches and pizzas. Cooking is a creative art and people, particularly young people, are beginning to find it out."

Maurice Moore-Betty, a Briton who runs a cooking school in New York and who recently authored a cookbook, said of the suggestion: "My reaction is horror. I don't see why fine cooking should die out any more than people should give up painting or music."

What does he think of a diet of peanut butter and pizza? "It would be purgatory," said Moore-Betty. "I can't imagine anything worse."

One of the few exceptions to the general dismay was Graham Kerr, the "Galloping Gourmet" television chef with the casual approach to complicated recipes.

In a telephone interview from Bournemouth, England, Kerr said of the new food, "It's got to happen. If we don't take some sort of rational approach to in-depth agriculture, only the very, very rich will be able to eat natural food. What is considered good food today is going to be prohibitively expensive."

Besides, he said, "I predict that within 25 years 60 per cent of the people will be living on pills and a milky substance obtained from roots."

Bomb Probe Instruction Proposed

ST. LOUIS - Rex. D. Davis, director of the alcohol, tobacco and firearms division of the Internal Revenue Service has proposed a program of federal instruction on bomb investigation for members of fire departments. He explained that federal staff and laboratory facilities would be expanded to provide greater assistance to fire chiefs.

Davis, who is in charge of 1600 federal investigators, addressed the International Association of Fire Chiefs at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis.

He revealed that analysis of fire and bomb debris by highly advanced laboratory equipment in Washington, D.C., had led to state and federal convictions.

He added that the Internal Revenue ATF Division has already forwarded over 70 cases to the department of justice for prosecution since the new explosives law went into effect in February, 1971.

Mineral Tax Preferred Over Soft Drink Levy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, today issued a statement declaring he would approve a severance tax on minerals in behalf of conservation "but I cannot support a tax on kids for such purpose."

He said he was opposed to the initiative petition now being circulated by conservation groups to tax soft drinks 1 cent for each bottle to finance expansion of the operations of the state Conservation Department.

"Where does a tax on soda, over half of which is consumed by kids, fit into the picture?" Schechter asked. "Only because it is easy to collect a 10 per cent sales tax on soda pop, which the sponsors say would produce about $21 million a year."

He said Arthur W. Betts, former director of the Legislative Fiscal Affairs Committee, and the University of Missouri School of Business and Public Administration, both recommended either the soft drink tax or a severance tax on mining.

He quoted Betts as saying "severance tax—taxation of natural resources, use of which is related to conservation, would provide adequate amount without excessive rate."

The university report said "from a single intuitive standpoint it would seem that a severance tax on the production of minerals would be a 'natural' source of revenue for supporting ecology related activities of the department of conservation."

Schechter's statement was distributed by soft drink bottlers who oppose the proposed penny soft drink tax.

Nixon Can Lose If Youth Have Choice

LUBELL
by William Geist
(Editors Note: The writer is a masters degree candidate in the Missouri School of Journalism's Washington Reporting Program.)

WASHINGTON — Sam Lubell, noted political analyst, told a Washington audience: "18 year-old vote will beat Nixon if the Democrats give the young voter a choice."

Lubell, who recently toured the country analyzing the youth vote, disagreed with the commonly held belief that young people will not vote: "Not one I interviewed said "who cares!' Young people feel they have a critical role to play politically and will vote in heavy numbers in the '72 election."

"One thing only will stop them from voting," he told the Women's National Democratic Club, "and that is what you and your husbands are doing: not giving them a meaningful choice between candidates."

He said if the Democrats fail to run "a real alternative" to Presiden Nixon in 1972, the youth will either not vote or vote for a third party candidate, adding, "not Wallace, however".

He said Wallace is not an acceptable third party presidential candidate to the vast majority of those he interviewed and among all age groups, Wallace is not as strong as he was in 1968.

He said many of the sons and daughters of 1968 Wallace voters in the South are turning Republican, and contrasted this with what he found to be a national trend elsewhere against President Nixon and the Republicans.

"I found," he said, "one-third of the sons and daughters of Republicans who voted for Nixon in 1968 would vote against him, whereas less than one-tenth of the sons and daughters of Democrats who voted against Nixon would now vote for him."

He said there is a national trend against Nixon which is much stronger among newly enfranchised voters, and added, "many of the parents are following their children."

"I found more than one-third of the youth who were pro-Nixon in 1968 have turned against him. One-fifth of their parents who did vote for Nixon are now against him."

"The youthful voters are ready to vote Democratic, if given a clear-cut choice," Lubell said. "They don't like Humphrey" because they see him as essentially the same type as Nixon or Johnson. They have no strong identification with the other Democratic hopefuls because none have taken clear stands on the issues they're interested in."

What are the issues young voters are interested in? The war, of course, but Lubell found an increasing concern for the economy, among students as well as those young people now working.

"The economy became an issue with students," he said, "because they were unable to find jobs, because last year's graduating class could not find jobs, and because many have been forced to change their career plans due to a scarcity of jobs in their chosen fields."

Using the economic issue as an example, Lubell brought up the question of whether giving youth the vote will speed reconciliation of the generations or widen the gap between them.

"A large number of those interviewed want to see a restructuring of our economy," he said, "so that it is not war dependent. They fear our economy needs war to prosper, and feel it is more of a threat to war than, say, Red China."

"They would," he continued, "like to see such things as environmental employment fill the war void. They want more purpose, more useful work.

HEW Chief Says Medical Cost Curb To Follow Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson says the administration plans to control medical costs in the second phase of its economic program.

Richardson said Sunday the department has been working with the Cost of Living Council for a brake on hospital and doctors' costs after the wage-price freeze ends Nov. 13.

"Because of ... the very rapid rate these costs have been rising year after year, we do intend to include specific measures to deal with them," Richardson said.

His remarks were on the NBC radio-television program "Meet the Press."

Newsweek magazine published a poll Sunday that said 69 per cent of American families want wage and price controls continued after the freeze expires.

Newsweek said 55 per cent favored what it called "Nixonomics."

The magazine said the poll was conducted by the Gallup Organization by telephone of a cross-section of American voters.

In his television appearance, Richardson also said the Nixon administration may send a proposal to Congress supplementing the President's health-insurance bills to deal with costs and quality of medical services.

He said that since the administration has "proposed to mandate health insurance coverage for all families and all workers ... that we should also hold out assurances that cost and quality of medical care are going to be protected."

Relatively Trip Planned

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Washington University professor is scheduled to board a 747 jetliner this week to begin a pair of round-the-world trips he thinks will prove one phase of Albert Einstein's theory of relatively.

Physics professor Joseph C. Hafele, 38, will carry four atomic clocks to test Einstein's theory that moving clocks keep different time from clocks at rest.

Hafele, an attendant and the cesium-beam clocks are to take off from Dulles International Airport in Washington, D. C., Monday night. The first trip, around the world in an easterly direction, is expected to take about 2½ days.

A week later a westbound flight is planned.

Hofele says clocks flown in opposite directions around the world record slightly different times. This second trip will fall only a few minutes short of three days.

Accompanying Hafele and the clocks—worth $17,000 apiece, will be Richard Keating, an astronomer from the United States Naval Observatory. The observatory is financing the two flights, which will cost about $7,000.

The professor believes if Einstein's theory is correct a clock flying westward around the world should gain about 300 billionths of a second over a ground clock. When the clock is flown eastward it should lose about 100 billionth of a second over the earth-bound clock, he says.

Hafele will take a toothbrush, razor and drip-dry shirt aboard the airplane.

"I don't think I'll need any more than that. We won't be moving around too much and after all, we'll only be gone three days."

SICK DAYS ADD UP

LONDON (AP) — Industrial accidents and illness cost Britain more than 23 million working days every year, the British Safety Council reported.

The bill to taxpayers in lost production, medical and material costs, social benefits and "unseen" expenses was estimated to be $1.44 billion.

Nader Feels Consumer Bill Has Heart Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the average person, Section 204 would be just 97 lines of complicated lingo loaded with unfamiliar legal references.

But to Ralph Nader it is the heart of the proposed consumer protection act of 1971. And his complaint to Congress is that a House committee has given the bill heart trouble.

Nader and Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., are unhappy because, they say, Section 204— on "representation of consumers"—would not give the proposed new consumer protection agency the right to intervene in enforcement proceedings during preliminary, informal stages.

That is important, they say, because most cases involving alleged violations of consumer protection regulations are settled without formal proceedings.

For example, they say:

—The Federal Trade Commission resorted to formal adjudication only 25 times in 1970 to enforce flammability standards while disposing of more than 250 cases through informal proceedings.

—Agriculture Department disciplinary actions under meat and poultry inspeaction laws against adulterated food and unsanitary processing plants are done informally before a department attorney.

—The Civil Aeronautics Board instituted or concluded more than 1,800 informal complaints against air carriers for violations of law, while settling only 231 cases through formal proceedings during fiscal 1971.

In addition, Nader and Rosenthal say the bill would not give the proposed agency the right to intervene or participate in "all formal adjudications 'seeking primarily to impose a fine, penalty or forfeiture,' all agency investigations and internal procedures."

This means, they said, that the proposed agency could not investigate vehicle defects, food contamination, dangerous toys, possible violations of the Flammable Fabrics Act, or industry compliance with Interstate Commerce Commission rules governing household movers.

They also said the bill would keep the new agency from participating in agency supervisory practices—such as Federal Communications Commission supervision of radio and television licenses.

Nader and Rosenthal also lost a battle to give the agency what would have amounted to subpoena powers.

But Chairman Chet Holifield of the House Government Operations Committee which wrote the bill takes a different view.

"The allegation has been made," Holifield said, "that 80 to 90 per cent of federal agency actions would be outside the purview of the consumer agency because they involve 'informal' rather than 'formal' proceedings.

"The Administrative Procedures Act makes no distinction of that kind. There is no valid basis for that allegation."

Holifield said the bill "does not give this new agency the right to dominate its sister agencies of government, nor to stand as a super agency above them, but it does direct the others to cooperate with the consumer agency in furnishing information.

"And it gives the consumer agency's administrator the right to request an agency to initiate a proceeding or publicly explain its failure to do so."

Chairman Roger C. Cramton of the Administrative Conference of the United States, who helped draft the current version of the bill, said it would be extraordinarily difficult to write legislation dealing with informal agency considerations.

Similar legislation passed the Senate and the House Government Operations Committee by wide margins last year but died on a tie vote in the House Rules Committee, which clears legislation for floor action.

The current bill was rushed to the Rules Committee Friday, the deadline for filing legislation to be considered for clearance to the House floor this year.

No date has been set for Rules Committee action.

Nader complains that last year's bill was stronger. He says that the White House took a strong role behind the scenes by "disciplining Republican members and holding out carrots to some Democratic members." Holifield and Republican congressmen deny the charge.

Bishop Says Legal Bets No Revenue Guarantee

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Rt. Rev. George Cadigan, Episcopal bishop of Missouri, said Saturday there is no guarantee that legalizing pari-mutuel betting in Missouri will produce sufficient revenue to hold taxes down.

He said sponsors of a constitutional amendment that would legalize on-track betting in the state "promise that we can avoid higher taxes for public education and mental health care by legalizing gambling.

"All that a vote for the proposed amendment will do is make it possible for the General Assembly to set up machinery to legalize pari-mutuel betting at horse tracks. There is no guarantee of any revenue for the state of Missouri," the bishop said.

"To seek to legalize what heretofore has been considered illegal in order to provide these additional services is dishonest and creates a false hope that can hardly be satisfied," Bishop Cadigan said.

Missourians will vote on the proposed constitutional amendment Tuesday.

Daniel Boone Heirs Attend Park Opening

LEESBURG — Many of Daniel Boone's heirs responded to an open invitation to attend a reunion in conjunction with the official September opening of a park off Interstate 44, near Leesburg.

Near the end of the day, the heirs decided the reunion should be known as "Boone Clan Rally" and be an annual affair in the park which includes beautiful Onondaga Cave, a discovery of Daniel Boone.

According to Cave Director Bob Hudson, no one showed up with back packs or tents to "rough it" as their ancestors had in the early 1800's.

The new 1,000 acre park is divided into two separate areas with hundreds of campsites, as well as trailer hook-ups, modern restrooms, showers, shelters, tables and barbecue pits. More than two miles of river frontage in the park provides visitors with ample opportunity for fishing in a fine, clear Ozark stream.

And, of course, there are daily tours of Onondaga Cave, made easy with its concrete walks, metal hand rails and electric lights.

Aid For Children With Impaired Sight

HOWARDVILLE - A survey made within a New Madrid County R-1 enlarged district for visually impaired children revealed that there are two children who are totally blind, five children that are legally blind, and several other children whose eyesight is seriously impaired and are only partially sighted.

A proposed program that would assist in training the blind and partially sighted children was submitted to and accepted by the state department of education. The proposed program provided money for the teacher's salary, the consultant's salary, supplies, materials, equipment, rent, janitorial service, and utilities. This was provided for the county by the federal government at no cost to the school district.

Mrs. Nancy Shipman, Dexter, was employed by the district to teach the visually handicapped class. Mrs. Shipman is certified by the State to teach the visually handicapped and the blind. Mrs. Marie Thompson, Portageville, was hired on a part-time basis to teach the children mobility and the use of the cane.

U.S. Senate Subject Of Filmstrip

The United States Senate, launching pad for presidential campaigns and political battleground for major issues, is the subject of a new Associated Press Special Report filmstrip to be distributed to area schools shortly through this newspaper.

The latest in a series of award-winning, full color and sound filmstrips produced by the AP, The United States Senate, the Politics of Power, probes the issues that surround the organization and activities of the Senate in the 1970's.

Relevant historical background sets the stage for candid interviews with Senators Charles Mathias of Maryland, Robert Packwood of Oregon, Fred Harris of Oklahoma, and Gordon Allott of Colorado. In addition, there is a revealing view of a Senate committee in action as Secretary of State Rogers faces Senators Church and Fulbright in a committee hearing concerned with the jurisdiction of executive power in the conduct of foreign affairs.

The Senate has been called the most exclusive and powerful legislative body in the world. In recent years, the Senate has exercised great authority in the determination of domestic and foreign policy. Will the power of the Senate continue to increase? Why has the Senate often clashed with the President and his executive branch? These and other questions are answered in this timely documentary.

The United States Senate: The Politics of Power is accompanied in the Associated Press Special Report series by similar filmstrips focusing on the House of Representatives and the Presidency.

Also included in the series and to be distributed in subsequent months, are Special Reports on Southeast Asia, The Power Crisis, Latin America, and Consumerism.

Special Report filmstrips are being produced by AP in cooperation with Scott Education, widely known in the audio visual education field.

Burlison Tells Veterans Of U.S. Benefits

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Congressman Bill D. Burlison, of Missouri's Tenth Congressional District today spoke before the Missouri Collegiate Veterans Association Convention. In his talk, the United States Representative discussed programs and benefits available to American veterans from Federal agencies.

"Last year the VA paid nearly $3.5 billion in compensation benefits to some two million veterans and to 376,000 of their survivors," he said. "In addition, another $2.2 billion was paid in pension benefits to one million veterans and one million survivors. This is just one example of the magnitude of these programs."

Burlison stressed the variety of programs administered by the VA. He described provisions of the GI education bill, the pension and compensation plans for disabled veterans, the GI loan program, and the health and hospitalization plans.

The Congressman concluded by reviewing legislation passed by the congress. Burlison explained that in this session, the House has passed three major veterans bills and several minor ones. Those of most importance include bills providing for mortgage protection life insurance, treatment for veterans suffering from drug abuse, and giving financial assistance to VA affiliated medical schools.

Burlison noted: "In modern America we recognize the hardships and sacrifices endured by the men in uniform and strive to express our appreciation...With the new problems of drugs, unemployment, and the rapid re-adjustment to civilian life confronting us, we are continually searching for new avenues and untried pathways to better our service to the American veteran.

Show Will Replace Melon Festival

HORNERSVILLE - The Farmers and Merchants Club of Hornersville announced Wednesday that their annual Watermelon Festival will be replaced with a annual variety show.

Pete Droke, a member of the club, told The Daily Democrat that rising entertainment costs had forced the club to discontinue the festival.

The festival, which had been presented in Hornersville for the past 15 years, has boasted such musical favorites as Red Foley, Carl Perkins, Sam the Sham, Webb Pierce, Sandy Posey, Dolly Parton, Jerry Lee Lewis, Ace Cannon and many other top- name performers.

Droke said the club's first annual variety show well be presented Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the new junior high school gymnasium at Hornersville.

The two-hour show will feature Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas talent and will contain a few surprises for the audience. He said present plans call for a "style show," featuring some of the men of the area dressed as women.

Charles Haynes will serve as program chairman for the variety show and is now accepting entries. Anyone may audition for the program.

The Farmers and Merchants Club is the only civic organization in Hornersville and all proceeds from the variety show will be used by the club to support the civic needs of Hornersville, along with other worthwhile projects.

Assistant State Geologist Appointed

ROLLA - Dr. Larry D. Fellow became assistant state gologist of the Missouri Geological Survey Oct. 1. He replaces Dr. Wallace B. Howe, who was appointed state geologist and director of the survey by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Dr. Fellows has been with the survey since 1965 and was chief of the stratigraphy section prior to his appointment as assistant state geologist. He has been involved in many of the mapping programs of Missouri and is the author of several publications in the fields of stratigraphy and paleontology.

A graduate of Iowa State University, Dr. Fellows received his masters degree from the University of Michigan and his doctors degree from the University of Wisconsin. Prior to joining the survey staff, Dr. Fellows was employed in industry for several years and was formerly a member of the faculty of Southwest Missouri State College in Springfield, where he taught stratigraphy and paleontology.

His professional memberships include the Geological Society of America, the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, and the Association of Missouri Geologists.

Dr. Fellows has been active in the Rolla Community Concert Association and is serving as third vice president. He was appointed to serve on the Rolla public library board of directors and is a member of the Phelps County Historical Society.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

Sikeston said Charleston has bad sportsmanship at all the games. Well, we the junior varisty cheerleaders would like to correct this statement.

Tuesday, September 28, the junior varisty had a game at Sikeston. During the game we were leading cheers and some of the Bulldog fans threw long peices of wood and sacks of sand and rocks at us and the grown ups. If we hadn't of moved we would have been hit. Fans of the Bulldogs were acting in very poor taste! But this isn't all! During the fourth quarter the section where the cheerleaders were was overtaken by Sikeston boys playing leap frog, of all things!

So, please Mr. Blanton in your paper rundown the sportsmanship of the Bluejays fans remember Sikeston could use some improvement.

Sincerely yours,
Junior Varisty Cheerleaders

Dear Mr. Blanton

I wish to express my thanks to you on behalf of the Adult Education Department of the Sikeston Senior High School for the excellent coverage your paper has given in bringing our program to the attention of the public. It is such cooperation from the concerned businessmen in our community that has made our fall semester enrollment the success it is.

Dear Editor:

For the past few days we have been studying the problem of water pollution in our conservation course. It is our sincere hope that every registered voter in the state will consider voting for Amendment No. 3 next Tuesday. This proposal will help finance water pollution projects for the next seven to ten years.

Passage of this amendment will enable our state to correct somes of the serious problems of water pollution. Lake Erie has already been declared a "dead lake" - incapable of supporting life of any sort except microscopic lichen which only feed on trash and waste. If we do not take prompt action, our lakes and streams will suffer the same fate. A vote for Amendment No. 3 is certainly a step in the right direction.

Sincerely,
Clifton Ham, John E. Crowley, Rikki LaPlant, Ken Harbin, Jon Forrest, Blake Nowell, Mike Porter, Dennis Parham, Chester Stevens, Dale Shaver, Mark Robison.

Superinentdent of Schools

Dear Mr. Harbin:

You have probably already received a number of letters of this nature. I certainly hope so. This letter is written, not as a protest or part of a crusade, but as a matter of responsibility I feel as a concerned citizen, taxpayer and parent.

There have been a number of reports in the Sikeston Standard and on the local radio news broadcasts recently of disruptive actions on the part of some students in our school system. There are also many "stories" being related of activities of more than an unruly nature in the schools. Some of these reports are credible; others are undoubtedly exaggerated. My concern is with the fact that there is an evident lack of discipline and respect being exhibited on the part of some which can only operate to deprive others of the proper atmosphere for freely pursuing their academic endeavors.

My own personal belief is that order and discipline in our schools should be maintained. Aside from their duties as educators, I feel the faculty should enforce order and discipline among the students with complete impartiality. Those students who choose to disrupt classes and the general routine of our educational facilities, should be dealth with immediately in a stern and just manner. This is a serious obligation on the part of the faculty to the large majority of students who are seriously attempting to acquire a useful education.

I believe the school administrative officers should be solidly behind the faculty members on this point.

I believe the school board should be unequivocatingly loyal to the administrative personnel, faculty and students, and see to it that a policy of fair treatmentfor ALL students is followed; that the administration and faculty be given the authority to demand proper behavior on the part of all students, and to enforce the rules of decent behavior with appropiate disciplinary measures whenever this becomes necessary; and that it be demanded of those members of both administration and faculty that they be unhesitating in the enforcement of discipline and orderliness among all students.

It is not my intent to point an accusing finger or to critize. We in Sikeston, know that we have been provided with one of the finest educational institutions in this Country. Most of us appreciate that and few ever begrudge the tax dollars that have been paid to obtain it. We are also appreciative of the people within the school system who have labored to achieve the level of competency and esteem our school system has attained.

I can see no conceivable reason why our school system should not continue to progress to even higher levels - unless it could be by the reluctance on the part of a few to properly react to the effort of a small, recalcitrant but determined group, bent on destruction of this fine system.

Sincerely,
Alex C. Waters

WASHING (AP) – The Senate Wednesday approved four nominations to the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs--Leo Cherne of New York, former Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., of St. Louis, former White House aide Harry S. Flemming of Alexandria, Va. and William French Smith of California.

VA Hospitals Face Increasing Demands From Veteran Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) – The number of sick and disabled veterans awaiting admission to Veterans Administration hospitals has more than doubled this year as the VA faces increased demands from a growing veterans population.

Even though four of every ten veterans who seek admission are rejected, records show the 166 VA hospitals have a waiting list of 6,300 patients, up 3,439 since last Dec. 31.

VA Administrator Donald Johnson said the present waiting list, although the highest in recent years, still is less than 25,000 patients awaiting treatment in 1958.

"VA is providing more medical care for more veterans than ever before in the history of the agency," Johnson said in an interview. He cited the record 818,000 veterans treated in the hospitals last year, and the 8 million outpatient visits. "The total will likely be exceeded this year," he said, as more Vietnam veterans join the ranks of those eligible for treatment.

Johnson said the agency's medical-care budget has more than doubled since 1965, and that the quality of care is steadily improving.

"I firmly believe the VA today is rendering better medical care to more sick and disabled veterans than ever before in history, but I also know that the quest for improvement must be our never-ending objective."

An Associated Press study, including visits to a dozen hospitals, found the majority of patients interviewed were satisfied with the quality of care they receive from VA doctors and nurses.

"They're treating me great," said 20-year-old Wayne A. Webber, in the West Roxbury, Mass., VA hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a helicopter crash. Fellow paraplegic Robert Nadeau agrees: "This treatment has just been fine."

Some patients, however, complained of long waits for treatment.

Another paraplegic at West Roxbury, Ted Chute, 23, said: "I can't turn over in bed by myself and I have to be turned every two hours so I don't get sores. There have been a lot of times I've had to wait 3½ or 4 hours to get turned. I don't know if they don't have enough aides or if the aides don't care ...."

In another spinal-cord-injury treatment center, at Hines VA hospital near Chicago, Glenn Mayer, 46, paralyzed from the waist down, said: "One day not long ago they took me down to the central bath (for a shower) at 10 in the morning. I didn't get back to the room until 2. My lunch was here waiting for me, but it was cold."

There were widespread complaints among the veterans about difficulties encountered in gaining admittance to the hospitals.

Former Marine Sgt. Richard Evans of Macon, Ga., interviewed at the Atlanta VA hospital, where he is being fitted for an artificial leg, said:

"It took me three days to get into the hospital. I came in one day and waited from 8 'til 4 without being seen. I finally saw the doctor the next day, but he told me to come back the next day. Then I had to sit four hours that day before I got a bed."

The hospital director, Dr. Julian Jarman, agreed "that shouldn't happen," but he said the average waiting time is less than two hours.

Another Atlanta patient, however, said he had to make three trips to the hospital before he was admitted. "Finally," said the 22-year-old Walter Johns of Parsons, Ga., "I got in when I told them I quit my job and was just laying around waiting to get in."

Johns lost his leg to a Vietnam land mine, and Dr. Jarman said admission to the hospital was deferred because the stump hadn't fully healed.

Federal law requires that veterans with service-connected injuries or illnesses receive priority for admission, and VA officials said such veterans are not placed on waiting lists.

However, an examination of the Atlanta's hospital waiting list disclosed that four patients with service-connected ailments were awaiting a bed. So were 10 veterans whose admission was rated "urgent."

"Nobody who needs to be in this hospital at this time is not in here," said Dr. Jarman.

The Atlanta hospital, when built five years ago, was rated as having a 588-bed capacity. It has, however, been operating with funds for an authorized average daily patient census of 410. Because it has never been fully activated by the VA, dozens of rooms intended for patient use are filled with records or have been converted into offices.

At Perry Point, Md., where a VA psychiatric hospital has a waiting list of 99, a 160-bed patient building had disintegrated to the point that it had to be closed down.

The psychiatric hospital at nearby Coatesville, Pa., has a waiting list of only 10, but it also has 24 empty beds in a tuberculosis ward. The hospital director said he asked VA headquarters for permission to convert the vacant beds for psychiatric use.

"They said no," he recalled. "They're afraid there might be a TB epidemic someday."

I can (vaguely to be sure) still remember the "good ole days" when I use to always give myself a manicure, facial, new hairdo and a pedicure at least once a week if not more often – ah, those were the days! Now I'm doing good to cram a quick weekly visit in to the hair dressers, and heaven only knows how long it's been since the pores on my face have been tended to like they should, poor clogged up dears. I can still (again vaguely) remember what it was like trying to decide who and where to go out with over the weekend and what to pull out of my then plentiful wardrobe to wear. Oh brother, was that ever long ago! Now I know who I'm going to be with – 2 dogs, 2 kids and 1 pooped out husband if you are suggesting anything but a game of golf – where I'm going is usually pretty much the same too – fishing or home – and as to my wardrobe, well, that's the biggest laugh of all – guess it's just as well I don't have anyplace to go, I am too old and fat to go naked, and frankly, my skin is just about as new as anything else I've got hanging in the closet! Boy, my kids would never believe I was young once and danced and went to football games, ecetera, they think I've one foot in the grave already and have had it there for at least three years. Of course, between dashing with one to piano lessons, another for guitar, one to cub scouts, the other on his paper route, one to football practice, the other to the doctor, etc., etc., etc., I really am wearing out at a rapid rate – like the ole grey mare I just ain't what I use to be! Oh well, at least I still can remember, and if my mind holds out for a few more years at least I will still be able to hang onto that for comfort in my middle-age old age.

1,000 Jobs A Day Disappear In Britian

LONDON – A thousand jobs a day have been disappearing in Britain in 1971. Unless the trend slows, one million workers will be on the dole this winter. Improvement is hard to forecast because Britain is fighting not only her own economic troubles but President Nixon's de facto devaluation of the dollar and import surcharge as well.

Unemployment in Britain, excluding Northern Ireland, totaled 883,000 in mid-September, or 3.9 per cent of the work force, up from August's 3.7 per cent. There were 45,568 out of work in Northern Ireland, or 8.8 per cent. The overall unemployment rate was the highest since 1940. The Economist points out, moreover, that now comes "the start of the usual seasonal climb in unemployment to the seasonal peak in January or February."

Even before the September statistics were made public, the Guardian had commented that Britain faced "a crisis situation" which "demands crisis measures." Obviously the measure taken in July to stimulate the economy and provide more jobs have not yet taken hold.

At the time of the elections of June 1970, Tories called the unemployment of 579,000 "a damning indictment" of the Labor Party's economic policy. Robert Carr, now the Secretary of State for Employment and Productivity, then considered this figure "a matter of great national concern." In power, Carr has been faced with record unemployment combined with unprecedented inflation.

Unemployment was assumed to be voluntary in early 19th century England and idleness was punishable by law. Fifty years ago, in 1921, there were two million unemployed in the United Kingdom. And the pitiless unemployment of the 1930s very nearly destroyed British belief in capitalism.

Since World War II, both parties have tried to keep unemployment at low levels. As recently as 1966, for example, the British unemployment figure was 1.5 per cent. Britons have always looked with horror on U. S. recession-level unemployment rates of 6 per cent or more.

But different methods of figuring unemployment narrow the difference. In Britain, for example, only those who actually register as unemployed are counted in the statistics. In the United States, the figures are based on a survey of households which counts as jobless those who are seeking work but haven't found it. If the United States used the British method it is estimated the U. S. jobless rate now would be about 4.5 per cent instead of the current official 6.1 per cent rate.

Victor Feather, General Secretary of the Trades Union Congress, said last month that, "It is a dismal lookout for everybody and a depressing prospect for those leaving school and the university." Nevertheless, the National Institute of Economic and Social Research forecasts that the British economy has already reached the low-water mark -- even though the jobless total may still rise this winter.

As in the United States, the unemployment situation in Britain is fraught with paradox. Mental hospitals are crying for nurses, police forces are below strength, and it can take five days to get a simple car repair. The Labor Party opposition has been very low key. Instead of blasting Tory policy, a Trades Union Congress in Blackpool recently suggested a shorter working week, longer holidays, more public holidays and early retirement as an answer to unemployment.

Cooking-Up with judy gazell

Guest recipes are featured in this week's column, courtesy of Mrs. Andy W. Hill, 221 East Gladys. She says they're all true-tested and favorites. Mrs. Hill, already a faithful supplier of guest receipes, has sent a good selection of holiday foods which we're saving for later issues.

If you've combed your own files and can't find a recipe you're looking for or one you're trying to duplicate, write the Standard, care of this column, and we'll publish your request. An exchange of ideas is always refreshing.

Mrs. Hill adds, "This is a family recipe brought from Kentucky when my mother came to Sikeston as a bride in 1903."

Housing Surge Likely To Be Furniture Industry Windfall

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that new housing is rising at a record rate of more than two million units a year, the furniture industry is gearing up for a boom such as few other industries can look forward to.

Maybe the boom will never be heard; similar forecasts have been made for other industries only to be thwarted by reluctant consumers and unforeseen twists in the market. But the prospects are unusually good.

Everything considered, a number of different factors are falling into place.

Internal changes, such as mergers and new distribution methods, are exploiting these elements.

The most important factor, as usual, is the number of housing units going up. Traditionally, furniture sales have shown a curve similar to housing after a lag of one to 1½ years.

Now there are indications that furniture sales may rise more than housing starts.

Among the reasons:

—Should the economy be restrained and inflation wrung out, the buying power of many Americans may rise even faster than incomes.

—The savings rate is at an unusually high level, better than 8 per cent of take-home pay. While consumers remain reluctant to lower that rate—spend the money, that is—experience suggests they cannot hold out much longer.

—Compared with recent years, the ratio of installment debt to income is relatively low. Just as there are savings in the bank, there is credit at the bank too.

Moreover, a study by the Chase Manhattan Bank notes:

—The number of households in the 25-34 age group, the highest spenders on home furnishings, will increase by 52 per cent in the decade of the 1970s.

—The percentage of families with incomes of more than $15,000 will almost double from 22 per cent in 1970 to 38 per cent in 1980. And those are comparable—not inflated—dollars.

—The number of families in the 25-34 age group with incomes of more than $15,000 is projected to surge from 1.6 million to 6 million in 1980.

Presented with such demographic and income factors, the industry is gradually modernizing. Attempts are being made to speed deliveries which, as most purchasers know, can be maddeningly slow and inefficient.

Delays of three months or so are still common, partly because of the small size of many manufacturers. The Chase study found 6,700 companies making carpets, beds and furniture, and three-fifths of them employed fewer than 20 workers.

New marketing methods already are evident in newspaper ads. Entire rooms are being sold instead of individual items. Because of their greater size, single manufacturers soon will be able to market pictures, rugs and lamps as well as the bed, dresser and nightables.

Agriculturist Assigned To K.C. OEP Office

KANSAS CITY (AP) – An agriculture expert has been named to the staff of the Office of Emergency Preparedness unit in Kansas City to advise Francis X. Tobin, OEP regional director, on agricultural implications of the wage-price freeze.

New Car Models Hard To Tell From Last Year's

DETROIT (AP) – New 1972 cars are operating on the nation's roadways but it's tougher than ever to tell the new ones from last year's models.

For General Motors, it's the year of the bumper. And all the manufacturers have installed better exhaust systems to cut pollution.

But on the outside much is the same.

Styling changes have been held to a minimum while the companies focused their money and manpower on meeting safety and antipollution regulations.

Continuing a trend of previous years, there are fewer models, down to 327 from 389 in the '71 model year.

Many of the discontinued lines are intermediate-size performance cars, whose sales have dropped sharply in recent years, following criticism from insurance companies and government safety officials.

Only 17 convertible models are being offered, down from 23 last year. Automakers say the decline in convertibles is due mainly to the popularity of air conditioning and vinyl roofs plus concern about the safety of soft tops.

Convertibles have been replaced by sliding sun roofs, added as options on several car lines this year.

There are some newly designed cars, all of them by the Ford Motor Co. Most prominent are the No. 2 automaker's twin intermediates, the Ford Torino and Mercury Montego.

The two cars, which share many body, chassis and engine components, have received new, more rounded bodies and large new grilles. But the big changes in both cars is below the skin. Ford is building them with a body and separate frame rather than the unitized body-frame used in recent years.

Ford says the new technique will make the cars quieter and more rigid, producing a more solid ride.

Styling of General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors products and the most of the remainder of the Ford line is essentially unchanged from 1971.

On the inside, all cars have improved exhaust emission control systems to meet more stringent federal and California standards which went into effect for 1972 cars.

There are no new safety requirements taking effect this fall, but General Motors has put improved bumpers on all their fullsize '72 models.

All the big GM cars will be able to hit a rigid barrier at 2½ miles an hour with their front bumper without damage to the car. That's about twice the impact current bumpers can stand but only half of what will be required on 1973 cars.

The bumpers stick out from the body about once inch further than old bumpers to allow energy-absorbing movement.

Although car prices are, for the moment, frozen at 1971 levels, the new bumpers effectively add $23 to the price of the cars equipped with them. The reason is a protective rubber strip running across the face of the bumpers which is a $23 option on full size Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, Buicks and Cadillacs. Although the part is optional, GM officials have said they expect the rubber strips to be included on virtually every car sold.

For American Motors, the biggest change is not in the cars at all but in the warranty.

For 1972, Americen is promising new car buyers a 'trouble-free' one-year, 12,000mile warranty. The guarantee covers everything on the cars but tires, which are covered separately by their manufacturer. Previously, many items, such as clutches and brakes, were excluded from warranty coverage.

If the buyer of an AMC car has to bring his car into the shop for warranty service that will take more than a day, AMC promises him the use of a car while his is being worked on.

COORDINATED EFFORT NEEDED ON ENVIRONMENT

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Environmental issues have received unprecedented attention in Congress during the past year. During the 91st Congress 121 bills related to environmental problems were passed into law.

Presently, however, there is little central organization for Congressional investigation of the broad range of environmental issues. The continued and growing public concern over maintaining a balance in the environment demonstrates the further need for a pooling of resources to insure more effective programming in this area.

Recent measures passed in the Senate and the House during the 92nd Congress are aimed at this organization problem.

ENVIRONMENTAL COMMITTEE: Currently there are a variety of House and Senate subcommittees to deal with environmental matters ranging from soil conservation to air and water pollution.

The Senate and the House have passed bills establishing a Joint Committee on the Environment in an effort to coordinate Congressional investigation in the environmental field.

The Committee will consist of 11 members each from the Senate and the House and will include representative members from committees currently concerned with environment-related legislation.

FUELS AND ENERGY: The vital importance and proper use of our natural resources as supplies of energy is fundamental to the industrial strength and living standards of the United States today.

Continued economic growth will incur rapidly increasing requirements of even greater quantities of energy in all forms.

Numerous studies have been made by various groups concerned with our energy needs, including industry, government, and private research foundations. These studies, however, have largely been related to specific problems with which a particular group is directly concerned.

In addition, a need exists for a comprehensive review of the various and sometimes conflicting laws and regulations governing fuel and energy resources.

A measure has been passed in the Senate authorizing the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs to study the prospective fuel and energy resources and requirments of the United States, and to establish an advisory committee of non government experts in the fields of fuel and energy. Included in the scope of study are the current and future government laws affecting fuel and energy industries, worldwide trends in consumption and supply, and development of a national policy on fuel and energy.

OCEANS AND ATMOSPHERE: More and more we become aware of the vast untapped resources yet to be discovered at the ocean floor, and of the need to devote greater attention to practical and beneficial development of the ocean's resources and coordination of efforts in this regard.

The House and Senate have passed a measure signed into law by the President creating a National Advisory Committee on the Ocean and Atmosphere in order to provide a cohesive link between the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration and state and local governments and private concerns.

The 21-member board will consist of presidentially appointed representatives from state and local government, industry, science and other related areas.

MINING AND MINERALS: Because the United States has consumed an unprecedented quantity of mining and mineral resources in the past 10 years, it is clear that controls must be set to assure wise and efficient use of these mineral commodities.

In an effort to meet this need, the Senate has passed an amendment to the Mining and Mineral Resources Act authorizing the Department of Interior to fund the States through a series of grants for establishment of mining and minerals research centers throughout the country.

The centers would serve to stimulate proper utilization of resources, to conduct related environmental research and to train an adequate number of scientists, engineers, and technicians in these fields.

Mississippi was the only county to deviate from statewide totals in approving the other four amendments. Voters in that county turned down amendment two. The amendment provided for maximum property tax rate of 35 cents per $100 valuation in first class counties with an assessed valuation of $300,000,000 or more.

Moberly Residents Die

MOREHOUSE — A Moberly couple was killed this morning, two miles west of Morehouse when their car went out of control and was struck by another vehicle.

The highway patrol said Edwin Ray, 80, and his wife Hazel, 73, were killed as their 1966 Dodge swerved to avoid a truck hauling a mobile home.

The car left the road, came back on the road and was struck broadside by a 1970 westbound Ford truck, driven by James Johnson, 45, of Haleyville, Ala., at 7:10 a.m.

The bodies were taken to the Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

Marston Project Nearly Done

MARSTON — Construction of the city sewage project is 90 per cent complete and is expected to be ready for service by December, the city council was told Monday in a progress report.

Completion of a water treatment plant and well is expected by January.

The nearly half-million dollar project, started in mid-April, is financed by a $204,000 federal grant, $98,000 federal loan and $143,000 from bond issues voted by Marston citizens.

The council agreed to pay 50 per cent of the cost to purchase a new police car with the Bootheel Law Enforcement Council paying the other 50 per cent. A bid was accepted from Rone Chevrolet Co. of Portageville.

Pool Again Rejected

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Voters for the second time in recent months rejected Tuesday, a $60,000 bond issue which would have provided the city's share of a proposed $500,000 community center and public swimming pool in the county seat.

The vote was 624 to 586. A two-thirds majority was required for passage.

Endorsed by Mayor Bill Inman, and the city council, it represented the city's part of a $500,000 project.

Two Injured In Scott City

SCOTT CITY — Two sustained minor injuries in a two-car accident at 9:05 a.m. Tuesday on route K in Scott City.

A 1959 Oldsmobiel traveling east, driven by Augusta Greer, 75, of Illmo, made a left turn, the highway patrol said, and struck a westbound 1965 Chevrolet, driven by Carl Welker, 50, of Scott City.

Greer sustained a face injury and Welker sustained a foot injury. Both were taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Horse Racing Turned Down

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Legalized parimutuel betting on horse races went down the drain in Missouri's special election Tuesday because of a heavy outstate uprising against it.

But a $150 million water pollution bond issue won a smashing victory by almost 275,000 votes and three other constitutional amendments also passed easily.

One will enlarge home rule powers of cities over 5,000 that adopt charters, one lets second class counties keep their prevailing maximum tax rates until they reach full first class status and the other lets all veterans, instead of just Missourians, enjoy veterans' preference grades on merit system examinations.

The controversial parimutuel betting plan drew the most votes, a total of about 550,000— far less than the 700,000 total vote predicted bys Sec. of State James C. Kirkpatrick.

With 99 per cent of the precincts tabulated, the count was 254,239 for the proposal and 295,963 against it.

Outstate, two out of every three voters cast their ballots against it and the 60-40 vote for it in the Kansas City and St. Louis metropolitan areas was not enough to counter the negative outstate balloting.

Dr. Martin Greenberg was not dismayed. He is St. Louis County Democratic chairman and one of the leading campaigners for the proposal.

HOW COME RUSSIA IS A STRONG-WEAK NATION?

It is one of the great mysteries of the world that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has a much greater fleet of submarines than the United States. But the situation is much worse. Representative John G. Schmitz of the Whittier, Calif. area, the President's Congressman, says:

"There is now little doubt in the mind of any informed person that the United States is inferior to the Soviet Union in practically every aspect of military power. What is worse, his disparity in strategic forces is growing worse due to a combination of executive restraint in hopes of progress at the SALT talks, Congressional criticism, and growing pressure from numerous disarmament lobbies chanting about 're-ordering priorities.'"

The question arises, why is it that the Russians cannot build a mass production automobile or truck plant, while they can build warships, freighters, atomic bombs, missiles, tanks, artillery and the ammunition to fire big guns? While they are helping the North Vietnamese, the Egyptians and the Cubans and others to make war, and are sending them large quantities of food and war material, the Russians themselves often find that they have not produced enough bread grains for their own country.

Obviously the Russians are engaging in a crash production of armaments while neglecting other areas of needful output. They are depending upon foreign nations, their prospective victims, to build their auto and truck plants and sell them grain when they fall behind. In the meantime they do what they can to spread disorders within the helpful capitalist countries in order to keep us off balance and to prevent us from thinking straight. What dupes we be!

DID HE LOSE ANYTHING?

The following editorial, published sometime ago in The Press is repeated after receiving many requests that it appear again:

The student newspaper of a Texas college offered food for thought about the case of a younth arrested for and convicted of the possession of marijuana. The article asks: "Did he lose anything?" And then answers itself.

"All he lost was the right to vote, the right to own a gun and the right to run for public office."

"He lost the opportunity of ever being a licensed doctor, dentist, CPA, engineer, lawyer, architect, realtor, osteopath, physical therapist, private detective, paharmacist, school teacher, barber, funeral director, masseur, or stock broker."

"He can never get a job where he has to be bonded or licensed. He can't work for the city, county or federal government."

If any or all of this happened to you ... would you think you had lost anything?

CLOTHING FIRE DANGER HIGH FOR YOUNG, OLD

As clothing buyers and consumers, people almost totally ignore the fact that nearly all clothing will burn.

This is the ominous observation of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), whose studies show that an estimated 200,000 deaths and injuries occur in the United States each year as the result of clothing fires. Chief victims are the very young and the elderly.

First defense is to choose sturdy, tightly-woven fabrics and close-fitted garments. Such clothing will ignite and burn less readily than light fabrics and garments with long, drooping sleeves or billowing skirts.

Equally important is to watch out for flames, sparks, open fires and the intense heat of electric coils — al clothing fire-starters.

Train children to keep a safe distance from fire-starters, NFPA urges. Choose clothes for the youngsters and the elderly persons in your family with care, always remembering that clothing burns.

E. M. FORESTER'S LAST NOVEL

Maurice, E. M. Forster's posthumous novel, will be published in the United States by W. W. Norton on Thursday, Oct. 7. Forster wrote Maurice in 1913, but, because the main character was a homosexual, he withheld the book from publication during his lifetime. Seven American publishers submitted sealed bids for the U.S. rights in what New York magazine described (Aug. 30, 1971) as an example of the trend toward "literary auctions." Norton got the book for $135,000 plus generous royalty terms, and the money will go into a literary fund to help writers.

The sections of Maurice published recently in London's Sunday Times seem awkward and embarrassingly furtive in the age of permissiveness. Forster was determined that the novel should end happily because he thought most people could not imagine a happy homosexual affair. When the novel was written, between 1913 and 1915, the theme was daring. But during the 91 years of his life Forster gradually saw public opinion shift from the indignation which characterized the trial of Oscar Wilde in 1895 to the tolerance shown by the repeal of the laws against homosexual relations between consenting adults.

Forster wrote only five other novels. The huge success of Howards End (1910) filled him with fear of becoming sterile as a writer. After A Passage to India (1924) no further novels appeared, and the decades of silence created an aura of mystery in literary circles. When he died in Cambridge in June 1970, the manuscript of Maurice was found among his papers with the memo written on it: "Publishable, but is it worth it?" Even the executors of his will were divided on this question. Ultimately, the fact that it was a novel by Forster and that its royalties would serve a good purpose overcame their reluctance to release such a dated, Edwardian revelation.

A BONE CONTENDS

(from the San Gabriel (Calif.) Tribune.

AZUSA, CAL. — "Several months ago a young boy came to me, wanting to enlist in the Army. He wasn't an everday typical lad, but a high school drop-out with long hair, beard and barefoot. He didn't impress me at all. His slumped shoulders and negative attitude didn't reflect any ambition or purpose in life," writes Army re uiter Sgt. Jim Hegyi.

"Later his parents told me that after he had dropped out of school he sat around the house for a couple of months and got into all sorts of trouble, drinking, uncaring, defiant. When his father took him to task for his unsocial behavior, the lad said, "Give me a little while to straighten myself out, Dad.' On his own initiative, and just after his 17th birthday, he came to us here to enlist."

Today Private Glen A. Bone is one of the best soldiers in the U.S. Army. Presently he is at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, attending the heavy equipment operators course. Then he will go to the non-commissioned officers academy. During basic training he was a platoon guide, where he demonstrated superior leadership qualities and was promoted to the next higher grade ahead of his contemporaries.

The proud parents of this young man are Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bone, 5820 Rockvale Ave., Azusa.

The change in this young man is reflected in his letter he wrote to his parents recently. Mr. and Mrs. Bone would like their community to know what the Army can do for a young boy who can't find his place in this world.

Dear Mom & Dad —

Today I'm sitting in Fort Leonard Wood hospital, Missouri, thousands of miles away from home, waiting for x-rays.

I'm reading a newspaper about people protesting a war in which they haven't fought, of people who protest work they haven't done, and people who condemn society of which they never or probably will never contribute anything to.

As I'm sitting here, I see young men just returned from Vietnam, missing arms, legs, and minds. Then I think of the students on our country's college campuses protesting for peace while we are out keeping the country free, so they can have the right to protest.

The greatest future leaders of the country sit and say stop the war ... and yet they don't get up and fight to stop it because they will have to get a haircut. They smoke pot, carry signs, condemn my country, that's right. My country, not theirs, but mine, like millions of people fighting to keep it ours and our children's for generations to come. That's the way it's been for a long time. The men who founded this great nation had to work, fight and pray to make it what it is today. That's why I say, "America, love it or leave it."

A lot of men have left it, to fight for it, to fight for freedom and have never come back to enjoy it. It wasn't their war, it wasn't mine, but it is my country's.

One of my gladdest thoughts is, that I'm part of this generation. Not the protesting part, but the fighting part. The freedom loving part of the generation, that got a haircut and decided to keep this nation a free one for everybody, yes even for the people who demonstrate and protest.

God help us if some day they'll run this great country of ours. It's not really theirs, it's ours, we are the ones who made this country what it is — FREE.

Love ya,
Glen

He was a first lieutenant and had undergone Ranger and paratroop training but had never been in combat. This seems a rather dubious distinction, not because he is an objector to military duty on conscientious grounds, but because he went to a military academy for four years and accepted college education at taxpayers' expense.

NEW ERA IN MARITIME HISTORY

While prognosticators try to estimate the pros and cons of the next decade, there is one area that can now be added to the plus side of the ledger with little hesitancy. During the next ten years, the nation can look forward with confidence to a rebirth of U. S. maritime strength in merchant ships. The Administration's maritime program, announced some time ago by the President, is designed to "...restore this country to a proud position in the shipping lanes of the world." The head of the American Institute of Merchant Shipping, an organization that represents much of the active U. S. fleet tonnage, notes that the Administration's shipbuilding program is in line with carrying out the President's announced policy of stimulating private enterprise to revitalize the merchant marine. The shipping industry official says: "It calls for 30 ships annually over a 10-year-period--tripling the present construction rate--and will require private capital investment of nearly $4 billion."

The consequences of a new day for the U. S. Merchant Marine can hardly be exaggerated. In terms of the balance of payments deficit alone, a step-up in the carrying of commerce in U. S. ships will be of tremendous benefit. Secretary of COmmerce Maurice Stans declares of the new shipbuilding program: "We estimate that over the next 10 years this program would bring in approximately a $2 billion improvement in our international balance of payment...(and that)...by reason of increased employment and more profitable operations for the shipowners, tax revenues of the government will increase somewhere between a half a billion and three quarters of a billion dollars."

The target of new ship construction is aimed at the carriage of at least 30 per cent and possibly 50 per cent of U. S. ocean-borne commercial cargo in American flag ships--ships that will reflect a revolution in merchant shipbuilding technology. As President Nixon has indicated, the 1970's will introduce"...a new era in the maritime history of America."

PAWNS OF POLITICS

Politics can set in motion a chain of events that politicians can neither foresee nor control. The U. S. prescription drug industry is a case in point. As one industry spokesman puts it,"...the political searchlight and the political headlines over the past decade have focused on the drug industry to an extent that has not only been unreasonable, but worse, has served to direct attention away from the true dimensions of the problem."

The problem of which this spokesman speaks is the growing use of the consumer voter by politicians as a stepping stone to political office and power. Political currying of consumer favor is changing the basic relationship between the consumer and industry or buyer and seller. The injection of politics into the marketing process may have long-range consequences, of which no present-day officeholder would wish to be a part. In the free market economy of the United States, the drug industry has made almost incredible contributions to medical care. The prices of prescription drugs have been trending downward consistently since 1960, while all other prices have been rising. Yet, political attacks continue, and the obstacles to future drug industry progress in the development of beneficial new drugs that can improve the health and well-being of everyone threaten to become insurmountable.

The political crusade against the drug industry in the name of the consumer is but an incident in a larger trend that U. S. citizens should view with a wary eye. Again in the words of the drug industry spokesman: "To what extent are political processes applicable to the solution of industrial problems involving production, distribution, innovation and marketing? At what point does this approach become destructive to the interests of the consumer as well as of the supplier? " This is an all-important question at a time when the consumer electorate may unconsciously become a pawn of political ambition.

BUSINESS GROUPS ADVISES MATURE JOB SEEKERS

In the employment of mature workers there is no more important person than the individual himself, according to a pamphlet published by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Instead of accenting his ability and skills when he applies for a job, the older job applicant sometimes magnifies the matter of his age, the NAM says in its publication called "Do's and Don'ts for Mature Job Seekers."

What To Do——It is suggested that an older job seeker should stress his qualifications for the particular job which is open, recount his experience which would fit him for the job, and talk and think about the future, not the past.

He should emphasize his stability and good attendance record and remember that older employees are generally capable, dependable, trainable, careful, and steady.

He should learn about the company and its products in advance and assume an air of optimism and confidence.

The pamphlet says he should try to overcome nervousness or shortness of breath. (It helps to take a deep breath). Also: Do assume an air of confidence; Do maintain poise and self-control; Do hold yourself erect; and Do make plenty of applications.

Other suggestions are to apply for a specific job or jobs, have available a list of former employers, and apply for the job in person. Also, as many people as possible should know that the person is seeking a job.

What Not to Do——Several "Don'ts are also listed: Don't depend upon the telephone for your job; Don't isolate yourself from contacts who might help you find a job; and Don't feel that the world owes you a living.

The NAM pamphlet advice is not to stress the need for a job and not to discuss past experience which has no application to the job situation.

The applicant should not apologize for his age and should not be one of those who can do anything.

The job-seeker is told not to hesitate to fill out an application form, to give references, or to take a physical examination or tests, and not to make claims which cannot be delivered on the job.

Also, the pamphlet says, don't hang around, prolonging the interview when it should be over.

AID LAWMEN VIA L—AID

Freedom cannot exist without Law and Order. Our good lawmen urgently need citizen support if they are to turn the tide against crime and thus preserve our Republic. Individuals and others, acting in small groups, could act, if they wished, for the purpose of extending their support to lawmen in this great cause which is so vital to everyone.

L-Aid could be the title for this support by citizens for lawmen and for law and order. Any citizen who recognizes the need to support the lawmen can activate himself to this end. By enlisting a friend in the cause, he can double his effectiveness at once. Soon an effective and active group will be joyfully on the job, if each L-Aider enlists another just once a month.

The increase in crime has been reduced in many places across the country since seasoned campaigners took a hand in the battle for Law and Order three years ago. But crime continues to increase, though gains are being made. Our Republic cannot continue if this tide cannot be turned. Crime undermines everything good. An ordered society is essential for anything good.

Good citizens, who are in the vast majority, try to do right. But there are bad people who try to do wrong. When there gets to be too many bad ones, as has been the case in recent years, the good citizens must come to the aid of the lawmen or we will all be overwhelmed by the bad people. L-Aid may be the turning point.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

Washington— The FBI and State Department have been squabbling behind the scenes over how to deal with Soviet espionage in this country.

The British have tipped us off that the massive espionage they have uncovered is typical of what's going on in the U.S. as well.

Their informant is a Soviet KGB agent, who rode up to the British Foreign Office in a Soviet Embassy limousine and asked for asylum. He walked in with a stachel full of secret documents, outlining the entire Soviet espionage operation in Britain.

The documents included no details about Soviet espionage in the U.S., but the defector asserted the pattern was the same.

This wasn't news to the FBI, which has been keeping close tabs on the 525 Soviet diplomats, trade officials and journalists in the U.S.

Many have been linked to direct acts of espionage. Others have encouraged racial, industrial and campus unrest through undercover contact with American activists. Soviet agents, for example, have helped to stir up the nationwide campaign in behalf of Angela Davis, the Red Joan of Arc, now in federal custody.

The British, once confronted with the documented evidence of Soviet spying, expelled 90 Russians from the country and revoked the visas of 15 others. The U.S. during the 1960s expelled 11 Soviet Embassy officials, another 11 Soviet UN employees.

FBI SURVEILLANCE

The FBI has accumulated enough evidence to justify the expulsion of several more Soviets. But the State Department has opposed their ouster, particularly in recent years, for the sake of Soviet-American relations.

In order to promote the spirit of detente, the State Department has preferred to overlook what it considers to be purely routine espionage.

For instance, the FBI made a case against Oleg D. Kalugin, a handsome Soviet newsman-diplomat-agent, who tried to recruit a Greek immigrant for undercover work in the U.S. Under the assumed name of "Victor Kraknikovich," Kalugin held secret trysts with the immigrant, John Makris, in hotel lobbies, restaurants, a Greenwich Village bookstore and at various spots in the Bronx.

They discussed a number of plans. First, Makris was to infiltrate the anti-Castro movement in New York. Later he was to move to Washington and set up a business front, then travel around the country as a bagman, distributing money to Soviet agents. At one point, Kalugin instructed Makris to cultivate a secretary in the FBI's Manhattan office.

But all the while, Makris was reporting to the FBI. The evidence justified Kalugin's expulsion, but the State Department didn't want to rock the diplomatic boat.

The FBI made a similar case against Galina "Galya" Utekhina, formerly the Soviet cultural attache in Washington. FBI agents soon discovered she was promoting culture at softly lit restaurants where she dated prominent figures from Capitol Hill, government agencies, Western embassies and the United Nations.

Again, the State Department refused to take action. The battle between diplomacy and security, meanwhile, is still going on.

The peace-preaching Senator explained quietly that he was gathering "ammunition" to fight back.

Slow Mail --The Navy's interoffice mail system makes even the bogged down U.S. Postal Service look efficient. Naval inspectors, after a secret study, reported: "A recent series of tests was conducted to record times required to process mail from receipt to arrival at action desks." They found it sometimes took six days to deliver interoffice mail one block, sometimes three days to route it from one floor to another in the same building. "Several pieces (of mail) were lost" during the tests. Concludes the inspectors' classified report: The Navy "falls short of the standard . . . (of) two working hours from receipt in the mailroom to delivery to the action desk."

Medical Squeeze --The American Medical Association maintains such tight control over medical training in this country that half of the qualified applicants are turned away. The reason for this is to restrict the number of doctors so they can continue to charge high fees. Thousands of high school graduates, who want to become doctors, are forced to take up other professions. The more persistent go to foreign schools for their medical training. More than 1,000 Americans, for exmaple, attend a medical school across the border in Guadalajara, Mexico.

"What do women really want? They own the world already. Why do they want to run it?"

"Free them? That makes me laugh. Free them from what?

"The hand that rocks the cradle now wants to upset the apple cart."

"Women do deserve special consideration because they have the problem of bearing children. But men have a problem, too. They have to bear with women."

"Agatha, how can you hope to be equal to a man if you go around acting like a woman?"

"Look, they gave the women the right to vote because it was thought they would clean up politics. That was 50 years or so ago. So what about politics today? Has it ever been in a bigger mess?"

"What good does it do to give a woman what she wants anyway? As soon as she gets it, she decides she wants something else."

"Hey, Agatha, I just thought up a slogan for your women's liberation movement. How about 'Today the world, tomorrow the universe'?'

"All I can say is we'll never have a female president as long as I'm alive and resident."

"Imagine having a Supreme Court made up of four old men and five old ladies. It just doesn't make sense."

"This whole female freedom movement sounds to me like a rumor in a bloomer."

"Why should women get paid as much as men? If they did, would they spend their money on men the way men spend their money on women now? In a pig's eye they would!"

"I wouldn't mind womankind being liberated if someone would agree to liberate mankind, too."

"No matter how equal you make a woman she'll always expect a man to do the pushing when they go through a revolving door."

"Agatha, if I agree to right all your wrongs, will you get out of the pulpit and back into the kitchen? I'm hungry, honey."

Great Cripplers -Part II

Muscular Dystrophy Makes Special Target Of Boys

Editor's Note: Muscular Dystrophy makes a special target of boys. The following article, detailing efforts to alleviate the disease, is the second of a five-part series on "The Great Cripplers.

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A scientific henhouse in Manhattan may hold the key to the riddle of muscular dystrophy, the muscle-wasting scourge of the Little League age group.

Among mankind's great cripplers, muscular dystrophy makes a special target of boys and afflicts males five to six times more frequently than females.

Muscular dystrophy, actually a group of 30 diseases, is marked by progressive weakening and wasting of voluntary muscles, the skeletal muscles near the body's surface.

At least 250,000 Americans suffer from MD, and there is no proven cure nor preventive or even controlling treatment for the mostly hereditary affliction. About 50,000 are disabled completely confined for life to wheel chair and bed. The national medical bill is $125 million annually.

But at New York's Institute for Muscle Research, there's cautious hope that experiments with 1,000 caged chickens may reduce this human and economic toll.

About half are a special New Hampshire breed afflicted by a hereditary disease that closely resembles muscular dystrophy.

Dr. Ade Milhorat, director of the institute sponsored by the Muscular Dystronphy Association of America, stresses there's no guarantee that treatment applicable to MD victims will come from the experiments and cautions against undue optimism among MD sufferers and their families.

Researchers have found that chemicals derived from vegetable oils, including oil from the yellow safflower plant, have been able to reverse with some degree of consistency the processes in chickens that parallels MD. This constitutes the first such demonstration in any living creature.

Testing in humans must await further tests with the chickens, Dr. Milhorat says.

At the 11-story, $5-million research institute, doctors work with a small number of research patients, some of whom suffer from Duchenne muscular dystrophy, the most prevalent and severe form of the disease.

Named for the French doctor who first discovered its symptoms, Duchenne MD strikes boys between the ages of 2 to 6. By 11 years victims mostly are confined to wheel chairs.

Most die before adulthood because weakening of their muscles makes it difficult for them to cought—sometimes resulting in suffocation—or the heart muscle becomes lethally weak.

Another form of MD, "facioscapulo-humeral type," slowly affects the face shoulders and arms. Face muscles are hit first and a victim often is eventually powerless to smile or sip through a straw.

Like Duchenne MD, it is an hereditary form of muscular dystrophy, but the facial type strikes teen-agers and adults of both sexes.

A third major form of MD is the limb-girdle type, also hereditary and affecting both sexes. It first strikes in childhood or adolescene and first affects use of arms and legs. The disease develops slowly and victims may reach middle age.

Other, less common mixed forms of MD also exist. Not inherited, they can strike anyone between the ages of 30 to 50, according to the National Health Education Committee.

"The course of the disease is rapid, often causing death in from five to 10 years," the voluntary health agency says.

To aid the study of the metabolism of MD victims, patients at the research institute eat a specially measured, meat-free diet.

"The reason we keep meat out of the diet is that most meat consists of muscle, and we'd rather not have it in the bodiiy waste products of these research patients, since we're trying to assess the condition of their own muscles," a researcher explains.

No medicines of proven value are available yet to alter the course of MD, but the research patients undertake gentle exercises designed to keep muscles stretched to full length and delay the onset of a condition called shortened joints.

Elsewhere in the nation, a few doctors have reported promising results with a few patients in tendon-cutting and other surgical techniques aimed at delaying disability from MD. But such methods still are controversial.

Some researchers see genetic counseling as a means of preventing Duchenne MD, an inherited disease related to a defective chromosome carried by some women.

A woman who has one son afflicted with Duchenne MD has a one-in-two chance of having another, says Dr. Carl Pearson of the Muscle Disorder Clinic of the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center.

But Dr. Pearson says recent advances in using a certain enzyme and other tests make it possible to detect up to 90 per cent of female carriers who themselves rarely show any symptoms of MD.

This new ability to detect most carriers "provides a great opportunity for genetic counseling and for encouraging such women not to have children because of the risk," Dr. Pearson says.

Four alternative possibilities are being explored as a basic cause of MD, he says. They are based on theories that the disease may stem from a defect in the muscle cell membrane, the energy supply system to muscles, the protein that normally makes muscles contract or in a some primary defect in the central nervous system or branching nerves.

Until recently, Dr. Pearson says, MD was considered to be purely a muscle disease with no neurological basis, but now there's growing evidence to the contrary. (NEXT:) Cerebral Stroke

House Approves Tax Cut Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed today by voice vote a controversial package of business and individual tax cuts, $15.4 billion over three years, keyed to President Nixon's new economic program.

Despite a last-minute stepup in opposition by labor union officials, the House acted without even demanding a roll call. About 50 members were on the floor.

Although the Ways and Means Committee reshuffled the Nixon tax program, reducing benefits to business by about $5 billion and increasing individual tax cuts by about $3.5 billion, opponents contend it is still a bonanza to big business. Using this argument, the AFL-CIO sent a letter to all House members Tuesday urging them to reject the bill.

Benefits for individuals are concentrated largely in the lower-income brackets. All individual taxpayers would get at least a little relief—possibly as early as November—through a speedup in bigger personal exemptions.

For example, a single person with $3,000 income would save $18 on this year's tax, $55 next year, $47 in 1973.

For one earning $15,000, the savings would be $8 the first year, $14 the second, none the third.

A married couple with two dependents and $4,000 income would save $17 this year and $28—the entire tax liability— next year.

The similar couple with $15,000 income would save $22 this year, $44 next year.

For business, the big change would be revival of the investment credit. Seven per cent of the cost of new equipment could be charged off against income tax. But the committee offset this advantage to some extent by tightening fast-depreciation rules the Treasury put into effect this year.

The combination of all these changes, the committee calculated, would be an overall $350million increase in business taxes for 1971, a $2.75-billion decrease in business taxes for 1972, and a $3.27-billion reduction for 1973.

Missouri Meat Inspection Program Gains Approval

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's meat inspection program has been approved by the Agriculture Department.

Hall said the USDA has certified Missouri's meat inspection program as being equal to the federal program.

In Jefferson City, a spokesman for the Missouri Department of Agriculture said a USDA official in Washington confirmed Hall's announcement by telephone. Gene Davis of the Missouri department's information office quoted the federal official as saying a letter of notification was on its way to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's parliament building, the Knesset, received a daily average of 10,000 visitors during the 1971 summer months. Among the tourists have been Arabs who received visas to visit relatives in Israeli-occupied territories.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Only one of every four newly eligible voters between 18 and 21 has registered to vote in Baltimore, according to the Board of Election Supervisors.

Of those who registered, 88 per cent said they were Democrats.

Senators Opposed To Pay Hike Delay Face Long Odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators trying to nullify President Nixon's postponement of a federal pay raise are maneuvering against admittedly heavy odds to win acceptance of a compromise.

In the Senate and in the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, moves were under way to permit government employes to get whatever pay raises are allowed in the private sector under the President's economic policies.

As part of his economic-stabilization program announced Aug. 15, Nixon ordered a sixmonth postponment of a 6 per cent pay raise, scheduled Jan. 1, for government employes and military personnel.

However, either the Senate or the House can veto the President's order. By a 207-174 vote on Monday, the House refused to do so. The Senate has until midnight Thursday to act.

Before the House vote, the White House said that if Congress caved in under pressures to override Nixon's order, "the inflationary consequences would be rapid, extensive and severe."

In the Senate, a resolution to veto the President's order has been introduced by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah. But Moss told newsmen its chances of adoption are very doubtful unless a compromise can be worked out.

A compromise he has proposed would keep pay raises for federal employes within whatever guidelines are established for private employes in Phase 2 of the President's economic program, expected to be announced within a few days.

Moss' bill is before the Post Office and Civil Service committee, along with another by Chairman Gale McGee, DWyo., that is similar in intent but would give the President more discretion in adjusting federal civilian and military pay.

The committee was unable to muster a quorum Tuesday to act on either bill, with the result that under Senate rules any legislation it approves cannot be brought up in the Senate on Thursday without unanimous consent.

This could upset what McGee and Moss said they hoped to do: get the Senate to veto Nixon's order with the understanding this would be followed by legislation limiting a government pay hike to the guidelines set for the private sector.

A separate move to achieve the same end was being undertaken by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., through an amendment to the military procurement bill now before the Senate.

Montgomerys Buy Control Of Enterprises

Joel Montgomery, who yesterday announced he and his wife have purchased "better than 50 per cent" of the stock of Himmelberger-Harrison Lumber Company said there will be "no major changes" in the company's operations.

Montgomery said the lumber company is a holding company that controls H&H Manufacturing of Morehouse, the State Bank of Morehouse and between 2,500 and 3.000 acres of farmland in Stoddard County.

The manufacturing company operates the Himmelberger-Harrison lumber mill in Morehouse. Dimension lumber for furniture manufacturing companies throught the United States is cut at the mill.

The company pioneered the use of gum wood for interior finish and furniture. It purchases a variety of lumber, cuts and kiln dries it to customers' specifications. Lumber processed by the company is issued almost entirely for furniture and cabinets.

Montgomery said he hopes to create and develope new businesses and to make the company "even more substantial than it is now."

Montgomery recently sold the former Idan-Ha Hotel of Cape Girardeau. The property, which is being rebuilt by Burton J. Gerhardt, the buyer, into an apartment complex, is across the street from the H and H Building.

The Himmelberger name has been associated with the development of agricultural lands and the rise of the hardwood industry in Southeast Missouri since 1879 when Isaac Himmelberger and his son, John H., began operating a sawmill at the village of Buffington, near Morehouse. The business known as the I. Himmelberger Co., continued for 10 years.

In 1890 John H. Himmelberger moved to Morehouse where he purchased a sawmill. The mill was merged with the Luce interests in 1895 and the company became known as the Himmelberger- Luce Land and Lumber co.

The old Morehouse mill was destroyed by fire in 1890 and was replaced by a larger facility. Another mill was erected in 1904 but was closed many years ago when the supply of virgin timber decreased.

Under an arrangement with the Luce heirs, the company acquired about 100,000 acres for lumber production. Logging was difficult in those days because dikes of the Little River Drainage District and other districts had not been built to protect the lowlands from Mississippi River floodwaters.

When the company's lumber activity was at its peak, after the late W. H. Harrison became associated with it in 1902, the business manufactured 40 million feet of lumber in one year.

The firm's name was changed to Himmelberger-Harrison Lumber Co. in 1902.

Following his father's death in 1900, John H. Himmelberger became president of the company. Later active management was left to his son, Harry I Himmelberger, who was vice president and general manager. He eventually became president of the board and held the position for 24 years.

His son, J.E. ("Jack") Himmelberger, became president of the two corporations - the lumber and manufacturing companies in 1955, when the father was elected board chairman. J. E. Himmelberger later also became chairman and continues to hold these positions under the new transaction.

Two Elected To State Legislature

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrat Vernon King of Excelsior Springs and Republican Morris Westfall of Halfway are the newest members of the Missouri House of Representatives.

Westball collected 3,393 votes to 1,948 for Democrat Perry Lane of Buffalo in unofficial final returns, to succeed his father, R.E. Westball, as representative from the 140th district.

The elder Westfall's recent death necessitated the 140th district election. The seat won by King was vacant because of Democrat Dick Dale's resignation Sept. 1 to become general counsel for the Missouri Vankers Association.

In one of several local elections in Missouri and Kansas Tuesday, Independence, Mo., voters overwhelmingly rejected a proposed penny-a-gallon local gasoline tax. Unofficial final returns showed 1,796 votes in favor of the proposal, 9,159 against it.

At Richmond, Mo., a general obligation bond issue to provide funds for a municipal swimming pool was defeated.

School bond issues were rejected at Winfield and Minneapolis, Kan. The vote at Minneapolis was 300 in favor, 531 against a $1.65 million bond issue for a junior-senior high school. At Winfield, 2,150 votes were recorded in favor, 2,747 against a proposed $3.1 million bond issue for construction of a four-year high school.

Hirohito Heckled

LONDON (AP) — A British prisoner of the Japanese during World War II shouted abuse at Emperor Hirohito today as the Japanese monarch rolled through London in a horsedrawn carriage.

Police guarding the procession route and patrolling the rooftops watched the demonstrator warily but made no move to silence him. The emperor, solemn-faced, ignored the shouts.

The yelling incident, in a mixture of English and Japanese, flared as the emperor's gold-trimmed carriage approached the entrance to St. James Palace, where Hirohito went to meet foreign diplomats.

The demonstrator, who refused to give his name, told newsmen: "I was shouting out the orders that they used to shout at me when I was a prisoner of war in a Japanese camp. I was tortured for three months.

"I think it's disgracefui that our establishment should be showing hospitality to these people."

Cemetery Strike Ends

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cemetery workers have voted to end a four-month strike and burials resume today at 11 cemeteries just south of San Francsico.

The protracted walkout had drawn anguished protests from relatives of some of the 1,500 deceased who were left unburied.

Spokesmen for the cemetery union estimated it would take six weeks to complete the backlog of burials.

Mayor Joseph Alioto said union and management representatives forged a three-year contract agreement during a 15hour emergency session which ended Tuesday, but details were not released. Workers ratified the agreemunt Tuesday night in a 141-9 vote.

The cemetery workers had been on strike since June 3 against 10 cemeteries in suburban Colma and one in Palo Alto.

Ann Landers

Neighbors Won't Leave Her Alone

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been happily married for 16 years. A few weeks ago my husband blurted out something that has made me so miserable I can barely stand it. Out of a clear blue sky he said he had a confession to make. It seems that in 1959 when we lived in a dorm for married college students, he met another gal who also lived in our dorms--in, of all places, the supermarket. She had a large bag of groceries and he offered to drive her back to the dorm since she had no car. On an impulse they drove to the woods and had a 15-minute affair. He said he became physically ill afterward, (guilt, of course) and told her they must never do such a thing again. They never did.

The girl and her husband live 2,000 miles away but we have kept in touch through letters, cards and school reunions. I am so crushed by the knowledge that my husband did such a rotten thing to me that I want to telephone her and let her know I am now in possession of the facts.

My husband would prefer that I not call. We have agreed to abide by your decision.---Yuba City

Dear Yu: If you place the call you will accomplish the following:

a. Make your husband look like a loose-lipped jerk.

b. Make yourself look like an insecure, addle-brained fool.

c. Fix it so you will never again be comfortable in the girl's presence.

d. Add about $10 to your phone bill.

Is it worth it?

Dear Ann Landers: I have never had the need to write to you before but I need you now. This letter is about neighbors. Ann, I moved into this lovely apartment several months ago and I love it. I DON'T want to move, but I might have to if people don't leave me alone.

The woman across the hall knocked on my door seven times last week. Not only is she a borrower, but she is mad at her psychiatrist and using me as a substitute. I told her I am not qualified, but she says, "All you have to do is listen. That's all he did and HE charged me $35 an hour."

The couple next door drink and they fight every night. The woman usually winds up here with a towel over her mouth or a piece of meat on her eye. Her husband then joins her, and they continue the fight in my living room. I don't need this. Then there's a man who lost his wife last year and he shows up at my door with a needle and thread (he can't thread it), or a recipe he can't understand. He is nice but a terrible pest.

Please tell me what to do? I am a prisoner in my own home. -- Oakland

Dear Oak: Have a one-way peephole put in your door. You can see out, but no one can see in. This device will enable you to decide whether or not you want to open the door. Even if your radio or TV is on, and the party knows you are at home, you are under no obligation to answer the door if you don't feel like it.

Confidential to Was It Funny Or Not: To ME, it was not funny, but then not all people agree on humor. I do not find humor in anything that is hurtful or degrading to another person. The person who can laugh at himself, in my opinion, possesses a beautiful sense of humor.

Give in or lose him. . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking and Petting--What Are The Limits?" Preparing A Garden For Winter Will Pay Off In The Spring

NEW YORK — The approach of fall marks the beginning of a busy time for gardeners. A number of chores have to be tackled to put things in shape as Mother Nature buttons up and prepares for the long winter sleep.

Shade trees, particularly those that grow densely at the top, are pruned both for esthetic and safety reasons.

Revealing the trunk and branches makes a tree more attractive. It also "opens up" the tree and reduces wind resistance so winds can pass through more easily and prevent a tree from toppling during a storm.

Pruning is also necessary to keep branches out of utility wires and to remove dead branches that could give way and damage the house or endanger passers-by.

The easiest way to spot a dead branch is by the absence of leaves. So these branches should be removed before the leaves begin to fall and while the branches can still be easily identified.

Fall is also the best time for dropping dead trees.

The pruning operation can provide a winter-long supply of fire-wood. For convenience's sake, cut and store the wood for use while the weather is still pleasant.

With the trees taken care of, it's time to consider a general clean-up of the garden.

Cut back or pull out the old, bloomed-out plants. Most perennials die down to the ground, so they should be cut, too. And prune summer and fall blooming shrubs after they bloom. If you wait until spring to do this, some of the flowering wood will be lost.

Low growing perennials and winter annuals need mulching with straw or hay. A word of caution hers. Don't use leaves for this task. The leaves often pack and cause plants to suffocate.

Rose bushes and other tender plants also need winter protection. Put them in cold storage by placing hay or straw around the stems so they are not exposed to repeated freezing and thawing temperatures. This, and not cold, is what usually causes winter kill.

When the work is done, your garden will be neat all winter and, equally important, be ready to grow rapidly with the first rays of a warming spring sun.

Nixon And Girl Have Entanglement

GREENVILLE, Del. (AP) —A cute five-year-old girl got her long, blonde tresses entangled in a button on the jacket of President Nixon's suit Tuesday night and, for a time, it seemed a tossup whether she would lose a hank of hair or he a button.

Nixon and petite Page Evans managed to disentangle themselves and the young lady assured the President she had not been hurt.

The incident occurred when Nixon made a flying visit here to meet with Republican fund-raisers. Miss Evans is the daughter of Thomas Evans Jr., cochairman of the Republican National Committee.

Nixon asked Mrs. Evans if the family's three children ever see their father.

"They will in this picture," she replied as her daughter snuggled up to the President.

Sikeston Co-eds Queen Contestants

CANTON — Two Sikeston coeds are candidates for the queen's court as Culver-Stockton College selects the homecoming queen, Miss Culver-Stockton, this month.

Candidates for the court include Leslie Johnson, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. T. Johnson, 403 Dorothy, and Nancy Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Turner, 118 Daniel.

Miss Culver-Stockton and her court will be announced October 15, during an intermission in a concert by Punch, a popular music group which has toured with Burt Bacharach.

Both Miss Johnson and Miss Turner are graduates of Sikeston high school and both are juniors at Culver-Stockton. Miss Johnson is majoring in English and Miss Turner is majoring in psychology and elementary education.

Sikeston String Muscians To Participate In Festival

MURRAY, Ky.--Eighteen selected string musicians from Sikeston high school will be among 92 from 12 junior and senior high schools in four states who will be on the Murray State University campus Monday to participate in the 24th annual Quad-State String Orchestra Festival.

Their director is Richard C. Powell.

Neale B. Mason, an associate professor of music at Murray State will direct the "A" orchestra, which will be made up of the more advanced players, while H. Leo Blair, an assistant professor of music at the university, will direct the "B" orchestra, to be composed of the less-experienced string players.

Sponsored jointly by the Music Department at Murray State and the First District Kentucky Music Educators Association, the festival is the first of three which will be held on the campus during the current school year. Gearld Sledd, music director at Mayfield High School, is president of the FDKMEA.

"This is not a competitive festival," said Leonard D. Whitmer, the assistant chairman, "But a one-day group activity to encourage young string players."

Rehearsals for both orchestras are scheduled to begin at 8:45 a.m. The "A" orchestra will rehearse in the University Auditorium, while the "B" orchestra will practice in the Richard Farrell Recital Hall in the new Fine Arts Center.

A joint concert by the two orchestras will be presented at 7 p.m. in the University Auditorium along with a recording session and a radio broadcast. There is no charge, and the public is invited.

Other activities scheduled for the day include a directors' Luncheon at noon and a string clinic for the visiting directors' at 2 p.m. in Room 210 of the Fine Arts Center.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—What can be done to keep carpet runners from turning up at the ends? I do hope someone can give me an answer.—BERNICE

DEAR POLLY—I have two Pet Peeves. When a company sends a sales agreement for a purchase they print the agreement, plus the guarantee and terms on the coupon which you fill out and mail for the special bargain. However, once this is mailed you have no way of proving what the sales contract said or guaranteed.

The stores where I shop all prepackage their vegetables, fruits, etc., in family-sized packages. They do not seem to realize there are hundreds of people who live alone and cannot possibly use these portions before at least half is spoiled. I feel sure their sales would increase if they also packaged small portions, medium-sized and family portions. Of course, one can ask for a smaller amount but if they prepackage items for convenience, why not for the customer's convenience.—MRS. K. N. R.

DEAR POLLY — Our old lawn mower was beyond repair so my husband removed the motor, blade, etc. I am pregnant and need exercise so instead of driving to the coin laundry I put my baskets of clothes on the mower base and push it the two blocks. The kids also like to get an occasional ride on it.—MRS. I. P. S.

DEAR POLLY—If customers pushed grocery carts left in parking lots back to the store when they go shopping, many a nicked car would be avoided and carts would always be available.—MARGE

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. L. V. B.—An easy way to remove the silver backing from an old and damaged mirror so the glass can be used as a tabletop is to apply salt moistened with vinegar. Let it stand awhile and the silver comes right off when rubbed with an old soft cloth.

Girls, don't forget to record the number of rolls of wallpaper needed for a room on the back of a picture hung in the newly papered room. Will be a time-saver when it needs redoing.—BESSIE

DEAR READERS—I found repeating the application of salt and vinegar helped in removing the silver and mine required the use of a small sharp knife for careful scraping off.—POLLY

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Welfare and SS--- One Bill or Two?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, wants badly to separate proposed important Social Security changes from controversial welfare reform in the bill called H.R. 1. He would delay welfare action while pushing Social Security through this fall.

Even if he should succeed in this, however, the word from the House side is that Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills will put welfare features right back in the bill when it comes to conference.

It is Mills' continuing conviction that final passage of welfare reform is dependent upon linking it to the Social Security "sweetener."

Long, on the other hand, is so exercised over what he considers the vast catalogue of welfare abuses that he wants lots of time to tinker with reform proposals.

After the senator's speech in mid-September to the National Governors' Conference at San Juan, Puerto Rico, he campaigned among the governors to try to build grass roots support for separating welfare and Social Security in the pending bill.

He promised some governors he would send them pertinent materials on the welfare issue, with the evident hope they would publicly urge slower handling of reform to make sure abuses could be dealt with. There is no clear indication how many governors may respond to Long's pleas.

President Nixon may have played into Long's hands when he urged in his Aug. 15 economic speech that the effective date of welfare reform be delayed a year. Though the President later said he did not want to delay action on the proposals in Congress, Long's purposes benefit from the wide impression that Nixon is in no immediate hurry.

If the net effect of the delaying maneuvers is to endanger the prospect of H.R. 1's passage this year, a strong possibility exists that some lawmakers may try to attach the Social Security amendments in the bill to some other sure-to-pass measure—so the changes can take effect in 1972. That tactic worked in March, when more limited but urgently desired Social Security changes whistled through as a rider on other legislation.

The new modifications would add around $3.885 billion in Social Security payments for the elderly, the disabled and the widowed in the first full year of operation. Some $2.1 billion of that would be an across-the-board boost in basic benefits, payable next June but retroactive to January. More than 27 million Americans would get the latter increase.

In addition, many changes in Medicare would be introduced, most with the aim of providing tighter cost controls on a program whose financial burden is rising alarmingly.

As an indication of what that burden is doing, the Social Security Administration is announcing that beginning in January the Medicare recipient will have to pay a larger sum before he can start having his hospital bills paid by the government.

This so-called "hospital deductible" figure is presently fixed at $60, deemed heretofore to be the equivalent of one day's charge for a hospital room. The boosting of this figure reflects the painful upward spiral in hospital costs.

It is interesting to note that daily hospital charges are still rising even as the average length of stay in a hospital is declining for the Medicare patient. In the fiscal year ended June 30, that average figure dropped to 12.2 days per stay, as against 12.9 the previous year. There was also a decline in the 1970 fiscal year from fiscal 1969.

Relocation Payments Raised For Highways

JEFFERSON CITY—Persons relocated by highway construction from now on will be getting more financial aid and more options to help them with the move, according to the Missouri State Highway Commission.

The Commission announced today that expanded acquisition policies will allow the Highway Department to raise the ceiling on some of its existing relocation payment schedules and to make several new benefits available. The new policy covers individuals, business, farms and non-profit organizations displaced by highway projects.

"The new provisions will make highway construction somewhat slower and more difficult," said Robert Smith, head of the Department's Right of Way Division. "But we believe the benefits to persons displaced — particularly in urban areas —will far outweigh these and other shortcomings. Obviously, it is necessary that suitable compensation and assistance be provided to those who are displaced for the benefit of the general public."

Until now, the Highway Department has been paying displaced homeowners both the fair market value of their property and their moving expenses plus any supplement needed (up to $5000) to buy a comparable replacement home.

For displaced renters, moving expenses plus supplements up to $1500 have been paid if needed to rent comparable quarters.

Making the new regulations retroactive to last January 2 to cover federal-aid projects in addition to those of the Highway Department, the Commission has raised the ceiling on replacement housing purchase supplements to $15,000.

Since the new provisions increase other benefits as well as housing purchase supplements, nearly everyone moved by the Highway Department since January 2 will be eligible to receive added payments, Smith said.

The new benefits include:

— Up to $500 instead of $300 for those who accepted a lump sum furniture-moving payment in lieu of actual moving cost.

— Rent supplements up to $4000 figured and payable in equal installments over four years, instead of the previous lump sum figured over two years under a $1500 ceiling.

— Up to $4000 for the displaced renter who has occupied a dwelling more than 90 days and decides to make a down payment on the purchase of replacement housing, provided that all in excess of $2000 is matched by an equal investment.

— Full reimbursement of reasonable closing costs, but not brokerage or insurance fees, paid by displaced persons who bought replacement homes after last January 2.

Even the difference in interest rates between old and new home loans is now reimbursable under a formula schedule, according to Smith. He pointed out, however, that these relocation benefits are payable after relocation, and the maximums mentioned in the new provisions should not be constructed as flat sums payable in every case.

For example, the furniture-moving payment will be less than the maximum unless the equivalent of six rooms or more is involved.

If a $3,000 supplement will put a displaced homeowner in a replacement house that is decent, safe, sanitary and comparable to his old one, he is not entitled to more money, though he may pick a new home superior to his old one.

Neither may he pocket any part of his supplement by switching to cheaper house.

Every effort is made to offer a choice of potential replacements for a displaced person's consideration, with the additional option of doing his own house hunting. Also offered is house-hunting assistance, even to providing transportion, in some cases, in Highway Department cars.

Several benefits are also open to business proprietors displaced for highway purposes. To them, the new provisions offer payment for:

— Actual reasonable expenses of moving the business and any personal property on the business premises.

— Actual direct loss of tangible personal property in moving or discontinuing a business.

— Actual reasonable expenses, up to $500, for searching for a replacement business.

— Either actual moving expenses paid to a licensed, bonded mover without limit or a self-move allowance equal to the lower of two estimates from such movers.

If officials find a business cannot be relocated without substantial loss of annual average dollar volume, and that it is not part of a chain, and that it contributes materially to the displaced proprietor's income, he can be given $2500 to $10,000 computed on average annual net earnings of the two previous years.

This payment, in lieu of moving expenses, also can be figured for a business in operation as little as 12 successive months.

Examiner Approves Chester Bridge Fees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said Monday a recommendation against removal of tolls from the Mississippi River bridge at Chester, Ill., has been presented to the Department of Transportation.

The recommendation, Eagleton said, was that by Malcolm P. Littlefield, a Department of Transportation hearing examiner who heard arguments for and against the tolls in June at St. Louis.

Missouri State Rep. Vernon Bruckerhoff, R-St. Mary's, who has led the campaign against the tolls, contends the bridge should have been paid off in 1969, 17 years following its construction.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, who attended a Missouri Highway Commission hearing Sept. 24 at Perryville, Mo., called the tolls "legalized robbery" and said residents of his state would favor closing Missouri 51, the only approach from the west side, if legal efforts to stop the tolls failed.

Littlefield, in his report to the Department of Transportation, said tolls charged by the city of Chester for transit over the bridge "are in accordance with the Bridge Act of March 23, 1906."

"Tolls collected are used for reasonable costs" in the operation and maintenance of the facility, the report added.

Jesse James Died, But How And When?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The manager of a Jesse James Museum near St. Louis says he will continue his efforts to prove the Missouri badman did not die according to legend, but lived on to the age of 102.

A court ruling that the outlaw definitely was killed in 1882 by Bob Ford was upheld Wednesday by the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

But Rudy Turilli claims that James lived until 1961 under the name of J. Frank Dalton. And he says he'll go to the U.S. Supreme Court to prove it.

He first made the claim on a national television show in 1967 and offered $10,000 to anyone who could prove him wrong.

The late Stella James of Los Angeles, daughter-in-law of the outlaw definitely was killed in 1882 by Bob Ford was upheld Wednesday by the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

But Rudy Turilli claims that James lived until 1961 under the name of J. Frank Dalton. And he says he'll go to the U.S. Supreme Court to prove it.

Mrs. James died in April but her two daughters are trying to collect the money.

New Award Given By AP

NEW YORK (AP) — A new award to honor courageous and outstanding effort in defense of freedom of information in the newspaper field will be presented by The Associated Press Managing Editors.

The award was established by the APME last April.

It was created to pay tribute to newsmen or newswomen or newspapers who by their performances have contributed significantly in protecting freedom of the press and the people's right to know.

Nominations were sought by the APME's Freedom of Information Committee. A recommendation for the first award was approved by the APME Board of Directors in August.

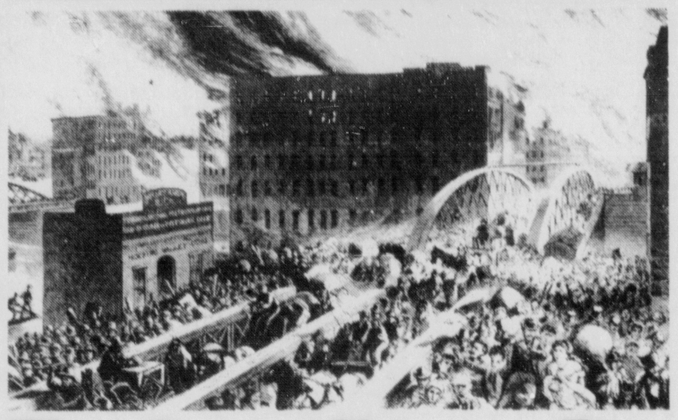
Ruling Opens Loophole In Drunk Driving Law

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — An opinion issued by Atty. Gen. John Danforth has opened some loopholes in Missouri's drunken driving statute, Dee Wampler, Greene County prosecuting attorney, said today.

Wampler said the attorney general maintained no law enforcement authorities in the state can authorize hospital employes to draw blood samples from injured drivers suspected of being intoxicated.

The county prosecutor said this decision would leave authorities with no accurate method for determining the alcoholic content in the blood of suspects hospitalized with injuries.

Wampler said he would seek support in the next session of the legislature for a law that would require an injured suspect to submit to blood sampling when hospitalized.



The Great Chicago Fire

It was 100 years ago, Oct. 8, 1971, that the first few flames began clawing at the inside of a small cowshed on a quiet Chicago street. They were the beginning of one of the most spectacular disasters in history, the Great Fire, which lasted three days, killing 300 people and destroying the heart of Chicago, then a city of more than 330,000 people. No photographs taken during the fire itself have ever been found but drawings, such as those immediately above and at left, show the terror that gripped the burning city. When the fire was over, little was left, as the photo at top shows, but the city rebuilt quickly, eventually evolving into the modern metropolitan giant shown below, dominated by the sky-piercing John Hancock Center. White House Says Press Too Sensitive To Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says the press is too sensitive to criticism by government officials like that recently made by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

"In well over two years, I don't think there was any instance that the administration showed anything but respect for the free press," presidential press secretary Ro8 Ziegler said Tuesday.

The issue came up when newsmen questioned Ziegler about American Civil Liberties Union complaints that Agnew's statements Monday in Anaheim, Calif., about coverage of the recent Attica, N.Y., prison riot constituted intimidation of the press. Ziegler said he would not comment on what Agnew said, but he backed the vice president's "right to express himself."

He said the government should be open to criticism and the press should also.

He declined to comment on whether the administration would favor legislation to protect reporters' sources. A Senate subcommittee has been holding freedom-of-the-press hearings and has been trying to get government officials to testify about press-government relations.

Nixon's director of communications, Herbert G. Klein, refused an invitation to testify on grounds he is a member of the immediate staff of the President.

Circus Fan Tells Of Hobby

Earl Allen, a circus enthusiast for almost a half century, spoke to the Optimist club today at the Holiday Inn. He told members how he became involved with the "greatest entertainment on earth."

"I was born at Cairo and after the turn of the century the city had as many as 50 passenger trains coming through, and naturally it included circus trains," he said.

"The tent shows begin in the 1880s and continued until the 1930s. I was never associated with a circus but became interested in the high type performers with them.

Today Allen lists more than 1,500 circus performers as well as professional men and women who joined the circus fan, and hardly a week passes but what people drop by the Allen home and look over his 60-year circus history that includes all of the large ones including films on Buffalo Bill's traveling group.

"I can also tell your club today, that the stage performance you are sponsoring Saturday afternoon and evening, will have some of teh best attractions in the nation," he said. I received a telephone call last week advising me to tell the Optimist club that we will arrive at noon Saturday from Springfield, with almost all new acts."

Before You Buy

By Margaret Dana

People everywhere these days seem to be talking about mobile homes -- how fast their production seems to be growing into a huge industry, how different they are from the old-time "trailer," and how well they fit into many urgent needs. All kinds of families are choosing them for all sorts of reasons. And I have had a number of inquiries asking for guidance in selecting the right mobile home, for information on financeing its purchase, and about the wisdom of investing in the ownership and management of a mobile home park.

There is not space available to include all the good and useful information that is on hand, so I shall provide only a few basic and urgent facts and give the sources of others.

To begin with, I think we may safely accept the fact that mobile homes are here to stay. There may not be a continuing stupendous growth for the industry as in recent years, but there can be no doubt that our national housing shortage must turn to pre-built housing for help. Last year mobile home sales reached $5 billion, and they are still rising. So it would seem that either a good mobile home or a good mobile home park is a practical and sensible investment.

Let's define "mobile home."

It is not a recreational vehicle or camper. It is a factory-built year-round home, transported to the home site by specially trained haulers, and then settled on a prepared foundation and connected with the necessary utilities. It is true that the mobile home can later be moved on its own wheels to a new location if desired, but it is not meant to be hauled behind the family car.

Mobile homes come in three primary sizes. They are:

The "Single-wide" — 12 feet by 65 feet, costing from $4,000 to $10,000, depending on equipment and interior.

The "Expandable" — same size as the "Single-Wide but with an addition that folds into the home when it is being transported, but is drawn out when the site is reached. This adds from 60 to 100 square feet to the space. Cost is from $8,000 to $12,000.

The "Double-Wide" —made up of two "Single-Wide" units, built and hauled separately, but joined at the site to make a large living unit. Cost is from $10,000.

Interiors come in various styles. There are differing arrangements of living room, dining room or dinette, kitchen with appliances, one or two bathrooms, one to three of even four bedrooms, storage closets, and an automatic heating system and water heater. Also, virtually all mobile homes today are completely furnished.

Financing a mobile home is becoming easier as the Federal Housing Administration, savings and loan associations, banks, etc., have liberalized their regulations. One asset is that attorney fees and title search are not needed for mobile home buying as they are for ordinary property buying.

But, to make sure your mobile home will not only perform satisfactorily but be suitable for mortgage loans, your first basic guide is to choose one that has been certified by the maker to meet or exceed American Standard A119.1 for Mobile Homes, developed by the American National Standards Institute, a nonprovit organization devoted to co-ordinating and developing sound product standards. If the manufacturer gets this certification, the sign will be a large silver seal so stating and placed near the door of the mobile home. Seventy per cent of the manufacturers subscribe to this standard.

For concise further information on mobile homes the Council of Better Business Bureaus in cooperation with the Mobile Home Manufacturers Association has prepared a leaflet, titled "Mobile Homes, -- How th Choose, Where to Put, How to Finance." For a free copy send your request to me with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fire Department
Chief Dolph Webb, Jr.
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Fire Prevention Week is October 3-9
"KEEP SAFE AS WELL AS WARM"

As outside temperatures drop, indoor fire dangers rise:

This is the warning from Fire Chief Webb who reminds householders that cold weather always bring an increase in the number of destructive fires.

"When home heating systems are pushed hard in cold weather, any weakness in the equipment or installation may show up", the Chief explains. . .

"Avoid possible disaster by having your home heating equipment checked and repaired now, before the first cold snap of the season. And remember that a clean, tight chimney means fuel saving -- and thus money saving--As well as fire safety."

If you use portable room heaters, says the Chief, make sure they are in first- class operating condition and place them so they are not in the path of emergency exit routes, so they can not accidently be bumped or overturned, and so they are well away from walls, clothes racks, curtains, furniture, bedding and other household items which burn easily.

Children and elderly persons should be especially careful around room heaters, Chief Webb warns, and every family should have a fire escape plan, well worked out and rehearsed, for use in case of fire.

"It's good to be warm, but essential to be safe", is the Chief's watchword as thermometers drop.

THE CASE OF THE DOGGED PATIENT

Vera, involved in an automobile accident, had presence of mind, but absence of body would have been even better. For, while she was able to avoid certain death, her injureis were so severe that upon arrival at a hospital, it was determined that her survival depended upon blood transfusions.

Vera's religion, however, prohibited such medical procedures and she vehemently and doggedly objected to such transfusions.

"If you're not given one," she was warned, "your chances of surviving are about as remote as the planet Mars."

"Give me liberty or give me death," was Vera's answer, "but don't give me a transfusion. It's against my religion."

The argument quickly ended up in court where Vera insisted that her Constitutional freedom of religion should be respected.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you impose the blood transfusion over Vera's objection?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that an adult person can be required to submit to blood transfusions necessary to save that person's life, even though it would be contrary to religious principles, since there is no Constitutional right to choose to die. Religious beliefs is not wholly immune from governmental restraint. (Based upon a 1971 New Jersey Supreme Court Decision)

EARL BRASWELL

Contrary to fable, the water is not stored in the hump (which is pure fat) nor in any one part of the camel's body. The camel manages by strict economy -- for instance, it does not sweat until absolutely necessary. During cool nights, a camel's body temperature drops to about 93 degree F. During the heat of the day, this will rise to 105 degree F., before sweating begins. The hairy coat of the animal helps insulate against heat. The urine is also scanty.

The water refiner also has been designed to adapt to extra demands made on your household water. Although it's compact (taking only a space 18" x20") it fits anywhere in your home and will soften, filter and refine up to 7000 gallons of water per week, or on a schedule to meet your requirements. Wouldn't it be wise to trade tap water for refined water?

BOSS HAD TO PAY

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP) — Keith Sisk, city water and sanitation commissioner, received a notice to pay an overdue water bill or have his water shut off.

Sisk, who said he was unaware of the overdue bill for his home, promptly paid the $49.

Fire Razes Farm House

Marshal James Ferguson said the house was engulfed with flames when firemen arrived.

Heavener, who lives in Sikeston, was reported preparing to move into the house. Some furniture was destroyed.

Nixon To Disclose Phase 2 Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will disclose his Phase 2 economic program in a live television-radio address to the nation at 7:30 p.m. EDT Thursday.

The White House made the announcement today.

Nixon was spending much of the day studying recommendations from his Cost of Living Council on policies to go into effect when the current wageprice freeze expires Nov. 13.

Senate Rejects War Ultimatum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected today 60 to 25 an amendment calling for total U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam by Feb. 3 unless new presidential elections are held.

It voted down the proposal of Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, DN.M., as it headed for passage of the $21-billion military procurement authorization bill.

Final action was scheduled in midafternoon.

Montoya's amendment also provides that all U.S. troops should be withdrawn in six months even if a new Vietnamese election is held.

The Senate also is due to vote for the third, and presumably last, time on a proposal by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., in effect banning import of strategically important chrome ore from Rhodesia.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., may seek a vote on his amendment to overturn President Nixon's six-month freeze on federal pay raises. Mathias would give government workers the same increases as the civilian sector under guidelines expected as part of the next phase of the President's economic program.

Final action was scheduled on the big arms bill, which once more has survived Senate floor consideration without any significant reductions of major weapons programs.

In major votes Tuesday, the Senate rejected 64 to 17 an amendment by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to halt U.S. air attacks over Indochina, and three proposals by Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., to provide extra funds for improving the major U.S. offensive-missile systems—the land-based Minuteman and the sea-based Poseidon.

He said the defeat was not overwhelming and predicted the plan could carry the next time around if it is presented when more city voters turn out and if it carries built in safeguards against dishonesty or corruption.

Greenberg blamed religious influences, "scare tactics" and "strangely timed" disclosures of irregularities at St. Louis race tracks for Tuesday's defeat. Thousands of Missourians regularly bet on the ponies at two Illinois tracks across the Mississippi River from St. Louis.

The big victory for the water pollution bond issue was called the greatest thing that ever happened for the clean water campaign in Missouri.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had said that if it carried heavily— as it did in all parts of the state—it might affect his approach to his proposed $700 million s transportation bond issue.

He said the result showed that a bond issue can be passed in Missouri.

"I think it puts to rest," he told the Associated Press, "the feelings some members of the legislature had that a bond issue couldn't be passed in Missouri.

He declined to go further in his immediate post election comment because, he noted, the transportation bond issue carries controversial provision for state aid to mass transit systems and airports.

With 99 per cent of the votes in, including all of the metropolitan areas, the water pollution bonds were approved 406,476 for and 132,196 against.

It will be up to the 1972 legislature to decide how and when the 25-year bonds will be issued.

Jack K. Smith, executive secretary of the state water pollution board, said his staff would go to work today on the 25 pending sewage plant projects that can now be built at an estimated total cost of $40 million.

He said passage of the proposal means Missouri will be able to meet the federal government's 1975 deadline for secondary treatment plants in all cities along the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

It also means, he said, the 240 smaller communities in Missouri without any sewers or treatment plants will be able to get federal and state matching funds to clean up their local problems.

Under the current formula, estimated to produce about $600 million altogether over the next few years, the federal government provides 55 per cent on most projects, the state 25 per cent and local communities 20 per cent. No new state tax will be required to retire the bonds.

If the bonds had not been approved, the federal share would have been cut to one-third, with a corresponding increase in local costs financed from property taxes.

Another proposal that affects many Missouri cities was the extension of broad home rule powers to charter cities over 5,000.

The limit now is 10,000 and the cities have to run to the legislature for specific grants of authority if they want to solve all the local problems involved in fast growing areas.

Now they will be able to do anything they wish, so long as it is not barred by their charters, by legislative acts or by the state constitution.

With 99 per cent of the votes counted, the unofficial tabulation showed 350,629 for the proposal and 167,745 against it.

The one amendment that had the word "tax" in the ballot title carried by the smallest margin.

It will allow second class counties to continue to levy a maximum property tax of 50 cents for five years until they reach full first class status, when the maximum drops to 35 cents on the $100 assessed valuation.

Right now it affects only Clay and Greene Counties, but would cover other second class counties which reach the transitional stage later.

With 99 per cent of the votes tallied, the unofficial count showed 296,352 for the plan and 211,454 against it.

Under this proposal, all veterans will get a 5 per cent better grade on state merit system examinations and disabled veterans will get a 10 per cent break.

The old law was that a veteran had to be a Missourian when he entered the service to get this preferential treatment.

With 99 per cent of the precincts counted, the tally was 340,708 for it and 179,500 against it.

Trends were established early in the tabulating and held up throughout the night in one of the fastest counts ever, thanks to a 1969 law that requires election judges to get their votes in to county clerks and election boards within two hours after the polls close at 7 p.m.

Dogs Host Improved Tribe

The Sikeston Bulldogs will try to stay in the thick of the northern division race Friday night. They take on the co-leading Kennett Indians at public school stadium. The tribe shares the league lead with Perryville.

The Bulldogs have a 1-1- conference record while the Indians sport a 2-0 record.

"Kennett is improved over last year and they are an entirely different team," Coach Bill Priday of the Bulldogs noted.

Their offense is led by senior quarterback David Tippen, who scored two touchdown last week against Paragould, Ark., on runs of 43 and six yards. Tippen is the kicker.

Kennett plays a basic 5-3 defense which has been effective this season.

If four games the Indians have allowed only 18 points for the opposition while shutting out two opponents.

The Indians already hold conference wins over Jackson and Poplar Bluff, allowing only six points against Jackson and shutting out the powerful Mules.

Coach Priday will counter on offense with Junior Bill Colwick who seems to be improving with every game at quarterback and running Back Chester Yarber, who has been breaking for long gainers in the last two ball games for the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs must cut down on costly fumbles that plagued them in the second half against Memphis Fairly Friday night. The India have displayed the ability to take advantage of the other teams mistakes.

Coach Priday indicated that the Bulldogs will use a multiple defense with four to six man lines.

The defense will be led by such stalwarts as Bo Ralph and Brian Montgomery.

Sikeston must win this game to have a chance at the conference crown while Kennett, should they lose, would still have a shot at the title. A win would certainly make the outlook bright.

The Bulldogs will go with the same lineup as in the last two ball games. No serious injuries occurred during the battle in Memphis.

Birds Sweep Series; Await N.L. Champs

OAKLAND (AP) — The champagne corks exploded in the Baltimore Orioles's dressing room. They were the last shots fired in the West against the Oakland A's.

Under a champagne shampoo, the Baltimore Orioles celebrated their 5-3 conquest of Oakland Tuesday that gave the Eastern champions the American League pennant.

"There's not a better team around, nor has there been for several years," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams after his Western champion A's lost their third in a row to the powerful Orioles.

He might be right. The Orioles' sweep gave the defending world champions their third straight pennant. And, each time, they've swept the Western titlist.

"They've got stars and superstars, youth and experience, great pitching tne great fielding," said Oakland's Reggie Jackson, who slugged two home runs Tuesday. ' They've got everything."

The Orioles, indeed, did have everything Tuesday. They had the Robinson boys, Brooks and Frank, in fine shape. And they had slim Jim Palmer pitching a gritty game.

"Palmer was the story today," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He didn't have his good stuff, but he sure gave a heart-and-gut performance. Wasn't he really something in the ninth when he struck out three in a row?"

Palmer scattered seven hits and pitched out of several jams before finishing strong at the end.

"Palmer was having trouble getting his breaking stuff over in the middle innings and he threw almost all fastballs," said Jackson.

"I was tired in the second inning," said the 25-year-old Palmer, but apparently not too tired to pitch a Baltimore pennant-clincher for the fourth time in his career.

Ellie Hendricks' long fly ball drove in the first run from third base in the first inning. But Jackson pulled the A's into a temporary 1-1 tie with a 400foot-plus home run into the left center field stands in the third.

Then Brooks Robinson delivered two runs in the fifth with a bases-loaded single. Lefthanded swinger Hendricks was intentionally walked by the right-handed Segui, who preferred to pitch to the righthanded Brooks Robinson in a bases-loaded situation.

Did it bother Robinson that Segui showed him less respect? "Heck, no," said the great Baltimore third baseman. "If I was him, I would have rather pitched to me."

"The only thing on my mind was: 'Boy, if I could only get a hit with everyone back home watching on television.' I said, 'boy, you've got to do it.'"

He did. And it gave the Orioles a 3-1 lead that Sal Bando cut to one run with a towering home run to left in the sixth.

But the one run was as close as the fallen A's were to come.

Frank Robinson slugged a run-scoring double in the seventh and later came home on a wild pitch to give Baltimore its final runs.

Despite the sweep which gave the Orioles a 9-0 record in playoff games, Weaver scoffed at dynasty talk.

"Heck, there's not much of a difference between the top ball clubs," said the dynamic, little skipper. "There's not that much difference between the Orioles and the A's."

Coaches' Comments

PERRYVILLE — The undefeated Pirates will have their hands full Saturday night as they take on Brentwood high school which is the number one rated small football team in the St. Louis area. Brentwood is undefeated having beaten John Burroughs, Country Day, and Maplewood.

Country Day was rated number one until Brentwood handed it a 27-0 whipping.

Coach Terry Smith said: "They have three good backs and have speed and quickness."

Mark Gotto will once again lead the Pirates' attack at quarterback.

EAST PRAIRIE — Coach Ed McWilliams' Eagles will face a much improved Dexter Bearcat team Friday night when the two teams tangle in a southern division football game at East Prairie.

"Offensively, they're no tougher than Portageville or other teams we've faced," the coach said. "Defensively, they're very strong," commented coach McWilliams. "We're going to have to get our offense together to be in the game."

DEXTER — "We're twice the team we were at the start of the season and there's no comparison in the two teams."

These were the words of coach Clyde Vaughn of the Bearcats, who have rolled over their last two opponents in the southern division and hold a 2-1 mark in conference football play.

Senior Quarterback David Mathis seems to have found the passing arm he displayed last year as he pitched for three touchdowns in last week rout of Hayti.

Dexter will have to prepare for the breakaway running of speedster Annise Davis of East Prairie Friday night. Davis is a threat to go all the way on any play. The EPHS speedster does most of the running for extra points.

Freshman Gridders Host Cape Tonight

Sikeston high school's freshman football team will kickoff its season tonight at Public School Stadium against the Cape Girardeau Central Frosh at 7 p.m. tonight.

The greenies were scheduled to open last week at Paducah, but a disturbance at the Sikeston school forced postponement of the game. It will be re-scheduled.

Volleyball Record Set

SPRINGFIELD , Mo. (AP) --One weekend sport score you may have missed:

Volleyball at Springfield neighbors that they keep the noise down.

East 7,003, West 6,827

Time of game: 144 hours

The participants - a mixture of some 700 Springfield residents and Southwest Missouri State College students - claim that last statistic as a world record for continuous volleyball play.

Dave Bennett, campus minister of the Baptist Student Union, which sponsored the match, said the six full days of play which ended at midnight Saturday broke the record of 125 hours shared by Southwest Missouri and two Seattle teams.

Bennett said the participants persevered through rain, a variety of minor injuries, one power failure in the middle of the night, and suggestions from sleepy

Auto Tour Open At Mingo

PUXICO --A 25 mile tour route around the Mingo National Wildlife Refuge will be open Sunday afternoon during October and November according to Refuge Manager Jerry Clawson.

The self guided tour starts at refuge headquarters one and ½ miles north of Puxico on route 51.

It takes about two hours . Individuals may enter the route from noon on but must be off the trail by dark.

The tour offers an opportunity to see the fall colors and see wildlife. Fall colors usually are at their best about the third week in October. Ducks and geese begin arriving in early October and reach peak numbers in the third week in November.

Visitors often see deer and turkeys and occasionally catch a glimpse of a bobcat.

Clawson suggested visitors bring binoculars and a camera and noted that the best time to see wildlife is in the late afternoon.

Angeles Trade Alex For Vada

ANAHEIM (AP) — Ale Johnson, the suspended outfielder who led the American League in hitting in 1970, has been traded by the California Angels to Cleveland for the Indians' problem outfielder, Vada Pinson.

The Angels also sent along catcher Jerry Moses, fulfilling his request to be traded, and Tuesday's deal also cost Cleveland pitcher Alan Foster and infielder-outfielder Frank Baker.

Johnson, who hit .329 two seasons ago, was suspended without pay in June when Angel management said he wasn't hustling. Through the Major League Players' Association, he filed a grievance and won suspended pay (about $29,000) on grounds he was emotionally distrubed and should have been placed on the team's disabled list.

At 28, Johnson moves to his fifth major league club—after Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati and California—in seven years.

By telephone from his Detroit home, Johnson said:

"This is a great challenge and I like challenges. I can't wait for the season to start. I could say a lot of things about the Angels, but they wouldn't be good for me or good for baseball."

Pinson, 33, had productive years at Cincinnati and St. Louis before he was traded to the Indians in 1969. In his 13th year in the majors, he hit .264 with 11 home runs and 35 runs batted in.

Like Johnson, he asked to be traded. He claimed Cleveland failed to fulfill salary promises for 1971.

State Fame Board To Induct Jenkins

COLUMBIA — Darold Jenkins, all American center on Missouri's 1941 Sugar Bowl team, is the newest member of Missouri's Sports Hall of Fame, secretary- treasurer Don Faurot announced today.

Now an assistant counsel with the state highway commission in Kansas City, Jenkins was selected by a vote of the state's sportswriters and sportscasters. Along with two other 1971 choices yet to be named, the former football standout from Higginsville, Mo. will be officially honored at an awards dinner here on Nov. 6.

That dinner following the Mizzou- Oklahoma game will be held in the Tiger hotel starting at 6 p.m. Tickets for the social hour and dinner are $7.50 each. They may be obtained by contacting: Don Faurot, Alumni Office, Jesse Hall, Columbia, Mo.

Jenkins captained Faurot's '41 Tigers -- his first Split T team that lost 2-0 to Fordham in the Sugar bowl but was often acclaimed as the veteran coach's finest squad. The burley center- linebacker was named to 16 to 21 first-team all-America selections that year.

A wartime commitment as an Eighth Air Force pilot, involving also 15½ months as a prisoner of war, prevented Jenkins from playing professional football. He returned to Mizzou after the war, obtaining his law degree in 1951. He now makes his home in Independence, Mo.

It was also disclosed by Ron Jaynes of the Daily Standard, a member of the Hall of Fame's board of directors, that two Southeast Missouri coaches names will appear on the 1972 ballot, which will be sent to newspaper, radio and television sports directors next season.

Mizzou Faces Best

COLUMBIA, Mo. — To a man, Missouri's scheming football Tigers have to be thinking big this week.

Nebraska's awesome Cornhuskers are in town Saturday for a football frolic in Memorial Stadium. They are the defending national champions, unbeaten in their last 23 outings. They occupy the No. 1 collegiate pedestal, having disposed of four 1971 victims with ridiculous ease -- Oregon, Minnesota, Texas A & M, and Utah State.

Hey, just a minute! No requiems, please. Don't tell the Tigers that it's a gross mismatch. They won't buy that line.

"I already know I'm gonna be higher 'n a kite. I feel great. It's never entered my mind that we're gonna lose."

Missou rooters will toast that positive approach, but Onofrio's appraisal of Saturday's foe is more professional and dispassionate.

"This is the finest offensive and defensive Nebraska team since I've been here (14 years)," says the Missouri coach. "They are an ideal type of team -- well-balanced, and can do a lot of things."

Curiously, the Huskers current string dates from a 17-7 loss to Mizzou in Memorial Stadium two years ago. John Brown, a sophomore defensive end that day, butted quarterback Jerry Tagge, forcing a fumble that Brown covered on Nebraska's 16 just before halftime. Terry McMillan's eight-yard scoring pass to end Tom Shryock sent Missouri to the locker room with a 14-0 cushion.

Tagge, of course, is the skilful conductor of Devaney's attack. The 215-pound senior from Green Bay, Wis., leads the Big Eight's passers with a 66-per cent completion mark and six touchdown pegs. Yet, he shares top billing with Van Brwonson, a slender 185-pound senior, in Nebraska's uniquely-successful tandem quarterback scheme.

Naturally, backs like scampering Johnny Rodgers -- the league's top pass-catcher and punt-rebuttal man -- and Jeff Kinney at tailback don't hurt Devaney's image as the nation's winningest coach. And, rookie fullback Bill Olds - smashing along at an 8.4 -yard rushing clip -- has been a stout fellow.

On defense, Nebraska's spoilers are led by tackle Larry Jacobson and end Willie Harper. The Cornhuskers dominate the circuit in total defense and scoring defense.

Ol' Mizzou comes off a blundering loss to Army -- a game in which the Tigers moved the football for 380 total yards, but sputtered woefully within easy scoring range. Obviously, the Missouri offense can ill-afford such wasted effort Saturday.

Onofrio gets back two starters -- split end John Henley and slotback Mike Fink -- whose leg ailments kept them off the Army travel roster. Mike Farmer, out since the Stanford opener with a mashed hand, should be ready to resume punting.

Tailbacks Jack Bastable and Bruce Berry lamed ankes at West Point -- but Bastable's re-injury was apparently minor, and thy 190-pound junior will strart. Berry, a shifty rookie, looks doubtful.

A record 62,000 or 63,000 for this series in Columbia will watch the two rivals meet for the 65th time. The Cornhuskers hold a 33-28 edge --- with 3 games tied.

Can Any Team Dethrone Bucks?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willis Reed of New York and Jerry West of Los Angeles, a pair of crippled superstars, hold the keys to their teams chances of beating Milwaukee's defending champions for the National Basketball Association title this season.

Reed, the Knicks, captain and center, and West, the Lakers' prolific scoring guard both underwent knee operations following the 1970-71 season. How well they have recuperated will help determine how far their clubs can go this season which begins Oct. 12.

Reed, the league's Most Valuable Player when the Knicks won their first league championship in 1969-70, played with two bad knees and an aching shoulder in last season's playoffs. But he was not as effective as usual, and the Knicks were upset by the Baltimore Bullets in the semifinals.

West never even got into the playoffs—although the Lakers did. He was injured March 3 in a game against Buffalo and missed the rest of the season.

The Lakers will start this season with their three superstars—Wilt Chamberlain, West and Elgin Baylor—together again. Baylor was sidelined virtually all of last season with an injured Achilles tendon. Los Angeles also will have a new coach—Bill Sharman, who guided Utah to the American Basketball Association title — as the Lakers seek to repeat as Pacific Dvision championships.

The Knicks, aiming for their second consecutive Atlantic Division crown, have obtained veteran Jerry Lucas from the Golden State Warriors as insurance in case Reed's knee gives way.

New York's toughest opposition in the Atlantic Division should come from Philadelphia and Boston. Philadelphia is led by Billy Cunningham, a member of the All-NBA first team for three consecutive years; 21 point scorer Archie Clark and ageless Hal Greer, who joined the 20,000-point club last season.

Veteran John Havlicek, second in the league in scoring, fourth in assists, tops in minutes played and a first team All-Star, heads an otherwise young and improving Boston club.

Buffalo, the other Atlantic Division team, has added 7-1 rookie Elmore Smith and veterans Walt Hazzard and Jerry Chambers in a trade with Atlanta.

The renamed Golden State Warriors, still located in San Francisco but playing their home games in Oakland and San Diego, and the Seattle Supersonics should furnish Los Angeles' toughest competition in the Pacific Division.

The Warriors have obtained dynamic Cazzie Russell from New York and high-scoring Jim Barnett from Portland to supplement 20-point marksmenNate Thurmond and Jeff Mullins.

Seattle, with two standout backcourt men in player-coach Lenny Wilkens and Dick Snyder, will have ex-olympic and ABA star Spencer Haywood for his first full NBA season and center Bob Rule, sidelined most of the 70-71 campaign because of surgery on his Achilles tendon.

Houston, the NBA's first franchise in Texas, and Portland complete the Pacific Division, the only five-team division in the league. Houston, last season's San Diego club, has a new coach in Tex Winter from Kansas State and an established star in center Elvin Hayes, third in scoring and rebounding.

Portland depends on Geoff Petrie's co-rookie of the year and the seventh player in NBA history to score 2,000 points in his first year. Powerful forward Sidney Wicks, an All-American from UCLA's NCAA championship squad, and guard Charley Yelverton from Fordham, the Trail Blazers, top two draft picks, should be valuable additions.

Milwaukee, defending Midwest Division, Western Conference and NBA champion, returns with the same awesome starting five that carried it all the way.

Kareem Jabbar, formerly known as Lew Alcindor, the league's scoring leader and Most Valuable Player, leads the Bucks' brilliant cast. Oscar Robertson, the veteran backcourt star acquired from Cincinnati last season, again will direct the Bucks' unwavering attack.

Even though the Bucks played in the toughest division—all four teams finished swith over .500 records—they wound up 15 games ahead of runner-up Chicago.

The Bulls, led by Coach of the Year Dick Motta and paced on the floor by forwards Bob Love and Chet Walker, should be stronger with 6-8½ Howard Porter the Most Valuable Player in last season's NCAA tourney.

Curtis Rowe, Detroit's top draft choice from UCLA, figures to add rebounding strength to the Pistons who already have 6-11 Bob Lanier and highscoring guards Dave Bing and Jimmy Walker.

Connie Hawkins and Dick Van Arsdale, a pair of 20-point scorers for Phoenix should get help from rookie Dennis Layton of Southern California.

Baltimore, defending Central Division champion and the beaten finalist in last season's playoffs, boasts a veteran starting unit in Wes Unseld, Gus Johnson, Earl Monroe, Kevin Loughery and Jack Marin. However, Johnson, Monroe and Loughery all have been plagued by injuries in the past.

Pete Maravich, the greatest major college scorer in history, comes off a nerve-wracking rookie season with Atlanta. But having adjusted to the pro game, Maravich could improve on his 23.2 scoring average. Lou Hudson and Don May, the latter acquired from Buffalo, give the Hawks a total of three 20-point scorers.

PRO CHARTS — ABA

3--Kentucky Colonels

ABA—Eastern Division

PROSPECTUS: Colonels have all but mortgaged whole state the last couple of years in signing Dan Issel, 1970-71's Co-Rookie of Year, and now Artis Gilmore, who stands 7-2 (more like 9-6 when his Afro haircut is included). Ex-Celtic handyman Frank Ramsey brought team to peak at playoff time last season and Colonels almost made it all the way, losing to Utah in seventh game of final series. Now Ramsey is gone and Joe Mullaney has come over from NBA Lakers to try his hand. He has Gilmore to shore up team's weakest point, defense, and if big man does half of what Kentucky expects, they will clinch title by December. This could be the pro team that makes Kentuckians forget about Adolph Rupp.

FORWARDS: Issel (29.9 ppg to lead league) played center last season but at 6-9, he has grace, finesse and shooting touch to become Bob Pettit-type forward. If he maintains anything like his 13.2 rebound average and Gilmore's defense liberates him mentally to concentrate on offense, he'll tear up league. Likely partner is 6-7 Cincy Powell (18.1), heady four-year veteran, unselfish and tough clutch player. Jim "Goose" Ligon (12.8), 6-7, starter last year, makes strong third forward. Returnees Les Hunter (9.3), Dan Hester (5.9) and Walt Simon (7.8), who can also play guard, will compete for what's left of playing time. Rating: A–.

CENTER: There are those—Bill Sharman is one—who say Gilmore could become basketball's next Bill Russell, which is ultimate praise. Gilmore led nation's college players in rebounding last two years with 23 average, blocked 10 shots per game and scared a lot of people out of taking others. Though it's not that easy in the pros, he should be defensive terror in league where good big men are scarce. Backup center will probably be Issel, with help from other forwards in pinch. Rating: A–.

GUARDS: Louie Dampier (18.5), at 6-0, and Darel Carrier (16.4), at 6-3, make a small backcourt team and it hurts them on defense. Dampier is hustler, though, and led team in assists. Returning reserves—Tom Hagan (5-2), Mike Pratt (5.6) and Howard Wright (4.6)—haven't shown much, so help will have to come from rookies, led by Poo Welch of Houston, Mike Gale of Elizabeth City, Clarence Sherrod of Wisconsin. Rating: B.

PREDICTION: Colonels should dominate Eastern Division, perhaps whole league. First place.

PRO CHARTS — NBA

NBA — Atlantic Division

PROSPECTUS: Team that finished five games behind Knicks in regular season, then lost to Bullets in classically rugged playoff series, has passed its peak. With retirements of Bailey Howell, Connie Dierking, there is room, need for building on proven talents of Billy Cunningham, Archie Clark. For openers, coach Jack Ramsay has No. 1 draft choice Dana Lewis of Tulsa as candidate to fill aching void at center, along with another promising rookie, guard Marvin Stewart of Nebraska. But 76ers may have to take one step backward now to take two forward later.

FORWARDS: Cunningham (23.0 ppg) made all-NBA first team for third straight season, adding nearly 12 rebounds, 5 assists per game to scoring punch. But brilliant as he is, 6-7 star has taken 76ers about as far as he can. Other veteran starter, spring-legged 6-7 Jim Washington, (13.4) has never been more than promising. Returning reserves, 6-5 Fred Foster (5.5) and 6-6 Bud Ogden (2.4) don't hold much hope, either. May turn to rookies 6-7 Barry Yates of Maryland, 6-6 Rich Hood of Phillips or 6-8 Dave Scholz of Illinois, who spent last season in Eastern League. If Stewart progresses fast enough, 76ers may trade guard for veteran forward (Chicago, with forward surplus, guard shortage, would be likely prospect). Rating: B+.

CENTER: 6-10 Dennis Awtrey (7.2) and injury-plagued, bulky 6-9 Luke Jackson (6.7) shared center spot with Dierking last season, with notable lack of success. That puts heavy burden on 6-10 rookie Lewis, who averaged 23.3 points, 13.5 rebounds as senior. Al Henry, 6-9 center from Wisconsin who was first choice in 1970 draft, back for another try after good year in Eastern League. Center is weak point for Ramsay. Rating: C.

GUARDS: Unrecognized Archie Clark (21.3) led team in time on court, ranked ninth in league in assists with 5.4 average. Longtime standout Hal Greer (18.6), one of seven NBA players to top 20,000 career points, is 35, needs 57 games to top Dolph Schayes' record for most appearances. His durability notwithstanding, he'll need more rest and will get more help this season from Wally "Wonder" Jones (10.1), out half of 1970-71 with injuries. Stewart will be breathing down everyone's neck and journeyman Fred Crawford (5.3) is good for occasional burst. Two other rookies, 6-2 Dave Wohl of Penn, 6-3 Jake Jones of Assumption, face uphill battle. Rating: B.

PREDICTION: Likely to be passed by Buffalo, which is on way up. Fourth in Atlantic.

Pirates Take Lead; Defeat Giant Ace

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Goats ... fools ... duds ... Aristotle.

Strange subjects for baseball dressing rooms.

But they were the words bandied about after the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants 2-1 Tuesday in the third game of the best-offive National league playoffs.

The Pirates lead the series 21 and were in position to clinch the pennant and meet American League champion Baltimore in the World Series with another victory over the Giants today.

Rich Hebner, the Pirates' third baseman who digs graves in the off season, listed himself as "a goat" and "a damn fool," although it was his home run with two out in the eighth inning that won the game.

Hebner labeled himself a goat because his sixth inning error allowed the unearned Giants' run which tied the score 1-1 after Bob Robertson's fourth home run of the series had given the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the second inning. He said he felt like a damn fool prior to his homer because of the way San Francisco pitcher Juan Marichal had been toying with him at bat.

The 23-year-old Hebner said he had the entire last half of the 1971 season on his mind when he came to bat in the eighth. He had spent two weeks in a hospital with a virus around the heart, averaged only .200 the final 2½ months, knocked in only 12 runs and hit just three home runs.

And Bob Johnson, the 220pound Pittsburgh right-hander who came to the ball park expecting to watch and wound up the winner with eight innings of five-hit pitching, said he was a "dud" all season.

"I'm a dud because I didn't win more games," said Johnson, a 9-10 performer for the Eastern champion Pirates. But he wasn't a dud Tuesday as he struck out seven and scattered five hits in eight innings.

"Briles can't make it," pitching coach Don Osborn told Manager Danny Murtaugh.

"Did you expect Johnson, a guy with a 3.45 ERA during the season to last until the ninth inning?" he was asked.

"What do you want me to be, an Aristotle?" snapped the Giants' skipper.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

The Denver Broncos' pass attack against a zone defense has featured deep hook passes with the receivers going 15 to 18 yards deep before moving back three steps to take the ball, as the defenders sprint backwards. However, Oakland's linebackers have been backing up fast and deep and closing the hook area. What will you, the Bronco quarterback, call:

1. Deep sideline pass (receiver goes 15 yards downfield, breaks toward sideline)?
2. Delayed pass to tight end (end blocks, then goes down middle)?
3. Pass to fullback flaring out of backfield?
4. Deep hook pass, your strongest weapon?

Answer

No. 2. Delayed pass to tight end, who must delay two seconds before breaking down middle. Linebackers are in road of deep sideline and hook. Pass to back could go, but with linebackers deep, pass to tight end should be a completion.

Mich. State Favored In Upset

NEW YORK (AP) — All right, you guys, you ain't executing. Your percentage last week was only .677. And it brought your score for the season down to .712.

You guys ain't blocking and you ain't tackling. You're missing assignments and you're going on the wrong count. We got some good junior college boys coming in next year and you guys will really have to work to keep your jobs.

The assistant coaches ain't been so hot, either. Those scouting reports the last two weeks touting Florida over Alabama and Illinois over Washington were awful. Where'd you dig 'em up, off a tablecloth in some bar? The alumni are really on my back so this week you gotta get out there and fight, fight, fight! We got some big games coming up.

Oklahoma vs. Texas at Dallas—And next week it's Oklahoma-Colorado and Texas-Arkansas. Last year's 41-9 rout was the most points ever scored by the Longhorns in the series and the biggest margin since Texas' 40-7 triumph in 1941.

It also marked Oklahoma's switch to the Wishbone-T—T for Texas, that is. The Sooners picked it up so well that they rank second nationally in rushing with 425.3 yards per game while Texas is fourth at 349.3.

"They run it better than most people," said Southern California's John McKay after Oklahoma whipped his team 33-20 last Saturday. "They have an excellent quarterback in Jack Mildren and two great runners in Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt. Oklahoma is a tremendous offensive team."

Pitt's Carl DePasqua, a 55-29 loser the previous week, called Mildren "the finest I've ever seen ... with the system they have. His pitches are just fantastic." All those coaches can't be wrong ... or can they? TEXAS.

Stanford at Washington—The Indians have given up only 29 points in four games; the Huskies have scored 199. The winner could wind up in the Rose Bowl. Who wins the battle between the irresistible force and the immovable object? STANFORD.

Michigan at Michigan State— It isn't easy for Michigan's Bo Schembechler to remain a pessimist with a 4-0 record and three straight shutouts. But, he points out: "We haven't played any teams that have won a lot of games, so I really don't know how good a team we are. We're gonna find out real fast. Michigan State is much bigger than we are and I doubt seriously if we'll play a defensive team better than this one."

Surprisingly, it's Michigan which ranks second nationally in total defense. This time, the defense rests. Upset special of the week ... MICHIGAN STATE.

Colorado at Iowa State—The Buffaloes already have won at Louisiana State and Ohio State so they don't figure to have any trouble at Ames, Iowa. But if they're looking ahead to Oklahoma the unbeaten Cyclones could surprise. COLORADO.

Alabama at Vanderbilt—Commodores were looking ahead a week ago and were ambushed by Virginia. 'Bama undoubtedly will have an eye on Tennessee, next week's opponent. But this looks like a Bear Bryant powerhouse. ALABAMA.

Notre Dame at Miami, Fla.— Fran Curci has the Hurricanes back in business and there were cries of "Bring on Notre Dame!" after last week's rout of Baylor. They ought to know better. NOTRE DAME. Army at Penn State—Are the Cadets for real? Defeats of Georgia Tech and Missouri weren't flukes, but this is a Nittany Lion of a different color. PENN STATE.

Georgia vs. Mississippi at Jackson—Ole Miss wasn't supposed to win in Athens, Ga., last year, but did. Bulldogs have a score to settle for that one. GEORGIA.

Georgia Tech at Tennessee— Only team to beat Tennessee the past two years is Auburn. Tech's no Auburn. TENNESSEE.

Sports Briefs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Al Cueto has been cut by the Memphis Pros of the American Basketball Association.

Custo, who averaged 4.6 points and 3.9 rebounds per game last season, is a two-year veteran from Tulsa.

CHICAGO (AP) — Two men on a horse is nothing new but a crowd of 10,493 gulped hard Tuesday when it happened at Sportsman's Park race track.

Jockey Tony Rini was aboard Foxy Princess when his rein snapped in the second race. He was tossed in the air and grabbed the rein and neck of Raazab, ridden by Kenny Jones.

With Rini hanging on, Jones pulled up his mount after an eighth of a mile. Rini was not hurt.

DALLAS (AP) — World Championship Tennis announced Tuesday plans for a multimillion dollar playing headquarters for WCT, including stadium, indoor and outdoor courts and a "tennis village" for Lakeway, a 5,800acre resort 18 miles north of Austin.

WCT said the first phase of the project will be a $12 million program with construction to begin Nov. 1. The tennis village of town houses and club was scheduled to be in operation by June, 1972.

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — An 8year-old barren mare, Never in Paris, topped offerings of thoroughbreds of all ages at the Ocala sales Tuesday on a bid of $35,000.

Cooks, Gourmets Deplore Menu Of Future Prediction

NEW YORK (AP) — Cooking experts and fancy food fans are predictably piqued at a nutritionist's suggestion that the menu of the future may be founded on such things as peanut butter and pizza.

Bomb Probe Instruction Proposed

ST. LOUIS - Rex. D. Davis, director of the alcohol, tobacco and firearms division of the Internal Revenue Service has proposed a program of federal instruction on bomb investigation for members of fire departments. He explained that federal staff and laboratory facilities would be expanded to provide greater assistance to fire chiefs.

Davis, who is in charge of 1600 federal investigators, addressed the International Association of Fire Chiefs at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis.

He revealed that analysis of fire and bomb debris by highly advanced laboratory equipment in Washington, D.C., had led to state and federal convictions.

He added that the Internal Revenue ATF Division has already forwarded over 70 cases to the department of justice for prosecution since the new explosives law went into effect in February, 1971.

"Deplorable," said one cooking teacher; "purgatory," said another; "A rash statement," commented a gourmet shop manager; "impossible," sneered a restaurant owner.

The suggestion came from Dr. George C. Graham of Johns Hopkins University. He predicted that modern technology would enable women to spend less time in the kitchen and to serve nutritional diets composed of "hand foods"—sandwiches, pizzas, rolls and pastry.

The forerunners of the future, Graham contended, are hamburgers and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

"What a deplorable, miserable situation to live in—peanut butter sandwiches and pizzas. Cooking is a creative art and people, particularly young people, are beginning to find it out."

Maurice Moore-Betty, a Briton who runs a cooking school in New York and who recently authored a cookbook, said of the suggestion: "My reaction is horror. I don't see why fine cooking should die out any more than people should give up painting or music."

What does he think of a diet of peanut butter and pizza? "It would be purgatory," said Moore-Betty. "I can't imagine anything worse."

One of the few exceptions to the general dismay was Graham Kerr, the "Galloping Gourmet" television chef with the casual approach to complicated recipes.

In a telephone interview from Bournemouth, England, Kerr said of the new food, "It's got to happen. If we don't take some sort of rational approach to in-depth agriculture, only the very, very rich will be able to eat natural food. What is considered good food today is going to be prohibitively expensive."

Besides, he said, "I predict that within 25 years 60 per cent of the people will be living on pills and a milky substance obtained from roots."

Mineral Tax Preferred Over Soft Drink Levy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Maurice Schechter, DCeve Coeur, today issued a statement declaring he would approve a severance tax on minerals in behalf of conservation "but I cannot support a tax on kids for such purpose."

He said he was opposed to the initiative petition now being circulated by conservation groups to tax soft drinks 1 cent for each bottle to finance expansion of the operations of the state Conservation Department.

"Where does a tax on soda, over half of which is consumed by kids, fit into the picture?" Schechter asked. "Only because it is easy to collect a 10 per cent sales tax on soda pop, which the sponsors say would produce about $21 million a year."

He said Arthur W. Betts, former director of the Legislative Fiscal Affairs Committee, and the University of Missouri School of Business and Public Administration, both recommended either the soft drink tax or a severance tax on mining.

He quoted Betts as saying severance tax—taxation of natural resources, use of which is related to conservation, would provide adequate amount without excessive rate."

The university report said "from a single intuitive standpoint it would seem that a severance tax on the production of minerals would be a natural source of revenue for supporting ecology related activities of the department of conservation."

LUBELL
by William Geist

(Editors Note: The writer is a masters degree candidate in the Missouri School of Journalism's Washington Reporting Program.)

WASHINGTON — Sam Lubell, noted political analyst, told a Washington audience "18 year-old vote will beat Nixon if the Democrats give the young voter a choice."

Lubell, who recently toured the country analyzing the youth vote, disagreed with the commonly held belief that young people will not vote: "Not one I interviewed said 'who cares?' Young people feel they have a critical role to play politically and will vote in heavy numbers in the '72 election."

"One thing only will stop them from voting," he told the Women's National Democratic Club, "and that is what you and your husbands are doing: not giving them a meaningful choice between candidates."

He said if the Democrats fail to run "a real alternative" to Presiden Nixon in 1972, the youth will either not vote or vote for a third party candidate, adding, "not Wallace, however".

He said Wallace is not an acceptable third party presidential candidate to the vast majority of those he interviewed and among all age groups, Wallace is not as strong as he was in 1968.

He said many of the sons and daughters of 1968 Wallace voters in the South are turning Republican, and contrasted this with what he found to be a national trend elsewhere against President Nixon and the Republicans.

"I found," he said, "one-third of the sons and daughters of Republicans who voted for Nixon in 1968 would vote against him, whereas less than one-tenth of the sons and daughters of Democrats who voted against Nixon would now vote for him."

He said there is a national trend against Nixon which is much stronger among newly enfranchised voters, and added, "many of the parents are following their children."

"I found more than one-third of the youth who were pro-Nixon in 1968 have turned against him. One-fifth of their parents who did vote for Nixon are now against him."

"The youthful voters are ready to vote Democratic, if given a clear-cut choice," Lubell said. "They don't like Humphrey" because they see him as essentially the same type as Nixon or Johnson. They have no strong identification with the other Democratic hopefuls because none have taken clear stands on the issues they're interested in."

What are the issues young voters are interested in? The war, of course, but Lubell found an increasing concern for the economy, among students as well as those young people now working.

"The economy became an issue with students," he said, "because they were unable to find jobs, because last year's graduating class could not find jobs, and because many have been forced to change their career plans due to a scarcity of jobs in their chosen fields."

Using the economic issue as an example, Lubell brought up the question of whether giving youth the vote will speed reconciliation of the generations or widen the gap between them.

"A large number of those interviewed want to see a restructuring of our economy," he said, "so that it is not war dependent. They fear our economy needs war to prosper, and feel it is more of a threat to war than, say, Red China."

"They would," he continued, "like to see such things as environmental employment fill the war void. They want more purpose, more useful work.

HEW Chief Says Medical Cost Curb To Follow Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson says the administration plans to control medical costs in the second phase of its economic program.

Richardson said Sunday the department has been working with the Cost of Living Council for a brake on hospital and doctors' costs after the wage-price freeze ends Nov. 13.

"Because of ... the very rapid rate these costs have been rising year after year, we do intend to include specific measures to deal with them," Richardson said.

His remarks were on the NBC radio-television program "Meet the Press."

Newsweek magazine published a poll Sunday that said 69 per cent of American families want wage and price controls continued after the freeze expires.

Newsweek said 55 per cent favored what it called "Nixonomics."

The magazine said the poll was conducted by the Gallup Organization by telephone of a cross-section of American voters.

He said that since the administration has "proposed to mandate health insurance coverage for all families and all workers ... that we should also hold out assurances that cost and quality of medical care are going to be protected."

Relatively Trip Planned

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Washington University professor is scheduled to board a 747 jetliner this week to begin a pair of round-the-world trips he thinks will prove one phase of Albert Einstein's theory of relatively.

Physics professor Joseph C. Hafele, 38, will carry four atomic clocks to test Einstein's belief that moving clocks keep different time from clocks at rest.

Hafele, an attendant and the cesium-beam clocks are to take off from Dulles International Airport in Washington, D. C., Monday night. The first trip, around the world in an easterly direction, is expected to take about 2½ days.

A week later a westbound flight is planned.

Hofele says clocks flown in opposite directions around the world record slightly different times. This second trip will fall only a few minutes short of three days.

Accompanying Hafele and the clocks—worth $17,000 apiece, will be Richard Keating, an astronomer from the United States Naval Observatory. The observatory is financing the two flights, which will cost about $7,000.

The professor believes if Einstein's theory is correct a clock flying westward around the world should gain about 300 billionths of a second over a ground clock. When the clock is flown eastward it should lose about 100 billionth of a second over the earth-bound clock, he says.

Hafele will take a toothbrush, razor and drip-dry shirt aboard the airplane.

"I don't think I'll need any more than that. We won't be moving around too much and after all, we'll only be gone three days."

SICK DAYS ADD UP

LONDON (AP) — Industrial accidents and illness cost Britain more than 23 million working days every year, the British Safety Council reported.

The bill to taxpayers in lost production, medical and material costs, social benefits and "unseen" expenses was estimated to be $1.44 billion.

Nader Feels Consumer Bill Has Heart Trouble

But to Ralph Nader it is the heart of the proposed consumer protection act of 1971. And his complaint to Congress is that a House committee has given the bill heart trouble.

Nader and Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., are unhappy because, they say, Section 204 — on "representation of consumers"—would not give the proposed new consumer protection agency the right to intervene in enforcement proceedings during preliminary, informal stages.

That is important, they say, because most cases involving alleged violations of consumer protection regulations are settled without formal proceedings.

For example, they say:

—The Federal Trade Commission resorted to formal adjudication only 25 times in 1970 to enforce flammability standards while disposing of more than 250 cases through informal proceedings.

—Agriculture Department disciplinary actions under meat and poultry inspeaction laws against adulterated food and unsanitary processing plants are done informally before a department attorney.

—The Civil Aeronautics Board instituted or concluded more than 1,800 informal complaints against air carriers for violations of law, while settling only 231 cases through formal proceedings during fiscal 1971.

In addition, Nader and Rosenthal say the bill would not give the proposed agency the right to intervene or participate in "all formal adjudications 'seeking primarily to impose a fine, penalty or forfeiture,' all agency investigations and internal procedures."

This means, they said, that the proposed agency could not investigate vehicle defects, food contamination, dangerous toys, possible violations of the Flammable Fabrics Act, or industry compliance with Interstate Commerce Commission rules governing household movers.

They also said the bill would keep the new agency from participating in agency supervisory practices—such as Federal Communications Commission supervision of radio and television licenses.

Nader and Rosenthal also lost a battle to give the agency what would have amounted to subpoena powers.

But Chairman Chet Holifield of the House Government Operations Committee which wrote the bill takes a different view.

"The allegation has been made," Holifield said, "that 80 to 90 per cent of federal agency actions would be outside the purview of the consumer agency because they involve 'informal' rather than 'formal' proceedings.

"The Administrative Procedures Act makes no distinction of that kind. There is no valid basis for that allegation."

Holifield said the bill "does not give this new agency the right to dominate its sister agencies of government, nor to stand as a super agency above them, but it does direct the others to cooperate with the consumer agency in furnishing information.

"And it gives the consumer agency's administrator the right to request an agency to initiate a proceeding or publicly explain its failure to do so."

Chairman Roger C. Cramton of the Administrative Conference of the United States, who helped draft the current version of the bill, said it would be extraordinarily difficult to write legislation dealing with informal agency considerations.

Similar legislation passed the Senate and the House Government Operations Committee by wide margins last year but died on a tie vote in the House Rules Committee, which clears legislation for floor action.

The current bill was rushed to the Rules Committee Friday, the deadline for filing legislation to be considered for clearance to the House floor this year.

No date has been set for Rules Committee action.

Nader complains that last year's bill was stronger. He says that the White House took a strong role behind the scenes by "disciplining Republican members and holding out carrots to some Democratic members." Holifield and Republican congressmen deny the charge.

Bishop Says Legal Bets No Revenue Guarantee

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Rt. Rev. George Cadigan, Episcopal bishop of Missouri, said Saturday there is no guarantee that legalizing pari-mutuel betting in Missouri will produce sufficient revenue to hold taxes down.

He said sponsors of a constitutional amendment that would legalize on-track betting in the state "promise that we can avoid higher taxes for public education and mental health care by legalizing gambling.

"All that a vote for the proposed amendment will do is make it possible for the General Assembly to set up machinery to legalize pari-mutuel betting at horse tracks. There is no guarantee of any revenue for the state of Missouri," the bishop said.

"To seek to legalize what heretofore has been considered illegal in order to provide these additional services is dishonest and creates a false hope that can hardly be satisfied," Bishop Cadigan said.

Missourians will vote on the proposed constitutional amendment Tuesday.

Daniel Boone Heirs Attend Park Opening

LEESBURG — Many of Daniel Boone's heirs responded to an open invitation to attend a reunion in conjunction with the official September opening of a park off Interstate 44, near Leesburg.

Near the end of the day, the heirs decided the reunion should be known as "Boone Clan Rally" and be an annual affair in the park which includes beautiful Onondaga Cave, a discovery of Daniel Boone.

According to Cave Director Bob Hudson, no one showed up with back packs or tents to "rough it" as their ancestors had in the early 1800's.

The new 1,000 acre park is divided into two separate areas with hundreds of campsites, as well as trailer hook-ups, modern restrooms, showers, shelters, tables and barbecue pits. More than two miles of river frontage in the park provides visitors with ample opportunity for fishing in a fine, clear Ozark stream.

And, of course, there are daily tours of Onondaga Cave, made easy with its concrete walks, metal hand rails and electric lights.

Aid For Children With Impaired Sight

HOWARDVILLE - A survey made within a New Madrid County R-1 enlarged district for visually impaired children revealed that there are two children who are totally blind, five children that are legally blind, and several other children whose eyesight is seriously impaired and are only partially sighted.

A proposed program that would assist in training the blind and partially sighted children was submitted to and accepted by the state department of education. The proposed program provided money for the teacher's salary, the consultant's salary, supplies, materials, equipment, rent, janitorial service, and utilities. This was provided for the county by the federal government at no cost to the school district.

Mrs. Nancy Shipman, Dexter, was employed by the district to teach the visually handicapped class. Mrs. Shipman is certified by the State to teach the visually handicapped and the blind. Mrs. Marie Thompson, Portageville, was hired on a part-time basis to teach the children mobility and the use of the cane.

U.S. Senate Subject Of Filmstrip

The United States Senate, launching pad for presidential campaigns and political battleground for major issues, is the subject of a new Associated Press Special Report filmstrip to be distributed to area schools shortly through this newspaper.

The latest in a series of award-winning, full color and sound filmstrips produced by the AP, The United States Senate, the Politics of Power, probes the issues that surround the organization and activities of the Senate in the 1970's.

Relevant historical background sets the stage for candid interviews with Senators Charles Mathias of Maryland, Robert Packwood of Oregon, Fred Harris of Oklahoma, and Gordon Allott of Colorado. In addition, there is a revealing view of a Senate committee in action as Secretary of State Rogers faces Senators Church and Fulbright in a committee hearing concerned with the jurisdiction of executive power in the conduct of foreign affairs.

The Senate has been called the most exclusive and powerful legislative body in the world. In recent years, the Senate has exercised great authority in the determination of domestic and foreign policy. Will the power of the Senate continue to increase? Why has the Senate often clashed with the President and his executive branch? These and other questions are answered in this timely documentary.

The United States Senate: The Politics of Power is accompanied in the Associated Press Special Report series by similar filmstrips focusing on the House of Representatives and the Presidency.

Also included in the series and to be distributed in subsequent months, are Special Reports on Southeast Asia, The Power Crisis, Latin America, and Consumerism.

Special Report filmstrips are being produced by AP in cooperation with Scott Education, widely known in the audio visual education field.

Burlison Tells Veterans Of U.S. Benefits

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Congressman Bill D. Burlison, of Missouri's Tenth Congressional District today spoke before the Missouri Collegiate Veterans Association Convention. In his talk, the United States Representative discussed programs and benefits available to American veterans from Federal agencies.

"Last year the VA paid nearly $3.5 billion in compensation benefits to some two million veterans and to 376,000 of their survivors," he said. "In addition, another $2.2 billion was paid in pension benefits to one million veterans and one million survivors. This is just one example of the magnitude of these programs."

Burlison stressed the variety of programs administered by the VA. He described provisions of the GI education bill, the pension and compensation plans for disabled veterans, the GI loan program, and the health and hospitalization plans.

The Congressman concluded by reviewing legislation passed by the congress. Burlison explained that in this session, the House has passed three major veterans bills and several minor ones. Those of most importance include bills providing for mortgage protection life insurance, treatment for veterans suffering from drug abuse, and giving financial assistance to VA affiliated medical schools.

Burlison noted: "In modern America we recognize the hardships and sacrifices endured by the men in uniform and strive to express our appreciation...With the new problems of drugs, unemployment, and the rapid re-adjustment to civilian life confronting us, we are continually searching for new avenues and untried pathways to better our service to the American veteran.

Show Will Replace Melon Festival

HORNERSVILLE - The Farmers and Merchants Club of Hornersville announced Wednesday that their annual Watermelon Festival will be replaced with a annual variety show.

Pete Droke, a member of the club, told The Daily Democrat that rising entertainment costs had forced the club to discontinue the festival.

The festival, which had been presented in Hornersville for the past 15 years, has boasted such musical favorites as Red Foley, Carl Perkins, Sam the Sham, Webb Pierce, Sandy Posey, Dolly Parton, Jerry Lee Lewis, Ace Cannon and many other top- name performers.

Droke said the club's first annual variety show well be presented Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the new junior high school gymnasium at Hornersville.

The two-hour show will feature Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas talent and will contain a few surprises for the audience. He said present plans call for a "style show," featuring some of the men of the area dressed as women.

Charles Haynes will serve as program chairman for the variety show and is now accepting entries. Anyone may audition for the program.

The Farmers and Merchants Club is the only civic organization in Hornersville and all proceeds from the variety show will be used by the club to support the civic needs of Hornersville, along with other worthwhile projects.

Assistant State Geologist Appointed

ROLLA - Dr. Larry D. Fellow became assistant state gologist of the Missouri Geological Survey Oct. 1. He replaces Dr. Wallace B. Howe, who was appointed state geologist and director of the survey by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Dr. Fellows has been with the survey since 1965 and was chief of the stratigraphy section prior to his appointment as assistant state geologist. He has been involved in many of the mapping programs of Missouri and is the author of several publications in the fields of stratigraphy and paleontology.

A graduate of Iowa State University, Dr. Fellows received his masters degree from the University of Michigan and his doctors degree from the University of Wisconsin. Prior to joining the survey staff, Dr. Fellows was employed in industry for several years and was formerly a member of the faculty of Southwest Missouri State College in Springfield, where he taught stratigraphy and paleontology.

His professional memberships include the Geological Society of America, the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, and the Association of Missouri Geologists.

Dr. Fellows has been active in the Rolla Community Concert Association and is serving as third vice president. He was appointed to serve on the Rolla public library board of directors and is a member of the Phelps County Historical Society.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

Sikeston said Charleston has bad sportsmanship at all the games. Well, we the junior varisty cheerleaders would like to correct this statement.

Tuesday, September 28, the junior varisty had a game at Sikeston. During the game we were leading cheers and some of the Bulldog fans threw long peices of wood and sacks of sand and rocks at us and the grown ups. If we hadn't of moved we would have been hit. Fans of the Bulldogs were acting in very poor taste! But this isn't all! During the fourth quarter the section where the cheerleaders were was overtaken by Sikeston boys playing leap frog, of all things!

So, please Mr. Blanton in your paper rundown the sportsmanship of the Bluejays fans remember Sikeston could use some improvement.

Sincerely yours,
Junior Varisty Cheerleaders

I wish to express my thanks to you on behalf of the Adult Education Department of the Sikeston Senior High School for the excellent coverage your paper has given in bringing our program to the attention of the public. Dear Editor:

For the past few days we have been studying the problem of water pollution in our conservation course. It is our sincere hope that every registered voter in the state will consider voting for Amendment No. 3 next Tuesday. This proposal will help finance water pollution projects for the next seven to ten years.

Passage of this amendment will enable our state to correct some of the serious problems of water pollution. Lake Erie has already been declared a "dead lake" - incapable of supporting life of any sort except microscopic lichen which only feed on trash and waste. If we do not take prompt action, our lakes and streams will suffer the same fate. A vote for Amendment No. 3 is certainly a step in the right direction.

Sincerely,

Clifton Ham, John E. Crowley, Rikki LaPlant, Ken Harbin, Jon Forrest, Blake Nowell, Mike Porter, Dennis Parham, Chester Stevens, Dale Shaver, Mark Robison.

Mr. Sam Harbin
Superinentdent of Schools

Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Harbin:

You have probably already received a number of letters of this nature. I certainly hope so. This letter is written, not as a protest or part of a crusade, but as a matter of responsibility I feel as a concerned citizen, taxpayer and parent.

There have been a number of reports in the Sikeston Standard and on the local radio news broadcasts recently of disruptive actions on the part of some students in our school system. There are also many "stories" being related of activities of more than an unruly nature in the schools. Some of these reports are credible; others are undoubtedly exaggerated. My concern is with the fact that there is an evident lack of discipline and respect being exhibited on the part of some which can only operate to deprive others of the proper atmosphere for freely pursuing their academic endeavors.

My own personal belief is that order and discipline in our schools should be maintained. Aside from their duties as educators, I feel the faculty should enforce order and discipline among the students with complete impartiality. Those students who choose to disrupt classes and the general routine of our educational facilities, should be dealth with immediately in a stern and just manner. This is a serious obligation on the part of the faculty to the large majority of students who are seriously attempting to acquire a useful education.

I believe the school administrative officers should be solidly behind the faculty members on this point.

I believe the school board should be unequivocatingly loyal to the administrative personnel, faculty and students, and see to it that a policy of fair treatment for ALL students is followed; that the administration and faculty be given the authority to demand proper behavior on the part of all students, and to enforce the rules of decent behavior with appropiate disciplinary measures whenever this becomes necessary; and that it be demanded of those members of both administration and faculty that they be unhesitating in the enforcement of discipline and orderliness among all students.

It is not my intent to point an accusing finger or to critize. We in Sikeston, know that we have been provided with one of the finest educational institutions in this Country. Most of us appreciate that and few ever begrudge the tax dollars that have been paid to obtain it. We are also appreciative of the people within the school system who have labored to achieve the level of competency and esteem our school system has attained.

I can see no conceivable reason why our school system should not continue to progress to even higher levels - unless it could be by the reluctance on the part of a few to properly react to the effort of a small, recalcitrant but determined group, bent on destruction of this fine system.

Sincerely,
Alex C. Waters

WASHING (AP) – The Senate Wednesday approved four nominations to the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs--Leo Cherne of New York, former Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., of St. Louis, former White House aide Harry S. Flemming of Alexandria, Va. and William French Smith of California.

VA Hospitals Face Increasing Demands From Veteran Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of sick and disabled veterans awaiting admission to Veterans Administration hospitals has more than doubled this year as the VA faces increased demands from a growing veterans population.

Even though four of every ten veterans who seek admission are rejected, records show the 166 VA hospitals have a waiting list of 6,300 patients, up 3,439 since last Dec. 31.

VA Administrator Donald Johnson said the present waiting list, although the highest in recent years, still is less than 25,000 patients awaiting treatment in 1958.

"VA is providing more medical care for more veterans than ever before in the history of the agency," Johnson said in an interview. He cited the record 818,000 veterans treated in the hospitals last year, and the 8 million outpatient visits. "The total will likely be exceeded this year," he said, as more Vietnam veterans join the ranks of those eligible for treatment.

Johnson said the agency's medical-care budget has more than doubled since 1965, and that the quality of care is steadily improving.

"I firmly believe the VA today is rendering better medical care to more sick and disabled veterans than ever before in history, but I also know that the quest for improvement must be our never-ending objective."

An Associated Press study, including visits to a dozen hospitals, found the majority of patients interviewed were satisfied with the quality of care they receive from VA doctors and nurses.

"They're treating me great," said 20-year-old Wayne A. Webber, in the West Roxbury, Mass., VA hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a helicopter crash. Fellow paraplegic Robert Nadeau agrees: "This treatment has just been fine."

Some patients, however, complained of long waits for treatment.

Another paraplegic at West Roxbury, Ted Chute, 23, said: "I can't turn over in bed by myself and I have to be turned every two hours so I don't get sores. There have been a lot of times I've had to wait 3½ or 4 hours to get turned. I don't know if they don't have enough aides or if the aides don't care ...."

In another spinal-cord-injury treatment center, at Hines VA hospital near Chicago, Glenn Mayer, 46, paralyzed from the waist down, said: "One day not long ago they took me down to the central bath (for a shower) at 10 in the morning. I didn't get back to the room until 2. My lunch was here waiting for me, but it was cold."

There were widespread complaints among the veterans about difficulties encountered in gaining admittance to the hospitals.

Former Marine Sgt. Richard Evans of Macon, Ga., interviewed at the Atlanta VA hospital, where he is being fitted for an artificial leg, said:

"It took me three days to get into the hospital. I came in one day and waited from 8 'til 4 without being seen. I finally saw the doctor the next day, but he told me to come back the next day. Then I had to sit four hours that day before I got a bed."

The hospital director, Dr. Julian Jarman, agreed "that shouldn't happen," but he said the average waiting time is less than two hours.

Another Atlanta patient, however, said he had to make three trips to the hospital before he was admitted. "Finally," said the 22-year-old Walter Johns of Parsons, Ga., "I got in when I told them I quit my job and was just laying around waiting to get in."

Johns lost his leg to a Vietnam land mine, and Dr. Jarman said admission to the hospital was deferred because the stump hadn't fully healed.

Federal law requires that veterans with service-connected injuries or illnesses receive priority for admission, and VA officials said such veterans are not placed on waiting lists.

However, an examination of the Atlanta's hospital waiting list disclosed that four patients with service-connected ailments were awaiting a bed. So were 10 veterans whose admission was rated "urgent."

"Nobody who needs to be in this hospital at this time is not in here," said Dr. Jarman.

The Atlanta hospital, when built five years ago, was rated as having a 588-bed capacity. It has, however, been operating with funds for an authorized average daily patient census of 410. Because it has never been fully activated by the VA, dozens of rooms intended for patient use are filled with records or have been converted into offices.

At Perry Point, Md., where a VA psychiatric hospital has a waiting list of 99, a 160-bed patient building had disintegrated to the point that it had to be closed down.

The psychiatric hospital at nearby Coatesville, Pa., has a waiting list of only 10, but it also has 24 empty beds in a tuberculosis ward. The hospital director said he asked VA headquarters for permission to convert the vacant beds for psychiatric use.

"They said no," he recalled. "They're afraid there might be a TB epidemic someday."

I can (vaguely to be sure) still remember the "good ole days" when I use to always give myself a manicure, facial, new hairdo and a pedicure at least once a week if not more often — ah, those were the days! Now I'm doing good to cram a quick weekly visit in to the hair dressers, and heaven only knows how long it's been since the pores on my face have been tended to like they should, poor clogged up dears. I can still (again vaguely) remember what it was like trying to decide who and where to go out with over the weekend and what to pull out of my then plentiful wardrobe to wear. Oh brother, was that ever long ago! Now I know who I'm going to be with — 2 dogs, 2 kids and 1 pooped out husband if you are suggesting anything but a game of golf — where I'm going is usually pretty much the same too — fishing or home — and as to my wardrobe, well, that's the biggest laugh of all — guess it's just as well I don't have anyplace to go, I am too old and fat to go naked, and frankly, my skin is just about as new as anything else I've got hanging in the closet! Boy, my kids would never believe I was young once and danced and went to football games, ecetera, they think I've one foot in the grave already and have had it there for at least three years. Of course, between dashing with one to piano lessons, another for guitar, one to cub scouts, the other on his paper route, one to football practice, the other to the doctor, etc., etc., etc., I really am wearing out at a rapid rate — like the ole grey mare I just ain't what I use to be! Oh well, at least I still can remember, and if my mind holds out for a few more years at least I will still be able to hang onto that for comfort in my middle-age old age.

1,000 Jobs A Day Disappear In Britian

LONDON — A thousand jobs a day have been disappearing in Britain in 1971. Unless the trend slows, one million workers will be on the dole this winter. Improvement is hard to forecast because Britain is fighting not only her own economic troubles but President Nixon's de facto devaluation of the dollar and import surcharge as well.

Unemployment in Britain, excluding Northern Ireland, totaled 883,000 in mid-September, or 3.9 per cent of the work force, up from August's 3.7 per cent. There were 45,568 out of work in Northern Ireland, or 8.8 per cent. The overall unemployment rate was the highest since 1940. The Economist points out, moreover, that now comes "the start of the usual seasonal climb in unemployment to the seasonal peak in January or February."

Even before the September statistics were made public, the Guardian had commented that Britain faced "a crisis situation" which "demands crisis measures." Obviously the measure taken in July to stimulate the economy and provide more jobs have not yet taken hold.

At the time of the elections of June 1970, Tories called the unemployment of 579,000 "a damning indictment" of the Labor Party's economic policy. Robert Carr, now the Secretary of State for Employment and Productivity, then considered this figure "a matter of great national concern." In power, Carr has been faced with record unemployment combined with unprecedented inflation.

Unemployment was assumed to be voluntary in early 19th century England and idleness was punishable by law. Fifty years ago, in 1921, there were two million unemployed in the United Kingdom. And the pitiless unemployment of the 1930s very nearly destroyed British belief in capitalism.

Since World War II, both parties have tried to keep unemployment at low levels. As recently as 1966, for example, the British unemployment figure was 1.5 per cent. Britons have always looked with horror on U. S. recession-level unemployment rates of 6 per cent or more.

But different methods of figuring unemployment narrow the difference. In Britain, for example, only those who actually register as unemployed are counted in the statistics. In the United States, the figures are based on a survey of households which counts as jobless those who are seeking work but haven't found it. If the United States used the British method it is estimated the U. S. jobless rate now would be about 4.5 per cent instead of the current official 6.1 per cent rate.

Victor Feather, General Secretary of the Trades Union Congress, said last month that, "It is a dismal lookout for everybody and a depressing prospect for those leaving school and the university." Nevertheless, the National Institute of Economic and Social Research forecasts that the British economy has already reached the low-water mark -- even though the jobless total may still rise this winter.

As in the United States, the unemployment situation in Britain is fraught with paradox. Mental hospitals are crying for nurses, police forces are below strength, and it can take five days to get a simple car repair. The Labor Party opposition has been very low key. Instead of blasting Tory policy, a Trades Union Congress in Blackpool recently suggested a shorter working week, longer holidays, more public holidays and early retirement as an answer to unemployment.

Cooking-Up with judy gazen

Guest recipes are featured in this week's column, courtesy of Mrs. Andy W. Hill, 221 East Gladys. She says they're all true-tested and favorites. Mrs. Hill, already a faithful supplier of guest receipes, has sent a good selection of holiday foods which we're saving for later issues.

If you've combed your own files and can't find a recipe you're looking for or one you're trying to duplicate, write the Standard, care of this column, and we'll publish your request. An exchange of ideas is always refreshing.

LEMON CHESS PIE
2 cups sugar
1 T. flour
1 T. meal
4 eggs
¼ cup melted butter
¼ cup milk
4 T. grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice
Unbaked 9-inch pie shell

Combine sugar, flour and meal in a large bowl. Toss lightly with a fork. Add remaining ingredients. Beat with electric mixer until smooth and well blended.

Pour into unbaked pie shell and bake at 350 degrees about 35 to 40 minutes or until top is a golden brown.

Mrs. Hill adds, "This is a family recipe brought from Kentucky when my mother came to Sikeston as a bride in 1903."

FROSTED LIME PECAN SALAD
1 package lime gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 - No. 2 can crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ jar stuffed olives, chopped
2 cups pecans, chopped

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and cool 'til syrup-y. Stir in remaining ingredients, turn into loaf pan that has been rinsed in cold water and chill until firm. When firm top with:

FROSTING

Blend and beat two 3-ounce packages cream cheese, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon lemon juice until smooth.

Spread over gelatin and cut into squares.

Mrs. Hill suggests serving the salad with potato chips or Ritz crackers.

SPANISH DELIGHT

2 green peppers, chopped
2 medium onions, chopped
Add:
1 pound ground chuck and simmer 10 minutes until browned
Cook:
1 8 -ounce package egg noodles
Add:
1 can cream style corn, No. 202 size
1 small can mushrooms, drained
1 large can tomato paste
2 T. chili sauce

Mix all together, adding salt and pepper to taste. Bake in covered dish at 250 degrees about one hour, remove cover and top with shredded cheese. Bake again long enough for cheese to melt. Serve with corn muffins and green salad.

TEXAS CAKE
2 cups flour
6 T. cocoa
2 cups sugar
1 tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt

Mix above ingredients and cream together with:
1 T. vanilla

Scant cup sour cream

When blended, pour into large square pan and bake at 350 degrees for 23 minutes.

ICING

5 T. cocoa
1 T. vanilla

Bring to a boil:
6 T. evaporate; milk
1 stick margarine
1 cup chopped pecans

"Very moist and rich," says Mrs. Hill.
